"Now It Can Be Told," a Graphic Book on War, Is Plea for World Peace and an Indictment of High Command

Accounts of Battle Horrors Never Published Before, and of Tragic Mistakes of Officers Related by Philip Gibbs, Noted Correspondent.

By CLAIR KENAMORE,

Who Was the Post-Dispatch's Staff Correspondent With the Thirty-Fifth Division in France.

IF every man and woman around the world would read Philip Gibbs' book, "Now It Can Be Told," there would be no more wars. Men and women acquainted with this brutal picture of war never again would furnish to any nation the means with which to wage war. So vivid is his story and so graphic his picture of the thing called War that I am sure men who read the book never would be willing to inflict such enormities against their fellow men, and women would never permit their men to get in the path of the monster.

The book at first strikes you as a piece of plain and forceful writing, startlingly frank and unnecessarily cruel. But further along you begin to appreciate that it is done with consummate art. He set out to tell what war is, to explain it to pompous, exulting fathers, to gentle, loving mothers, to anxious wives, to tender, innocent sweethearts and to proud sisters, whose Boy had been there and who does not talk much about it now. Gibbs knew well that no brief description, no limited account, however well done, could convey a faint ghost of the true idea. There is no combination and sequence of words in our language which can do that. So he did not try, but he wrote 558 pages with great art, shot with beautiful and well studied passages, and the whole is a horribly convincing, compact and sequential brief for the case against war.

> IN courage I do not think there was much difference between the chief combatants. The Germans, as a race, were wonderfully brave until their spirit was broken by the sure knowledge of defeat and by the lack of food. Many times through all those years they marched shoulder to shoulder, obedient to discipline, to certain death, as I saw them on the Somme, like martyrs. They marched for their Fatherland, inspired by the spirit of the German race, as it had entered their souls by the memory of old German songs, old heroic ballads, their German homelife, their German women, their love of little old towns on hillsides or in valleys, by all the meaning to them of that word Germany, which is like the name of England to us—who is fool enough to think otherwise?—and fought often, a thousand times, to the death, as I saw their bodies heaped in the fields of the Somme and round their pillboxes in Flanders and in the last phase of the war behind the Hindenburg line round their broken batteries on the way to Mons and Le Chateau. They were brave, those Germans, whatever the brutality of individual men, and the cold-blooded cruelty of their commanders.—From "Now It Can Be Told," by Philip Gibbs.

It is not in any one or dozen of these pages that the thing finally comes which moves the reader to conviction. It is the whole damned thing called war, which is stripped naked and set before him on the printed page, writhing, unclean, monstrous and terrible.

Gibbs Saw Most of War.

Gibbs, probably the foremost correspondent of the great war, wrote for London newspapers all through the four years, and unquestionably saw much more of it than any officer or enlisted man. An officer's duty is to attend to some specific job. A correspondent's is to range far, for to admire and for to see.

This book, "Now It Can Be Told," tells the things which public policy or the censor prevented him from writing in his long daily dispatches.

His dispatches told of the valor of the British troops and the infamy of the enemy, of salients lost and won, and of the daring deeds which marked them. Since the British nation was making war, and was seeking further powers to make more war and more deadly, it is obvious that the correspondent was not allowed to send in his dispatches, if he wanted to, facts which would be an argument against all wars. So now that the war has come to an end, he prints in a book the things he did not send during the war, and it makes an argument against the ancient and evil institution which I hereby nominate for the Nobel peace prize.

Might Have Been Shot for Treason.

And it is a good thing he did not write these things during the war, for he would most surely have been backed up against a wall and shot for treason. He has good words for the German soldiers, he tells of errors of high command which caused proud gentlemen to writhe under the telling wit of their fellows at officers' clubs or messes, when the mistake-maker would be compelled to acknowledge with a wry smile that he had bungled one. These mistakes would bring death and wounds to hundreds of men wallowing in the mud and filth and blood of the field, far, quite far to the frontwards of the officers' mess. Gibbs tells all these things, and he never fails to point out that that bungler is far to the rear, and the sufferers from his error far to the front, under the enemy's guns.

The desperate futility of trench fighting, the little salient won at the cost of many fine young lives, much artillerying and indifferent staff work ("These Generals must have their little triangles," one man said), had sunk into Gibbs' soul like poison. Then the horror of another fight, years later, for the identical piece of earth brings him to the height of his sadness. The whole book is sad in its undercurrent, though the top flow is often gay or witty.

Among the most murderous and infamous of the things related is the taking of a piece of enemy trench, at the usually heavy cost, not to straighten out the line, and not to harrass the enemy and not to gain a valuable position, but to do something which would look good in the communique.

Concerning a bloody mistake under Lord French, Gibbs, who seems to think Lord French merely a nice old gentleman, says:

"I do not blame Lord French. I have no right to blame him, as I am not a soldier or a military expert. He did his best, with the highest motives. The blunders he made were due to ignorance of modern battles. Many other Generals made other blunders, and our men paid with their lives. Our high command had to learn by mistakes, by ghastly mistakes, repeated often, until they became visible to the military mind, and were paid for again by the slaughter of British youth. A writing man who was an observer and recorder, like myself, does not sit in judgment. He merely cries out, 'O, God! O, God!' in remembrance of all that agony and that waste of splendid boys who loved life and died."

How he does hate incompetent staff officers! He makes a good point in telling of executions of officers and men for cowardice in action, men who were tried and condemned, and the sentence reviewed and approved by officers far behind the lines who never had been put to the great test in which the erring one had failed. The basic injustice and inhumanity of this, the fundamental unsoundness and primal unfairness of it, is good grist for his mill.

Disguise in Grim Humor.

It may not be exactly fair to analyze a writer's methods, but it seems to me that Gibbs, having set himself the task of telling the people of England how their soldiers did, and how they would do again if there were another war, would set forth a particularly horrible thing, and then, fearing it might be a little strong for home consumption, would relieve it with a pertinent story of grim humor. The drunkenness of the men had this to save it.

It was of Gen. Hunter Weston that the story was told about the drunken soldier put onto a stretcher and covered with a blanket, to get him out of the way when the army commander made a visit to the lines.

"What's this?" said the General.

"Casualty, sir," said the quaking platoon commander.

"Not bad, I hope?"

"Dead, sir," said the subaltern.

The General drew himself up and said, in his dramatic way: "The Army Commander salutes the honored dead!"

The drunken private put his head from under the blanket and asked: "What's the old geezer a-sayin' of?"

Prisoners Killed to Make Men.

No attempt is made to cover up the killing of prisoners, especially at the direction of old army men, who were trying to "make men" of the new drafts from England. This grisly piece of humor is the accompaniment:

It was the story of an attack on German trenches, in which a crowd of Germans were captured in a dugout. The Sergeant had been told to "blood" his men, and during the killing he turned around and asked: "Where's 'Arry? 'Arry 'asn't 'ad a go yet."

'Arry was a timid boy who shrank from butcher's work, but he was called up and given his man to kill. And after that 'Arry was like a man-eating tiger in his desire for German blood.

The rough and cruel humor he touches lightly,

Random Observations on Conditions in Germany

18 Months After the War, by a Post-Dispatch Man

EVERYBODY FARES WORSE NOW THAN BEFORE RETURN OF PEACE

Nation Drifting Along Without Any Strong Leaders and Is Going Backwards Rather Than Showing Signs of Recovery—Beer Is Unfit to Drink and You Must Address the Waiter as Mister to Get Him to Serve It to You.

THESE memoranda from the note book of Karl Kitchen, who has just returned to America after a seven weeks' trip through Central Europe, present the impressions of a keen reporter of conditions within the German republic.

In making his comparisons Kitchen has the advantage of having visited Germany in the winters of 1913-14 and 1915-16. On this trip he spent four weeks in Berlin and other great cities of the country. Kitchen has been a member of the Post-Dispatch and New York World staff for 12 years and he speaks the German language.

By KARL K. KITCHEN.

A YEAR and a half of peace has made most people in Berlin long for a return of war, or, at least, of war conditions. For the capital of Germany was far better off during the war than it is today.

Food is scarcer, prices are many times higher and unemployment is far greater at the moment than at any time since the signing of the armistice. And there is an all-pervading atmosphere of hopelessness and gloom that did not exist before the treaty of Versailles was accepted.

Instead of making towards recovery, Germany has gone backwards, as anyone who was familiar with its pre-war and war times must appreciate after spending a fortnight in Berlin. There is nothing to justify the high hope that well wishers of Germany in the United States have often entertained. Supplies of raw materials, coal and iron, are insufficient to hold up its industrial scaffolding much longer, and a collapse must come unless the treaty of Versailles is revised or the allies put Germany on her feet.

The fact that the United States and Germany are still technically at war does not prevent Americans from visiting Berlin. Nor is it necessary for Americans to enter Germany by way of Coblenz, the headquarters of the American army of occupation. Even the formality of obtaining a German vise in France can be dispensed with. An American can take a night train from Paris to Frankfort or Cologne and proceed the following night to Berlin, if he can get space in the sleeping cars. Through train service from Paris will be established in a few weeks, however.

The cost of railway travel has more than quadrupled in Germany in the last 12 months. The train service is still limited and space in the through trains is often sold weeks in advance. However, every official in every branch of the Government is "open to reason." A hundred-mark note, or two or three of them, will work wonders.

Most Officials Are Grafters.

The Turkish custom of "baksheesh" has been adopted through Germany, high Government officials being as susceptible to it as the lowliest porter. Before the war German officials of all classes were noted for their honesty. Today a nongrafting official is hard to find. The impossibility of making both ends meet on their meager salaries is primarily the cause for this amazing breakdown of a national characteristic.

Naturally, there is nothing but paper money in circulation in Germany. Thousands of counterfeit 50 and 100 mark notes are in circulation, but as nearly a billion marks in genuine notes are printed by the Government each month, few people are disposed to take exception at counterfeit, and, after all, the counterfeit has as much back of it as the genuine notes.

The soldiers who stole $10,000,000 in Rumanian bank notes, from the tower at Spandau, were arrested while the writer was in Berlin. When they opened some of the bales of money, which were printed in Germany for the use of the German armies in Rumania, they discovered that some of the notes were moldy.

The best thing that has been said about the German money is that it is filthy without being lucre.

Everyone in Berlin is pessimistic over the future of Germany. Conditions must change, they say, because they cannot get worse. I did not meet a single person who expected that Germany would pay any appreciable part of the indemnity. In fact, nearly everyone is of the opinion that it cannot be done.

Germany would like to have the United States cancel the debt of Great Britain, owed to us, so that the French debt to Great Britain would be wiped out. Then France would not need such a huge indemnity and Germany would not have to pay anything. This plan is suggested in all seriousness by prominent Germans as the best solution for their problems. I reminded several of them that everyone in America is not crazy—yet.

Population Is on Increase.

Berlin is now the fourth city in the world in point of population. A large number of Polish Jews have taken refuge in the capital and their presence has not allayed the anti-Semitic feeling that exists in many quarters.

The leaders of the Radical Socialists are nearly all Jewish, and the majority of the "Kriegs-Gewinners" (war winners or profiteers) are also Jewish. These two extremes of society are bitterly hated by the great middle class, which is bearing most of the burdens of the wars and the peace, which are even more terrible.

Germany today is without any great leaders. The people have no one to whom they can turn to lead them out of their difficulties. Their military leaders have been discredited and Hindenburg, the one outstanding figure, is too old to take up new burdens. This lack of leaders is one of the most serious problems of the German republic.

The three words most in use in Berlin are "putsch," "schieber" and "valuta." Everyone asks everyone when a "putsch," or coup d'etat, will take place—for either the militarists or the Communists are expected to make an attempt to seize the Government before fall.

"Schieber" (literally, pusher) is the name applied to profiteers.

"Valuta" is the exchange, and it is the all-absorbing topic of conversation. For everyone with money is speculating in it.

The present Government is weak and unpopular. Ebert, the President of the German republic, is a most uninspiring person, and now that he is on the outs with his own party, his political career is practically at an end.

New Revolt Expected.

Everyone expects the present Government is to be overthrown before long. The militarists have troops in readiness for a "putsch" and are simply marking time until conditions are favorable for their return. They may be anticipated by the Radical Socialists, but the point I want to make is that the coming of another "putsch" is a fixed idea in Berlin today.

There is not the slightest chance for the former Kaiser returning to power—or any of the Hohenzollerns, for that matter. The Kaiser's name is rarely heard.

The beer in Germany is almost unfit to drink. It is worse, if possible, than the half-of-1-per-cent stuff that masquerades as "beer" in dry America. Nobody who can afford to have anything else thinks of drinking it. The rich drink wine, the poor water.

The breweries in Pilsen and Budweis are in operation and their beer is excellent, but the Czecho-Slovaks do not allow it to be exported to Germany.

Wine is fairly plentiful, but expensive. Twenty marks will buy a fair grade, but it is subject to a 20-per-cent war tax.

While the cost of living in New York has doubled since 1914, and in Paris quadrupled, in Berlin it has increased tenfold.

For instance, the table d'hote luncheon at the Hotel Adlon, which used to be 3 marks 50 pfennigs before the war, is now 35 marks—and the menu is very scanty.

Drivers of the few remaining taxicabs are allowed to multiply the amount on their meters by eight, when demanding pay from their fares. The street car fare is 70 pfennigs instead of 10, a bus ride from Unter den Linden to Helensee, which used to be 40 pfennigs, is now 3 marks.

$19 a Pound for Sugar.

In a home where I visited my hostess paid 30 marks a pound for ham, 60 marks a pound for butter and 75 marks for a pound of sugar. At the present rate of exchange that is $1.50 a pound for butter and nearly $2 a pound for sugar, but it must be remembered that the mark and not the dollar is still the unit of value in Germany and that at the normal rate of exchange these prices mean the equivalent of $15 a pound for butter and $19 a pound for sugar.

My hostess bought most of her household supplies "hintenrum," as they are called; from dealers who are trafficking illegally in foodstuffs. It is impossible to live on the food rations in Germany, with the result that those who have money buy from dealers who disregard the food cards for fancy prices.

These dealers, who are everywhere, only sell to customers they can trust, and the result is that few are trapped by Government agents.

Meals, even in the homes of the richest people are now very modest repasts. As game is not rationed, it is available at fancy prices, but cuts of beef, such as we know in America, are only memories. The coffee, or rather "ersatz" (substitute), is vile and the after-dinner cigars—cabbages from Hamburg—would choke a Hoboken dock walloper.

Even in the best hotels and restaurants there is no variety of food, and the prices are so high that only "schiebers" (profiteers) and wealthy travelers are able to patronize them.

Each egg I ate in the morning at the Hotel Adlon had 5 marks written on it—$1.25 at the normal rate of exchange. A luncheon I gave at the hotel for two German friends was 362 marks (approximately $10 in American money, but $90 at the normal rate). It was a very simple luncheon and the same menu would not have cost more than $10 or $12 in a New York hotel—except for the wine. The itemized bill, which I have before me as I write, includes a 20-per-cent tax on the wine (20 per cent wienstur) and a 10 per cent teurerungssclug, or 10 per cent tax on the total amount for service.

Tips and Taxes, Too.

In Berlin today 10 per cent for service is added to every restaurant check and the waiter expects a tip in addition, although the 10 per cent tax is divided among all the restaurant employes.

It is no longer the custom to call a waiter "Kellner." One must say "Herr Ober" (Mr. Captain) to the smallest menials.

The employes of every factory, shop or restaurant, etc., have their local soviets and run things with a high hand. They dictate wages, hours, the number of employes, and any effort to interfere with them results in a strike. There are a score of strikes in Berlin every day, and it is a rare occasion when the strikers lose.

The employes of the Hotel Adlon—550 of them, compared with the 400 who were sufficient to run the hotel before the war—knocked off work for two hours the other afternoon and served themselves tea in the Kaisersaal of the hotel, while guests waited for them to answer the bells. Louis Adlon, the owner of the hotel, did not even reprimand them, as it might have resulted in a general walkout.

The Adlon Hotel, the finest hostlery in Europe before the war, is using paper napkins and paper tablecloths. It has not been able to replace its linen, which was taken by the Government during the war. Its towels—a guest who remains but a week or two sees only one—are marked with the lettering of the North German-Lloyd, Mr. Adlon having bought them from the defunct steamship company.

The best restaurant in Berlin today is Borchardt's, just off the Friedrichstrasse. A meal for two costs 300 marks, with wine, of course. Peltzer's, just off Unter den Linden, is quite good, but it is patronized almost exclusively by "schiebers" (profiteers). Borchardt's gets the conservative Berlin element—and American bon vivants.

The only bargains are in the wines. Restaurant prices are so high that Berliners take practically all their meals at home.

Coal Shortage Is Serious.

Hot water for bathing purposes is only permitted twice a month owing to the coal shortage, and in many apartment buildings the automatic elevators have been stopped for the same reason.

The streets are not nearly as clean as they were in pre-war days, and beggars, pickpockets, are everywhere in evidence.

Only 40 per cent of the students at the University of Berlin have more than 300 marks a month for their total expenditures—about $7.50 at the present rate of exchange. Out of that sum they have to feed and clothe themselves in addition to paying for rooms. If it were not for the Society of Friends (British Quakers), who are serving these students meals for a nominal price of 1 mark 50 pfennigs, the number of students would be reduced by nearly one-half.

The old type of German university student, with his smart corps uniform, scarred face and 20-seidel capacity, has disappeared. The typical "college boy" in the German republic is a thin undernourished, shabbily dressed youth, and lacks spending money.

The University of Berlin, like every institution of higher learning in Germany, is a hotbed of militarism. As the middle class is gradually being wiped out, the students are among the greatest sufferers. They are anxious to rid Germany of its radicals, whom they blame for their present plight.

The head porter at the Hotel Adlon makes more in a month than the chancellor of the University of Berlin receives in a year. The university students are showing unusual interest in athletic sports—track meets are becoming popular and there is also great interest in boxing. Professional boxing matches have captured the fancy of the Berlin public and the international contests at the various arenas are well attended.

Moving pictures are not particularly popular. There are few American films, as German managers cannot afford to buy them. The German-made pictures are 10 years behind the times.

Great Theater Is Built.

The only new structure of any importance in all Germany is the Grosses Schausprehaus in Berlin. This great playhouse, as it is called, is the largest theater in the world, seating more people than either the Hippodrome or Capitol Theater. Shakspearean productions are given nightly, with casts of five and six hundred players, to audiences of five or six thousands.

There are three stages, all of which are utilized, and the production the writer witnessed, "Julius Caesar," was given with only one pause after the third act. Despite the fact that the performance lasted four hours, not one of the 6000 spectators left the theater.

There are almost as many English plays in Berlin at present as German offerings. The biggest laughing hit is "When Knights Were Bold," at the Theater Des Westeins. Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest," and Shaw's "Pygmalion" and "The Great Catherine" are enjoying considerable popularity, but no less than three theaters are giving Shakspearean drama. The German operettas are unusually poor. Even the best of the lot, "Der Letzte Walzer" ("The Last Waltz"), by Oscar Straus, has a dead book and but one or two good melodies.

Germany is bankrupt in theatrical novelties. The plays of Sudermann and Kauptmann, who were heralded as modern Schillers and Goethes, are mere pot boilers.

Eleven o'clock is the closing hour in the German capital. The street cars stop running at that hour and all the restaurants, cabarets and ball establishments are supposed to be closed. There are several "night clubs" that flourish in spite of the law, however.

Berlin has somewhat recovered from the dancing craze that gripped it last winter, when the spending spire was at its height. Le Palais de Danse, the most beautiful public dance hall in the world, is still open—until 11 o'clock—but it is no longer a smart rendezvous.

Races Attract Throngs.

Nobody dresses in the evening in Berlin except for the most formal functions—which are few and far between. There is very little entertaining. Early to bed and early to rise is the rule for rich and poor alike.

The most popular pastime is attending the races. Crowds of fifty and even eighty thousand are not unusual at Gruenwald, the beautiful race track just outside of Berlin, especially on Sunday afternoons. Bales of paper money are wagered on the nags, the pari-mutuel system being in vogue. The writer saw Nubier, the best horse in Germany, win the Union, a race with a 60,000-mark purse, before a crowd of more than 60,000.

The Kaiser's private lodge, from which he used to watch the races, is now used as a refreshment booth for the members of the jockey club and their families.

Americans are well treated everywhere in Berlin. The hatred in Germany today is directed against the French, because of their occupation of Frankfort with black troops and their demands at the Spa conference.

I never heard anyone speak of President Wilson while I was in Germany. Nobody in Berlin seems to think about him in these days.

There are practically no private automobiles in Berlin. Joy riding is forbidden and the few motors in commission are used only for business purposes. Gasoline is $1.50 a gallon and rubber tires are almost unobtainable.

The automobiles on view in the showrooms along Unter den Linden have wooden tires, painted to resemble rubber. Deliveries cannot be made with rubber tires at the present time.

Hundreds of old horse cabs have made their reappearance at the railway stations, in front of the hotels and along the principal thoroughfares.

The Friedrichstrasse is still boarded up as the result of the subway excavation, work in which has been stopped since the war. Traffic policemen have practically disappeared, but there

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Measuring Another's Mind.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

It is a remarkable fact that most defenders of President Wilson's regime indulge in a wild wish and craving for power which would arbitrarily permit the aforesaid defender to inflict punishment or humiliation upon all those who dare to exercise their constitutional and inherent right, as American citizens, to criticise anybody, or everybody, whose official acts displease the critic.

Wilson is no more a Divine Being than are Harding, Cox and Debs, each of whom are nominees of a political party, with certain ideas of needed legislation.

Wilson is no more divine now than before his election or after his retirement from office.

One correspondent writes he would like to stand Wilson's detractors against a blank wall—to be shot. That man belongs in Mexico, not the U. S. A.

Still another would compel Senator Reed to crawl on his knees before the President. That fellow should remove to the domain of the Sultan of Sulu, where they do such things.

We all damn the ex-Kaiser for wanting to dictate to the world, and yet some of these lesser, self-conceited, self-exalted and self-important individuals vainly prate about democracy, while they ask to muzzle others who talk as they think, in their own free manner.

We should tolerate the opinions of others—that's Americanism. Any overweening, conceited person can agree to tolerate those fanatics who agree with him—that's egotism.

The world would stagnate if everybody thought alike. It is the exchange of ideas, added to discontent, which makes progress. The desire for something better and the impartial, free, clear mind to reason out the problem.

E. T. GRETHER.

What Is Democracy?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Is democracy a government by the people, composed of rational beings, capable of forming trustworthy opinions, where the trustworthy opinions of the majority prevail, and the trustworthy opinions of the minority are entitled to respectful consideration; where it is the eternal hope that the majority will strive to vindicate the truth and not to alter it, because justice is eternal and generations pass; where sincerity is a badge of honor in the eyes of all? If this is a true conception of democracy, the American people were wronged when Senator Reed was denied his seat at San Francisco. He held a minority view. If the will of the majority is to be our measure of government because it is the will of the majority, then we are on the toboggan.

I find, after a more or less careful scrutiny, that if all the great benefactors of the human race were reincarnated, they could not constitute a majority in a ward election.

C. HALLORAN.

Another Vegetarian.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I read with much interest the letter headed "Reveries of a Vegetarian." I see loads upon loads of hogs, cattle, calves and sheep hauled past my place of employment, and feel quite sure that I would not eat any meat if I had to be my own butcher. As it is, one eats it unthinkingly and because one cannot get the proper substitute for meat served.

W. E. E.

Priest in the Senate.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The writer wishes to most heartily commend the Post-Dispatch for its editorial that appeared last Sunday entitled "Judge Priest's Fitness." It is a fortunate thing for the citizens of St. Louis that they have such a fearless, able and independent newspaper, alive to every vital question affecting the public welfare. How any intelligent man or woman who is at all familiar with Judge Priest's record could for one moment seriously consider him as a public servant is beyond comprehension. Judge Priest's whole career has been spent in serving great financial interests and corporations at the expense of the citizens of St. Louis. The interests of the corporations and financiers he has represented in and out of the courts have been antagonistic to the interests of the public. The opposition to the payment of the mill tax by the United Railways Co. is one of the most glaring instances of Judge Priest's antagonism to the public welfare. Is it conceivable that, if elected to the United States Senate, he will experience such a complete change of heart that the public welfare will come first with him? The leopard does not change his spots. Let us confine Judge Priest's activities to the courts, as far as is possible, so that there will be some check on him. The Supreme Court of the United States thwarted the Judge in the mill tax case, but what check would there be on him in the United States Senate? He would only be held back by his conscience, and it is to be feared that his long years of association with interests antagonistic to the public weal have somewhat blunted that moral safeguard. Members of Congress are public servants who should have the interests of the public solely at heart, and the public cannot afford to elect as a representative a man whose life has been devoted to gaining advantages for his clients at the expense of the public.

JAS. W. HENDERSON.

MR. HARDING ON THE WATERWAYS.

The plank in the Republican platform on waterways is meager in text, perfunctory in pledge and disappointing and almost meaningless. He offers no program of specific performance.

It was hoped that Mr. Harding would give amplified interpretation to this plank, as he did to a number of other planks. He has failed expectation in this respect.

If what he said showed some knowledge of the problem and appreciation of its importance, the brevity of the reference, in which it seems to be subordinated to all other subjects, might be excused. But his oral statement on the subject is no more satisfying than the written statement of the platform.

To the railroads he devotes a generous volume of discussion. "We have," he says, "no more pressing problem" than the one they present. He has no thought of compelling the railroads to work out their own salvation. He attributes their existing ills chiefly to Government policy and affirms that the Government must aid them and co-operate with them in the work of rehabilitation.

The railroads need billions, he declares, and they should be given said billions. "We believe," he adds, "in generous Federal co-operation in construction, linked with assurances of maintenance." That can not mean little. It may mean very much.

The crowding sentences totaling hundreds of words on railroads are followed by a single sentence of 45 words on water transport and in those 45 words the subject of both ocean shipping and of internal waterways is dismissed.

To be sure, "water transportation is inseparably linked with adequacy of facilities," as he says, but what is to be done to insure adequacy? Something of the same sort has been said by platforms and candidates for more than a third of a century without any advance toward adequacy.

Mr. Harding talks a good deal like a man who had lived all his life in a railroad environment and had yet to make the discovery of the waterways of the country in some exploring voyage of fascinating adventure. He has a comprehensive, detailed, splendidly munificent program for the railroads. He has no program at all for waterways. Obviously, the railroads are very near to his heart. If waterways have any place there he fails to indicate it.

If the attitude of Mr. Harding on the internal rivers is that of the typical Ohio man, who, knowing the limitations of the Ohio, thinks they must attach to the other rivers, and who, having obtained for the Ohio all the Government aid that was demanded and can be profitably used, is indifferent toward Government aid for the greater rivers, let us hope that that other Ohio nominee, Mr. Cox, will see his opportunity.

Let us hope that Mr. Cox will make a statement as explicit as his rival's is evasive, one as vigorous and wholehearted and gratifying as Mr. Harding's is languid, noncommittal and disappointing. Mr. Cox undoubtedly can greatly strengthen himself in the valley by a declaration so discerning and practical as to evidence an understanding of and even enthusiasm for the subject.

The leaders from whom the administrators of our national affairs in the future will be chosen must be made to comprehend the tense feeling of the people of the valley on water service. They see in the river highway a protection from the blight of transport insufficiency and chaos, the only agency of relief against the almost intolerable handicap of further heavy increases, already decreed, in rail charges.

SPEAK OUT, MR. FARRIS.

What will Frank Farris do with his charges of an attempt to buy the nomination for Governor on the part of the backers of Charles H. Mayer? He hints darkly of corrupt practices and nefarious deeds which he will expose if he is defeated.

But a public man, running for office, cannot indulge in threats to expose his opponents and stop at that. He must go the whole route. He must make known the facts in his possession, if he has any.

Judge Mayer, and Morton Jourdan, who has been denounced as Mayer's financial backer, should challenge Farris. They cannot avoid the issue he has raised. Nor can Farris evade the obligation to tell the facts upon which he bases his charges.

Speak out, Mr. Farris. Tell the people of Missouri all you know.

NICE SEA POODLE DOGS.

Though more than 1200 miles distant from Marblehead and Gloucester, we fancy we can hear the raucous cries of derision ascending from the shores of Cape Ann, all the way from Nahant to Rockport, over the announcement that the fifth and deciding international yacht race has been postponed because of "rough weather." And what is that, forsooth! Why, a 20-knot breeze, or thereabouts—the kind which prompts Cape Ann boys in knickerbockers to rush with whoops to their catboats and head right out to sea. In that gentle zephyr the Gloucester fisherman runs up another tops'l and dozes off lazily with one hand on the wheel.

We knew it, anyway. These fancy, over-rigged racing yachts are just shells of boats, designed to move in a tiny capful of wind which would scarcely cause the leaves of an oak to flutter. Time was when designers of yachts sought to link speed with stanchness. Speed alone is the goal, nowadays.

SAVE THE BENCH FROM THE BOSSES.

We have pointed out the menace to the Circuit bench in the effort of the Republican machine, under the leadership of Nat Goldstein and Hank Weeke, to control the local judiciary by nominating candidates of their own selection. Their efforts are particularly directed against Judges Hugo Grimm and Shields, both of proven capacity and integrity, who have been approved, with Claude O. Pearcy, by the Republican members of the bar association.

The machine bosses want the whole bench. They are not satisfied with the Circuit bench, which, of course, includes the Criminal Court, where boss influence is most valuable to the party organization. They want also to control the Court of Appeals of the St. Louis District. City Counselor Daues, who was the Mayor's adviser and guide in the agreement with the United Railways, by which that corporation got everything it wanted, after the defeat of the rotten compromise ordinance, and the city got nothing, is the organization candidate. He is running against Judge George D. Reynolds, the present incumbent, a Judge of demonstrated capacity and integrity, and the candidate approved by the bar association. The other valuable court asset to the machine bosses is the Court of Criminal Correction. For this office, where unswerving integrity is needed to prevent political skullduggery, the bar association recommends William M. Bates, a lawyer of good character, standing and capacity. The association's recommendations are safe guides for the voters.

Save the bench from the bosses. This is the first duty of good citizens. It is the special duty of Republicans in the primaries on account of the large Republican majority. See that none but good candidates for the bench, untainted by boss control, are nominated.

St. Louis has many advantages because of its central location, but the yacht race compels us to acknowledge that the three-mile ocean limit is a long distance from the Mississippi.

THE PEON IN TEXAS.

A great deal of fault has been found with the Wilson administration's Mexican policy. Some of the critics have been ferocious in their denunciation of our weak-kneed submission to the indignities and murderous wrongs committed against us. Should Mr. Harding be elected we are promised a swift and radical change in our attitude towards Mexico. Whether the promised change means war may be conjectural, but the rattling of the saber may be detected in the Chicago platform's Mexican utterance, and there is little doubt that the predatory interests which have long looked covetously upon Mexico are hoping, in the event of Republican victory, to compass their desire.

It cannot be denied that Mexico has been a difficult neighbor who has tried our patience sorely. But just where does the fault lie? Is it true, as our junkers assert, that the Mexican, generally speaking, is a savage, incapable of self-government, who must be ruled by the whip of a Diaz, or, since that sort of tyranny is no longer practicable, must be held in check by a protectorate which, in addition to establishing tranquillity below the Rio Grande, will yield gold and silver and gushing streams of oil? Or are those Americans right who believe that the Mexican people are competent to manage a democracy and to become desirable neighbors, if they are ever given a chance?

A writer in the Survey has found an answer to those questions in his study of the Mexican peon in Texas. He finds that those Mexicans are good workmen and thrifty folk. They send their children to school and those children, so the teachers say, are apt, studious and obedient. The study shows that, as soon as the Mexican grasps the fact that he has permanent employment, he applies for citizenship papers. During the war those Americanized Mexicans proved their patriotism finely—rather better, it is stated, than many Americans of other stock. Already the second generation of Mexican-Americans has arrived at manhood in Texas. In their number may be found the leaders of their own people. Further, many of those men and women of peon parentage are prominent in the community life of their cities and towns. They are typical, successful Americans.

The heartening conclusion of the investigator is that the Mexican peon "can be developed into as good a citizen as any race within our borders." When full allowance is made for optimism the verdict assuredly vindicates a policy of patience and sympathy with the Mexican's struggle for the chance to become a citizen in his own country, on his own land.

THE NEXT PRESIDENT—IF.

JUST A MINUTE

Written for the POST-DISPATCH
by Clark McAdams

KIPPERED KIPLING.

WHEN the last whisky is stolen,
And the night is reserved for rest
When the last boozer has perished,
And we're rid of the liquor pest—
We shall sigh; and gads, with a reason!
The wrinkles shall smooth in our brow;
And we won't be in peril of burglars,
The way we are shivering now.

We won't have to have a revolver
As big as a seventy-five;
We won't have to look on the yardman
As the most confirmed traitor alive.
The cook can have all her relations
Come in and go out as they choose,
And we won't have to fear them as allies
Of someone who'll come for our booze.

The innocent quake with the guilty;
They look, if you have it or not.
We live a continuous nightmare,
And we nightly expect to be shot.
The cops must be getting a nippy,
For we never, in spite of it all,
Hear the trimphant shouts of a copper
Who has caught a booze thief in the hall.

A plague upon both of their houses—
The wets and the terrible drys!
We want to forget all about it
And enjoy merely closing our eyes.
We want to go back to the old time—
Its restfulness, solace and bliss;
For we doubt whether even Bill Bryan
Would have cared to subject us to this.

Strangely enough, Senator Reed made no objection to the international yacht race, nor does he seem to see any danger to the republic in the Olympic games, which will be full of foreigners. We fail to follow the Senator exactly. If foreigners are a potential peril and we are lost the moment we join with them, we can't see why the policy of isolation should not apply in one thing as well as another. Nor do we see why the Senator did not make it appear that England had some advantage in the yacht race such as six yachts to our one, or that the nations with which we shall compete at Antwerp, being vastly inferior to us in morals and ethics, are not plotting to make fools of all those who are so ingenuous as to believe that they are going to deal fairly with us in the Olympian games. They are all knaves, every one. We are the only fair-dealing people—the only people unfull of deceit. How, then, can we join with them in anything, whether yacht races, foot races, leagues of nations or what you will? Wake up, Jamie! The foreigners are coming!

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

ROOT OF HIGH-COST EVIL.

From the World's Work.

IN transportation this country has lately wasted a vast amount of human effort. It takes a more human effort to get 40,000 cars through a congested freight yard than through one that is working smoothly. It takes more effort to move freight with worn-out and inadequate equipment than with proper motive power and cars. It takes a great deal more effort to take freight from the cars when halfway to its destination and bring it the rest of the way by motor truck than to have it go its normal course. Now such wastes afflict this country's transportation and they ripple all down the processes of production, for when factories can't get coal and retailers can't get goods and manufacturers can't get raw materials, the waste of human effort multiplies. The real cost of production is terribly high under these conditions. The consumer must pay by his efforts not only for what he gets but for the waste attendant to giving it to him. To rehabilitate the railroads needs vast sums of money. If the Government supplies the deficiency it means more bonds—more possible inflation. The problem of the high cost of living is not capable of a dramatic solution except by a panic. The task ahead is so to influence the action of the natural laws of trade by the wise handling of the Federal finances, the rehabilitation of the railroads, our foreign financial and commercial relations, etc., as to make deflation as little dramatic as possible and still achieve it.

THE POLISH REPUBLIC.

From the Nation.

POLAND is to have a receivership. Parliamentary government disappears, and power is vested in a "National Council of Defense" headed by three Generals—Pilsudski, Leszniewski and Haller—and Poland's aptly named Premier, Grabski. This is the outstanding news from the Eastern front, despite all the misleading military bulletins sent out from Warsaw, which report local victories against the Bolsheviki as "crushing defeats" and retreats as "consolidation of the lines." England and France have led one more border state to destruction. While thousands starved, the fields have been left untilled and a great army has been taken from production and driven far across the Polish line into Russia to fight Bolsheviks at the behest of French capital and British imperialism; and our own American War Department has abetted the crime by "selling" surplus army supplies to the Polish legions, on credit terms which made the sales a virtual gift. The Polish republic has not had a fair chance.

NEW CLEVELAND LABOR PLAN.

SAMUEL CROWTHER in World's Work.

THE settlement of disputes is the smallest part of the regulation of industry. Labor disputes are really an effect and not a cause; they come about when one side or the other stops doing business and looks around for some way of getting a little coin without work. So long as both sides keep at work they usually find that there is plenty of money to go around. And that is the great point in this Cleveland plan—the parties talk of work first and disputes second. But they have passed the talking stage; they are working and learning. It is not all smooth going—they have not all boarded the express for Utopia. But the majority are out to find the best ways to get at the right wages, the right standards, and the best means of production, and all are gaining their knowledge in a strictly Missourian spirit. Both the employers and the union men are learning a great deal every day in the week—as all good pupils should when they go to a school.

Events in the Social World

Younger Crowd in the Social World Are Much Interested in Debutante Possibilities for Fall of 1920—Some of Those Who Will "Come Out," and Others Who May Do So.

DEBUTANTE possibilities and presidential possibilities for the fall of 1920 are sharing the interest of the social world, with a strong leaning in the younger set towards the debutantes. The list of prospects is not as long as that of last year, when there was an unusually large number.

Among the girls who will "come out" this year are Miss Dorothy McBride, the youngest daughter of Mrs. William C. McBride of 29 Washington terrace, and the sister of Mrs. Lacy Love and Mrs. Ralph Morriss. She attended school in the East and is spending the summer in Virginia with her mother.

Miss Mary McKeen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin McKeen of 13 Hortense place, will also make her debut. She has recently come to St. Louis from Pittsburg with her parents to reside. St. Louis is their former home.

Miss Violet Stanhope of 4343 Lindell boulevard, who is in Europe this summer with her father, Russell Stanhope, is another possible debutante. She is visiting her brother and sister-in-law, Capt. and Mrs. Aubrey C. Stanhope, who live in France.

Miss Marie Clarkson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Palmer Clarkson of 2 Windermere place, and Miss Marceline Reyburn, daughter of Mrs. C. F. Sparks of 4529 Lindell boulevard, are two interesting prospects in the list. Miss Clarkson has been attending school in the East and had as her guest early in the summer one of her classmates, Miss Mildred Leonard of Boston. She is at Arcadia for the late summer with her parents. Miss Reyburn attended school in the East also, after having attended Mary Institute.

Miss Elizabeth Ballard, another Mary Institute girl, will make her debut this year. She is the daughter of Mrs. John Ballard of 5388 Waterman avenue.

Miss Kathryn R. Farrar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Farrar of Goodfellow and Emma avenues, and Miss Mary Denman Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McL. Clark of 15 Hortense place, are also debutante possibilities.

Miss Annette O'Reilly, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert J. O'Reilly of 27 Washington terrace, and a sister of Mrs. Herbert Jones of 470 Lake avenue, may be one of the debutantes of the next season. She will depart soon with her aunt, Miss Anne Martin for Douglas, Mich., where there is a large colony of St. Louisans.

Miss Martha Newman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Louis E. Newman of 5881 Waterman avenue is in Kansas City visiting her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Moulton Green. Miss Newman will be away until September.

The marriage of Miss Carolyn Bremer Mellon and James Bell Bergs was solemnized July 17 at the country home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Richardson Sayen, Hamilton Square, New Jersey. Dr. Emmons of the First Presbyterian Church of Trenton, officiated. A wedding breakfast for the immediate families followed the ceremony after which the couple departed for an extended trip to Japan.

The bride is the daughter of the late William Alexander Mellon of Philadelphia and a sister of Mrs. Breckenridge Jones Jr., of 5854 Cates avenue. Mr. Bergs is the grandson of James W. Bell of 5045 Westminster place. He is a member of the Racquet and St. Louis Country clubs.

Miss Lucile Benoist, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Benoist of 4414 McPherson avenue, is at Douglass, Mich., for the remainder of the summer.

The engagement of Miss May Stewart, daughter of Mrs. Henry P. Stewart of Kansas City, and Dalton Louis Kinsella was announced last week in Kansas City. Miss Stewart is a sister of Mrs. Edward S. Murphy of the Washington Hotel. She attended the Sacred Heart Convent at Maryville. Mr. Kinsella is the son of Mrs. William J. Kinsella of 4422 Lindell boulevard.

The wedding will probably take place in the fall.

Miss Leslie Price of 26 King's highway departed last week with her father, T. E. Price, and her sister, Miss Virginia Price, for Broadmoor, Colorado Springs, to be gone until fall.

The marriage of Miss Grace Niccolls of 4902 Argyle place and Thomas Russell Akin was solemnized yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock at the home of the bride. The Rev. Dr. Euwer of the Second Presbyterian Church performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate relatives.

The bride is the daughter of the late Rev. and Mrs. Samuel J. Niccolls. She is the sister of Mrs. Edward M. Samuel of Chicago, who, with her two sons, was here for the wedding. The couple will spend their honeymoon touring in the East and will be at home after Sept. 1 at the Akin home, 5340 Waterman avenue.

The marriage of Miss Annelle Balson, daughter of Mrs. Daisy Balson of 7134 Pershing avenue, and Warren Henderson Smith of Youngstown, O., son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Smith of 6021 Washington boulevard, will take place on Aug. 4 at the Maple Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church.

Waste Energy

Old industries tend to consolidate. Keen competition operating over a period of years eliminates the weak, thus promoting the growth and development of the competent.

The manufacturing of Pianos and Players is no exception to this general rule.

The production of worthy instruments in each class from the highest priced to the most moderate is in the hands of a comparatively few concerns, whose products have stood the acid test of years of service.

Conroy's, because of their enormous sales volume and eminent reputation among the trade and customers alike, have been accorded exclusive representation by these manufacturers for 18 of the finest makes of American Pianos and Players, including the world famous in the

Knabe, Haines Bros. and Marshall & Wendell Pianos

It is therefore a waste of energy to shop around when looking for a reliable Piano or Player, as Conroy's which is the largest exclusive Piano and Player institution in America, has sole representation for the best instruments in each class that are made.

This is the reason why discriminating buyers purchase from Conroy's as a matter of course, selecting one of Conroy's celebrated time-proven instruments rather than unknown makes that have yet to establish their merit.

APPEAL TO TERMINAL FORCES

President Miller Asks Employes to Try to Improve Service.

Employes of the Terminal Railroad Association and affiliated lines have been requested to render more efficient service in return for the wage increases recently awarded by the United States Railway Labor Board.

It is pointed out in a circular letter addressed to the employes yesterday by Henry Miller, president that if the new wage standard is to endure it must be equaled by relatively improved service, cheerfully and courteously given.

"Patrons will not begrudge what they pay if furnished satisfactory transportation," the letter stated. "This is no easy task, with the railroads overloaded, and we should do our utmost to improve both the quality and quantity of the service."

Y. M. C. A. DORMITORIES FILLED

Central Y. M. C. A., Grand and Franklin avenues, with a membership of 3208, is the largest department of the association in the city. The boys' department of North Side "Y," with 824 members, leads the Central boys' department, which has 577, and Pine Street with 744 boys.

GRAPHIC BOOK ON WAR IS A PLEA FOR WORLD PEACE

if indeed, their jokes were as ghastly as those of the American soldiers. The Bantams, the British Thirty-fifth Division, was made up of undersized men, all volunteers, between 4 feet 6 and 5 feet.

A Bantam died and a comrade came to see the corpse.

"Shut ze door ven you come out," said the old woman of his billet. "Fermes le porte, mon vieux."

The living Bantam went to see the dead one, and came downstairs much moved by grief.

"I've seed poor Bill," he said.

"As-tu ferme la porte?" said the woman anxiously.

The Bantam wondered at the anxious inquiry; asked the reason of it.

"C'est a cause du chat!" said the old woman. "Ze cat, Monsieur. 'E 'ave' ad you friend in the passage tree time already today. Trois fois!"

Women Hovered Under Guns.

The slattern women who hovered in the dim side streets of Amiens and other shell-wrecked towns, and plied their ancient calling through the years of bombardment, are made to appear one of the elements of war. He says:

"Aren't you afraid of this place?" I asked one of them in Bully-Grenay. "You might be killed any minute."

She shrugged her shoulders.

"Je m'en fiche de la mort!" ("I don't care a damn about death.")

I had the same answer from other girls in other places.

He relates this curious incident, showing the growth of thought at times when one would expect all mental activity to be dead. It was narrated throughout the army in the winter of 1915 and led to curious conversations in dugouts and billets.

Above a German front-line trench appeared a plank on which, in big letters, was scrawled these words:

"The English are fools."

"Not such fools as all that!" said a Sergeant, and in a few minutes the plank was smashed to splinters by rifle fire.

Another plank appeared with other words:

"The French are fools."

Loyalty to our allies caused the destruction of that board.

A third plank was put up:

"We're all fools. Let's all go home."

That board was also shot to pieces, but the message caused some laughter and the men repeating it, said: "There's a deal of truth in those words. Why should this war go on? What's it all about? Let the old men who made this war come and fight it out among themselves at Hooge. The fighting men have no real quarrel with one another. We all want to go home to our wives and our work."

Old Plan Deaths of Young.

Gibbs is deeply impressed by the fact that older men of the staff plan battles, and younger men go forth and fight them. The thing that gravels him is that the younger men die in the mud and filth but the older men live to plan other deaths for other young and lusty men.

"G. H. Q. lived * * * in a world of its own, rose colored, remote from the ugly things of war. They had heard of the trenches, yes, but as the West End hears of the East End—a nasty place where common people live. Occasionally they visited the trenches as society folk go slumming, and came back proud of having seen a shell burst, having braved the lice and dirt."

He is lacking in respect and admiration for great Generals. In the course of the war, he gazed unmoved upon Generals of all grades, Brigadier, Major, Lieutenant and full Generals, and upon Field Marshals, and he says that until Foch took supreme command, no great soldier, judged by old-time standards, appeared upon the Western front.

Held on to Useless Cavalry.

The manner in which the close inner corporation which controlled the British army held on to its fetiches and charms seems pathetic now, but it must have been galling to the Australians and Canadians who cared nothing for caste or precedent, and who wanted to procede in a common-sense way to the Advance Fall Fashions in Sonnenfeld Millinery

We present on Monday a very comprehensive variety. It will prove interesting to the vacationist and to the woman who is "tired" of her present Summer hat.

The styles combine the usual Sonnenfeld exclusiveness with very low pricing—inducements that have made this store the largest millinery institution in St. Louis.

Feather Hats are shown in many diversities, beginning as low as $5, and up to $25.

Of feathers effectively combined with hackle, ostrich, etc.

Duvetyne Turbans, Sailors and Novelties are likewise in evidence. In color tones of copper, jade, henna, navy, chow, and combinations.

winning of the war. Gibbs shows many times the advantage of bringing a clear civilian mind to the task set for a commander. Nearly all through the war, the British staff kept cavalry ready, because they were cavalry officers, and it had always been done. It was the same spirit which inspires some publications to have their type set by hand, because it was done that way in the good old days.

The cavalry caste controlled the British army just as completely as it controlled and still controls our army. Gibbs says they seemed to regard the war as their special prerogative.

The moral for us is that the American army is modeled directly upon the British, and the pomp and pride of caste finds nowhere a fuller flower than in the cavalry of the United States army.

Gibbs says:

Our Staff College had been hopelessly inefficient in its system of training, if I am justified in forming such an opinion from specimens produced by it, who had the brains of canaries and the manners of Potsdam. There was also a close corporation among the officers of the regular army, so that they took the lion's share of staff appointments, thus keeping out brilliant young men of the new armies, whose brain power, to say the least of it, was on a higher plane than that of the Sandhurst standard. Here and there, where the unprofessional soldier obtained the chance of high command or staff authority, he proved the value of the business mind applied to war, and this was seen very clearly—blindingly—in the able genarlship of the Australian corps, in which the commanders like Gens. Hobbs, Monash and others, were men in civil life before the war.

Argument Against Discipline.

His adroit arugment against the iron discipline of armies pervades the whole book, and it is, I think, part of his war against War, since none knows better than he that if men would not permit themselves to be bound by the iron discipline, would not submit themselves to the rule of another and commit themselves, body, soul and mind to the keeping of their superior officers, there could be no more war. He does it well, showing the ape-like appearance of vast numbers of men eternally crooking their elbows in salute to some soft-pated youth who happened to get a better job than they did. The wornout argument that the salute is to the uniform, an excuse designed for simple minded soldiers, he passes as unworthy of comment. He points to the Australians, magnificent soldiers with a weakness for strong language, who never saluted anybody unless they happened to like him personally. "I feel very proud tonight," a British officer wrote in his diary. "I was saluted by an Australian soldier today."

He shows how, at the end, the war spirit of Germany turned upon itself and stung itself to death, like a snake. The disregard of the home people, shown equally in all armies by the imposition of a censorship which forbade the transmission of the news the people wanted of their own men at the front, and later, when the German morale began to fail, of the continuing of the callous brutal treatment of the soldier by the officer, drawing the lines of discipline more rigidly, until the smouldering resentment flamed into revolution.

Only Pale Picture of Suffering.

The occasional charge that reports of suffering at the front were exaggerated makes Gibbs mad. He contends, with justice, that nothing which has been written so far is more than a pale picture of the truth.

In millions of words during the years of war, I recorded the bravery of our troops on the western front, their patience, their cheerfulness, suffering and agony; yet

Furs Made to Order

St. Louis Kansas City Detroit
Cleveland Cincinnati

Beginning MONDAY—July 26th—The Great Annual Fur Event—

August Sale of Furs

NOTE!

Charge purchases made during this sale will be posted on September accounts, payable in October.

This great Annual Event is more than a sale—it is an institution—a Fashion Exposition presenting the modes of the coming season—as well as a matchless money-saving occasion.

The broad manner in which this event has been planned and carried out is shown by the fact that this is the largest collection and the finest Furs we have ever assembled. It is an authentic review of the new 1920-21 modes in quality Furs of rare beauty.

We positively believe these special August Sale Prices to be the lowest that will prevail this season. Under-production, due to strikes in the Fur industry (all furriers, designers and cutters in New York struck two months ago and are still out) and the prospect of greatly increased labor costs, are sending prices higher and higher.

The alertness of our buying organization is proven by the fact that Furs for all of the Kline stores were purchased before the strike when prices were at the lowest point.

NOTE!

Furs purchased during this sale will be stored free of charge until you wish delivery made this Fall.

A reasonable deposit will hold your selection for later delivery.

with all these words describing day by day the incidents of their lives in war, I did not exaggerate the splendor of their stoic spirit or the measure of their sacrifice. The heroes of mythology were but paltry figures compared with those who, in the great war, went forward to the roaring devils of modern gunfire, dwelled amid high explosives more dreadful than dragons, breathed in the fumes of poison gas more foul than the breath of Medusa, watched and slept among mine craters which upheaved the hell fire of Pluto, and defied thunderbolts more certain in death-dealing blows than those of Jove.

In one of my own dispatches from France, when describing a scene just back of the battleline, I told of French soldiers cutting grain in fields over which the enemy was firing at targets further back and said that there was many a scythe swinging under the arc of the big shells. A cautious editor eliminated it, fearing doubtless that it would seem unbelievable to the reader. At another time, in telling of an air raid in force over a city, I told of seeing an airplane, delicate and high, float across the face of the full moon. That also was eliminated, probably as a tax to the reader's credulity. I suspect that Gibbs must have had the same experiences with his editors, for he takes occasion to mention both those incidents in this book.

Book That Princes Should Read.

Gibbs has made a book which should be read by all princes everywhere who sometimes meditate of forward actions which would benefit

Use Cocoanut Oil for Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

their states; by members of congresses and parliaments whose rolling sentences dwell on the valiance of men in battle, and upon the fierce and glorious thrill of war; by journalists who fancy themselves the trumpets which sing of fame; by poets who hope their rolling numbers will recall the grumble of the guns; by business men whose wives are bright with diamonds bought with war profits. It should be read by all boys and young men who want to be soldiers, and then they never will be. It most surely should be read by Senators Johnson and Reed and all opponents of the League of Nations.

A manufacturer who was sentenced to serve seven years in prison for defrauding the American Government on a rain coat contract, has just gone on a trip to Europe with the consent of the Department of Justice. Hundreds of our men lie dead in France through that man's fraud, and scores of thousands of men shivered in the dreary endless rain of the French autumn because of the failure of his flimsy rainscoats. I hope that the only book he has to read on this voyage is "Now It Can Be Told."

RANDOM OBSERVATIONS ON THE CONDITIONS IN GERMANY TODAY

is so little traffic as compared with former years that they are not missed.

The orgy of spending which followed the signing of the armistice has long since ended. The stores are practically deserted, for the simple reason that few people have any money to buy more than the bare necessities of life.

$1000 for a New Suit.

A suit of clothes costs from 3000 to 4000 marks—$75 to $100 at the present rate of exchange. For a Berliner, however, 4000 marks is equivalent to paying $1000 for a new suit.

Shoes range in price from 400 to 800 marks—the cheaper ones very hard to find and still more difficult to wear. Before the war 40 marks would have bought an excellent pair of shoes in the best shops. In fact, the cost of clothing and shoes has increased more than tenfold.

Nearly everyone wants to come to America. The first day passports are issued many people are going to be crushed in the rush.

Such is Berlin in the summer of 1920.

There are two Germanys today, industrial Germany, bankrupt and without hope because two-thirds of its iron and one-third of its coal have been taken by the allies; and agricultural Germany, as smiling and prosperous as before the war.

The crops throughout the former empire are the best in many years. But the peasants are unwilling to be dictated to by the Socialist elements that control the cities. In South Germany, where the peasants are Catholic, they absolutely refuse to feed the cities that are dominated by the radicals. If its producers of foodstuffs will starve out the communists, as the peasants did in Hungary, Germany will be freed from the Bolshevist peril.

The peasants, generally speaking, are monarchists. In Bavaria the monarchy may be established within a few months. King Ludwig has returned to Munich and a militarist "putsch" is predicted by everyone there.

Two hundred radicals terrorized the big city of Dusseldorf for nearly two weeks last month. The entire business of the city was paralyzed by strikes under their direction, until they were driven out of the district. The Ebert Government is too weak to prevent repetitions of these disorders, and that is why it must fail.

A group of militarists recently murdered a nephew of Maximilian Harden, the famous editor of Die Zukunft, whose attacks on the military party have made him hated and feared throughout the former empire. Harden is a Jew and he told the writer that he may be the next victim of the militarists, who are anti-Semitic.

When the writer visited Harden at his home in Grunewald on the outskirts of Berlin, the famous editor was playing with his dog.

"Here, Ebert," he called to the little animal, "come and give the American journalist your views," adding, "My dog knows a great deal more than President Ebert, but it is very difficult to make him talk for publication."

New Party Is Needed.

Harden believes a new party will have to be formed to save the German Republic, as none of the existing parties (there are seven important ones) can carry an election. He is almost as bitter against the Ebert Government as he is against the militarists.

An Anecdote About Hindenburg

Gen. von Ludendorff is often seen around Berlin in civilian clothes. He frequently drops in at the Hotel Adlon, where he lived for several months following the armistice.

As he passed the entrance to the bar on one of these visits, one of the American correspondents caught sight of him and hailed him with a very undignified "Herr General, one moment."

The former head of the German military machine stopped in his career and entered the bar, where in all seriousness the American correspondent explained that the writer had come to Berlin to find out who had won the war.

"Did you read my book?" asked the old commander.

"Of course," replied the correspondent, adding that everyone in America had read it.

"Then you didn't need to come to Berlin to ask the question," he replied as he turned on his heel and walked out.

* * * * *

Baltic Troops Still Mobilized.

The Baltic troops which occupied Berlin during the Kapp "putsch" are still mobilized in defiance of the Ebert Government. There are many military units in the outlaw situation, and occasionally they parade down Unter den Linden, with military bands playing and Prussian flags flying, in defiance of the Government.

Armored automobiles and tanks are sent through the city from time to time by these military outlaws, all of which does not add to the Former Kaiser's Sons Frequently Seen.

It is generally admitted that 1,500,000 men are still under arms in Germany.

Two of the Kaiser's sons are often seen in the lobby of the Adlon. One of them is learning the banking business while another has taken up scientific farming. Prince Joachim, who committed suicide the other day, was in the automobile business for a few months, but did not make a success of it.

The rumor that Prof. Max Reinhardt is coming to America is without foundation. His new theatrical interests will keep him in Berlin for a long tme to come—and besides, he cannot obtain a passport.

Maximilian Hardin has been approached to make a lecture tour in America, but he told the writer that he is almost certain that America does not want to hear what any German has to say at the present time.

Cologne is the most flourishing city in Germany today, and the most expensive. Improved business conditions always follow the British army, and Cologne is the headquarters of the army of occupation.

Conditions in all of the occupied districts are in striking contrast to the country beyond the Rhine, for their foreign trade is growing and law and order prevails.

There is one American mandate in Germany—the American correspondents hold a mandate over the Adlon bar.

It doesn't matter what the people in Great Britain or France think about America's part in the war. The Germans know we won, and, what is more, they admit it.

Potsdam is filled with soldiers and former officers, many of whom are living in the royal palaces, waiting for better days.

Everybody hopes some kind of a miracle will take place that will put Germany on her feet. But after a month in Germany, I am more than ever convinced that the age of miracles is past.

Try This If You Have Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

LOCAL INDORSES 14 PROPOSALS OF NATIONAL C. OF C.

Decision of Board of Directors Unanimous After Referendum Shows Majority of Members in Favor.

The Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday voted unanimously to indorse 14 proposals submitted by the United States Chamber of Commerce, and bearing on the relations between employers and employes. The proposals were submitted by referendum vote to the members of the local Chamber, and fewer than 600 votes were cast on them, but of these, a heavy majority favored all the proposals. On most of the proposals the vote was 585 to 589 affirmative and only 3 to 5 negative.

On a proposal that strikes of employes of public service corporations should be prohibited by law, the vote was 550 to 20. On a proposal for official strike adjustment tribunals, with the power to make decisions binding on both sides, the vote was 561 to 11. A vote of 569 to 19 was cast on a proposal that, in negotiations between representatives of employers and employes, either side should have the right to insist that the representatives of the other side should not be chosen by, or in any way represent, any outside group or interest. This would appear to mean that union officials, not employes of the company involved, and representatives of employers' associations, could be debarred from the negotiations.

The other proposals, on which the vote ran 585 or more to 6 or less, were: Right of collective contracting; right of open-shop operation; right of voluntary association; state authority and legal responsibility to apply equally to organizations of employers and employes; restriction of production opposed; employers' duty to provide proper working conditions and continuous employment affirmed; length of working day should be determined by maximum output consistent with well-being of workers; community of interest between employer and employe affirmed; public employes have right to combine for welfare, but not to prevent or impair operation of government; state regulation of public utilities should extend to employes, so far as needed to insure adequate and continuous service.

The by-laws of the Chamber of Commerce of St. Louis provide that a referendum vote shall be binding on the organization if one-third of the membership votes on it, and that otherwise the decision shall be reached by the directors. A one-third vote of the present membership would have been about 1700.

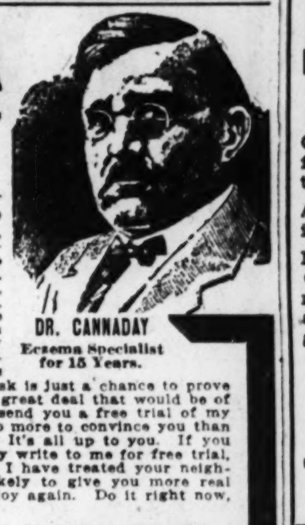
ECZEMA

Also Called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, Etc.



DR. CANNADAY
Eczema Specialist for 15 Years.

For fifteen years I have been treating one disease alone, ECZEMA. I have handled over one million cases. I do not pretend to know it all, but I am convinced the disease is due to an excess of acid in the blood, and closely related to rheumatism and cancer. This acid must be removed.

Eczema is called by some people Itch, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Weeping Skin, etc. I am fully convinced Eczema is a curable disease, and when I say it can be cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and not merely patched up for a while to return worse than before. It makes no difference what other doctors have told you, or what all you have tried, all I ask is just a chance to prove to you that this vast experience has taught me a great deal that would be of help to you. If you will write me today I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will do more to convince you than I or anyone else could in a month's preaching. It's all up to you. If you suffer any more with eczema and refuse to merely write to me for free trial, just blame yourself. No matter where you live, I have treated your neighbors. Merely dropping me a postal today is likely to give you more real comfort in a week than you ever expected to enjoy again. Do it right now, your very life may be at stake.

August Fur Sale and why

A FUR SALE in Summer seems strange to many folks. They think it odd to buy furs "out of season," forgetting that the season of usefulness need not govern the period of purchase.

"When to Buy?" has no relation with "When to Wear?" Practical economy is the governing factor.

Our stock is purchased far in advance of the season. In no other way can our customers be given the benefit of choice selections from a large assortment in styles and pieces.

Selling in advance of the season greatly reduces the cost of carrying goods in stock and permits a decided saving to our customers. Reducing prices during inactive sales periods is a distinct benefit to all.

The prevailing prices at our August Fur Sale is ample evidence of this fact. Bargains are available now that will be out of the question this Fall and Winter.

The discriminating shopper will make no mistake in looking at our wonderful display of choice pieces in the latest styles of the moment.

ELIAS HOUSER FALLS 30 FEET TO DEATH

Brother of Late Publisher Killed in Drop From City Hospital Window.

Elias Houser, 67 years old, whose brother, the late Daniel M. Houser, formerly was proprietor of the Globe-Democrat, fell from a second-story window of the city hospital at 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning and was killed. He had been at the hospital since July 17, suffering from heart trouble. He had previously been making his home at the Laclede Hotel Annex, Broadway and Chestnut streets, which was once the old Houser Building.

A hospital attendant saw Houser standing on a radiator which is level with the sill of a large window, with the window screen lying on the floor. The attendant spoke to Houser, who just then plunged through the window to the ground, a distance of 30 feet. He was picked up dead.

Houser was reticent about his affairs when he entered the hospital but gave the name of Douglas Houser of 4914 Argyle place, a member of the family and official of the Globe-Democrat as the person to be notified in emergency. Relatives had been expected to send for Houser July 19, but they failed to come and he decided to remain at the city institution.

Dr. Rolla Henry, manager of the hospital, said that heart trouble sometimes makes breathing difficult and that Houser might have removed the screen to get more air. An official report said that he may have had cardiac insanity, induced by his disease. It had recently been suggested that he be placed in an observation ward, but on his condition improving this was not done.

The death is the second tragedy in the Houser family. On May 13, 1907, Mrs. Daniel M. Houser shot herself at her home, 4545 West Pine boulevard and died a short time later. She was formerly Miss Agnes Barlow.

Elias Houser is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Sarah Simmons of O'Fallon, Ill., Mrs. Jane McFalland of Kansas City and Mrs. Angelica Houser of Los Angeles. A brother, C. L. Houser, also survives.

The funeral will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Burial will be in Shiloh Cemetery, O'Fallon, Ill., with services by Rev. Dr. Woodlock of that city.

FORTUNE TELLER ADVISES MAN WHERE TO FIND STOLEN AUTO

LEXINGTON, Ky., July 24.—An automobile belonging to L. T. Watson was stolen at Paris, Ky., 18 miles north of here, recently. After police had exhausted their resources in endeavor to locate it, and advertisements in newspapers had failed, Watson consulted a fortune teller, who told him to return home and that his machine would be found next morning near his home at daylight.

As forecast, the machine was found next morning, within two blocks of his home.

MARKETERIA SYSTEM

212 N. 7th St.

TUESDAY, JULY 27, 9 A. M.

AT last the army of mechanics have completed the Self-Serve Marketeria. This will be the biggest event that has occurred in St. Louis this year. Hundreds of prominent business men and eager women and children have been phoning us daily as to when they could get their supply of quality meats. Now we are ready, and every kind of cut of beef, pork, mutton—all strictly the HIGHEST GRADE of Government-inspected meat—can be selected in a second of time and the LOW COST will amaze you. Don't fail to be on hand for the big opening bargains. Don't be afraid of the crowd—the self-serve system will allow 5000 people to be handled without discomfort.

The New System of Selling Fresh Meat

As you enter you will see signs reading "Beef," "Pork," "Mutton," etc., over each section. These sections consist of separate glass-top refrigerators. Inside of each you see displayed a sample of the cut you wish to purchase. Alongside of the sample are identically the same cuts (guaranteed). These are kept ice cold and wrapped in waxed paper with outside separate envelope. On this outside wrapper the PRICE of the piece of meat is marked. This meat you take to the "checker," you pay for it, and "on your way." Your purchase will keep cold and fresh for a long time on the hottest day. This is especially valuable to those who live in the country.

Why Marketeria Sells for Less

Because one electric saw and one expert butcher does the work of 10 men. Because little help is required. Fullworth buys more meat and pays spot cash, also sells for cash. (There is a savng of 10% to 20% from the credit plan.) You should buy at the Marketeria as the meat is untouched by hands after it leaves the master butcher and young lady wrapper. See it cut up in the front window. Send for a book telling all about this wonderful new system, but come in yourself if possible next Tuesday and tell your neighbors about it.

$50.00 given away to school children who make the most words from our name and give best reasons for trading at Marketeria. Contest closes Aug. 1.

PART TWO. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, JULY 25, 1920. PAGES 1—12B.

CHANGU By Joseph Hergesheimer

IT WAS unmixed chance that recalled, at the only junction possible with my passage north, the melancholy fact that Abner Shapley was living in Louisiana. This was depressing, both because sickness had forced him to move away from the Quaker community in Pennsylvania, where he was rooted by every association and belief, and for the reason that in the South Abner must be supremely out of keeping with the modes of life and thought. One of the veiled rapid decisions that defy common sense carried me, by a change of trains very much for the worse, in a rambling manner through the dark toward Varney, Shapley's forced place of retreat, while I found entertainment in the thought of him living in a parish.

I had telegraphed, and when, at last, Varney was reached, Abner was waiting on the station platform in the clear, thin light of early morning. It was evident, however, that physically Louisiana had proved beneficial—he was quite fat again, and his face, boyish and placid at 50, had the bright glow of a summer apple. In his plain clothes, without buttons, his rotundity and color, he was even a greater contrast to the life about him than I had expected. The native whites at the station were rather thin than not, sallow, with black eyes somnolent or momentarily stirred by a glittering sultry vision; while Abner, whose eyes were calmly blue, preserved the crispness of frost in his voice and movements.

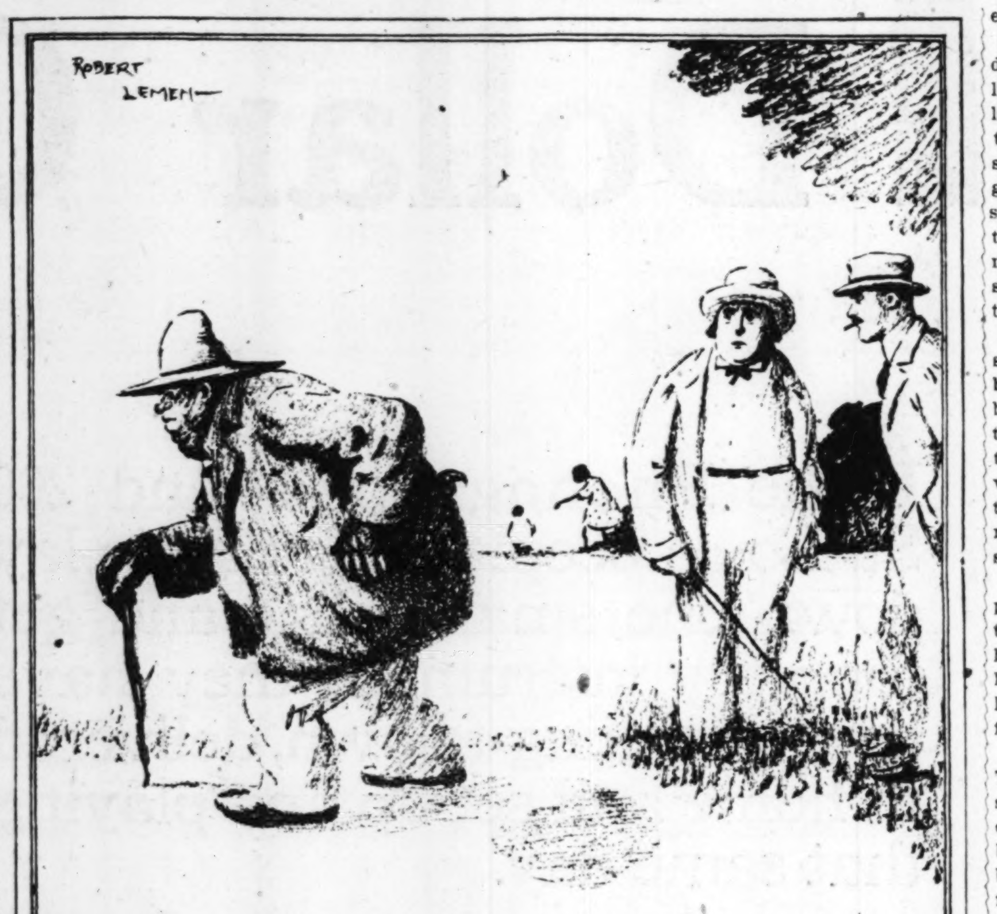
"This was very kind of thee," he said, my heavy bag in his strong grip. "With thy valise it would be better to take a hack. Ordinarily I walk."

But this information was needless. I knew Abner, I knew my own town, and I could see the dejection that settled over him at the thought of paying the driver. We rattled, in a decrepit single phaeton, through the ugliest streets imaginable, past a gloomy square with dark trees and broken iron benches, along a raw, wide chasm that held a yellow river perhaps 50 feet below, out over a road between leaden gray fields to a crossing with a closely wooded stream and a number of small houses, one of which was spectacular in fresh, orderly paint.

"Here we are," he announced cheerfully, recovering from a small disbursement, "and Lucy, I can see, has breakfast for us."

The bare, contracted hall and sparely furnished room to which he conducted me were immaculately, meticulously clean, and, in answer to my surprise at the servant's efficiency, he admitted in a rueful tone that he had had to wash the house himself. "Although she is improving every day," he continued earnestly, at the breakfast table. "If the negro is shiftless, it's because he sees shiftlessness everywhere. The whites"—— He hesitated and sighed. "Yet warmer hearts don't exist. Really, they have been a lesson to me in humanity. At the same time thee must realize I can't approve of them. They have passionate evil humors, and hardly regard it a sin to take fellow lives. The Lord will not hold them guiltless. But their treatment of the negro!" His lips tightened and his blue Northern gaze was frigid.

Lucy, I saw, scarcely ever withdrew a wondering speculation from her employer. She was absolutely black, with a flattened African countenance, while her young body was a solid monument of nature's perfected intention. Her dress included such striking and incongruous articles as a battered, soft, gray masculine hat and heelless red morocco slippers that dragged over the floor as she waited on the table in an abrupt, slovenly manner and replied to Abner in a tone not entirely innocent of impertinence.



"That unfortunate creature," Abner told me, "is regarded with a superstitious and wicked awe."

This, however, was inevitable, the result of a shared misconception; but equally I knew there would be very little actual imposition on a celebrated Quaker frugality. "Take this girl, Lucy," Abner Shapley began appositely, then interrupted himself. "I'd thank thee not to smoke. Now, Lucy—she is entirely the result of example. If I may say so without undue pride, I comprehend her thoroughly. But, indeed, that is not difficult; she is as simple and transparent as a child"——

"Or a savage," I added.

Abner was at once opposed to me. "That is a wicked thought," he asserted. "I had expected more enlightenment from the son of thy father. Lucy is a daughter of God. The color of the skin is nothing but a provision of nature to protect the body from the tropical suns. Her soul is all that should concern us, and I have found it wonderfully responsive to patience and grace.

"The negro is admittedly religious, perhaps too impressionable; but for that very reason easier to bring into the way of righteousness." He became very grave. "Friend, my affliction and journeying here were a mission. What, in my blindness, I lamented was a provision of the Almighty." Abner gazed at me with the steadiness of conviction, of faith, that is the greatest good procurable on earth. "I am to fetch some holiness to the negroes of this place"

My long admiration, even affection, for him was shadowed by a swift doubt, and the desire to uphold his faith led me to the verge of brutal frankness. "You mustn't hope for much," I told him. "Helping the negro is not so simple as you think. It will be done, of course, but it's a problem for science and not sentiment."

He regarded me with a placid pity, and in his next words made it appear that I was in danger of being victimized by current skepticisms. "Such science," he corrected me, "is but a trace of the wisdom of the Lord. As I said before, I have been sent here. What I can accomplish is small, if anything heavenly is small, and I have begun with Lucy. A negro lives down the road. Their moral sense," he admitted, "is deplorable; many of the births are out of wedlock. However, I am encouraging Lucy and Zachary—he's called Zebra, but I couldn't support that—to live differently. At first they had no self-respect and I allowed them to sit in my front room." I demanded:

"What do your neighbors say?"

"It doesn't concern them," he answered stubbornly. "True, they have remonstrated, and the rougher element were even threatening; but our Father's ways are not at the beck and call of men." He rose serenely. "Shall we go out on the porch? an air seems to be stirring."

Following his full, neat back, I was suddenly overwhelmed by the somber strangeness of the land to which the accident of sickness, interpreted by Abner as the will of God, had carried him.

It was late March and already, through the day, oppressive in a diffused, enervating sunlight. The sandy rutted road before the house lay parallel to the stream choked with foliage; the somber water oaks folded in training gray shawls of Spanish moss, the forbidding undergrowth, the pale spongy cypress with bared roots, snakelike in gumbo mud, made a tragic contrast to the remembered open green hills, the bright maples and hollows flushed with coral peach blossoms, white with the drifting petals of cherry trees, of Abner Shapley's home.

Some black children, half naked, their eyeballs startlingly white, were playing with soft shouts by the road, and my companion indicated them benevolently. "Who could keep from liking them?" he demanded. It would be difficult, certainly, to quarrel with him there; the children were appealing, alert and innocent and happy. But their gayety was abruptly extinguished by a negro who advanced ponderously with the assistance of a thick, carved stick.

He was amazingly fat, a pendulous body in a precariously strained garb, with a drooping face the color of wood ashes. It was difficult to see his eyes—the merest bloodshot glimmer, his lips, like stale meat, rolled with a soundless mutter at his arduous progress, while he breathed in painfully sharp explosive breaths.

Abner leaned forward and called: "Homer Tybo, I trust to find thee better today." The swaying bulk paused and a resonant, unctuous, deferential voice replied that Homer Tybo was barely able to walk. The misery was powerful bad. Again addressed to his progress, he lifted a foot, placed it ahead of the other, and painfully resumed his course.

"That unfortunate creature," Abner told me, "is regarded with a superstitious and wicked awe. Not only by the negroes. I have heard presumably intelligent whites declare that he is a . . . some Godless nonsense I can't remember. It is better, thee recalls, to have a millstone hung about the neck than to offend"—he pointed toward the children, once more engaged in eager play. "They are all, young and old, like that," he concluded; "of such is not the kingdom made?"

The heat became almost palpable, like a swimming of the sight; the passersby were infrequent, noiseless in the muffling sand, and an insidious drowsiness enveloped me, from which I was roused by the appearance, from the back of the house, of a small colored man, whose pigmentation was faintly streaked by a trace of other blood. He was raggedly clad and wore, fastened by a shining brass button, a dingy starched collar unattached to any shirt. His manner expressed a wistful humility with, at the same time, shrewdly appraising glances, and a subconscious sense of opportune dramatic values.

"Morning, gentlemen," he saluted us. "This is a powerful fine day for your good healths."

"God morning, Zachary," Abner replied.

A deprecating smile was turned to me with the explanation: "My name's Zebra, that's what it is, but Zebra's not high-toney enough for the Gen'ral."

"I've told you before not to give me a military title," the other, annoyed, instructed him. "I am Abner Shapley."

Zebra—privately I liked this better than Zachary—was painfully disconcerted. He wrinkled a troubled forehead, and, from a largely inarticulate murmuring, I gathered that he had no intention of inviting disaster by informally naming a white gentleman. After a profound study, a stumbling in the obfuscation of his mind, he triumphantly suggested the alternative of Judge. This, with a sigh, Abner allowed. Then Zebra, immensely cheered, after a politely veiled inspection of my clothes, proposed a responsibility for my appearance.

"The Judge," he continued, with tremendous emphasis, "he don't ride to no account at all, and your shoes will just have to be brushed up all the time." That was self-evident, and I engaged him at once for my short stay at Varney.

"I come around," Zebra explained, "to give that Lucy a lift; but maybe you got something for me right now; you might have a whole lot of shoes"——

When he learned that I hadn't he made his bow and, putting on his hat, left in the direction of the kitchen. "Men," Abner declared, "are made alike in the image of God. I wish I could lead them away from these expressions of worldly servitude." He regarded me with pursed lips. "It might be well to keep an eye on Zachary and your things; negroes have almost no idea of property. Some articles of mine disappeared and I was obliged to get locks. My large red bandanas"——

His optimism, I reflected, in regard to his familiar brilliant handkerchiefs, reached absurdity. And, going up to my room for white flannels, I found Lucy engaged in putting sheets on the bed. I opened a bag—delaying until she was through—and, laying out what I needed, I secured the rest with a key. I could see her, in the small looking glass of the bureau, and she made a childish face at me that had entirely vanished when I turned. Purely on Abner's account, after the formal transference of a dollar, I encouraged her in the expression of her general state of being, and she announced a large dissatisfaction.

Abner, it appeared, was difficult if not impossible to please. It was evident that she had looked, from a gentleman, for notable attitude and had been disappointed. Then she giggled at his eccentricities. "Sitting in the parlor with that skinny yellow nigger! Ruinate him something terrible. He wants us to get married," she added, rolling her eyes at Abner's extraordinary interest in such trivialities.

"Mr. Shapley's powerful religious."

Her character, I thought, was entirely evident to me. Abner Shapley's fanaticism—it was that, a bitter flame, for all his placidity—had, of course, misled him. He saw the negro as a duty, his message, as beings amenable to Christian influence, capable of taking permanently the shape of virtue; whereas they were yet, in the light of Western civilization, simply unmoral beings of a totally different racial heritage, betrayed into an alien and fatal captivity.

This I explained to an acquaintance of Abner's calling hospitably to welcome me to Varney. He was the Rev. Peter Kaner, a Methodist minister with, I realized at once, a big, prosperous church and wide influence. There was every reason why this should be so; he combined to a remarkable degree the opposites of a solemn calling and a penetrating, humorous comprehension of reality. He listened with his mobile, smooth-shaven face, closely attentive to my assertion that, together with him, I understood the negro.

"Perhaps you do," he said; "indeed, it is possible that you may. I should certainly be delighted. But I don't." His voice was positive and, for a moment, gave me the uncomfortable feeling of having made a pretentious, ill-founded statement. Yet, I privately thought, the South had made a botch of the colored problem; they had hopelessly involved it in a hundred unfortunate aspects. "I'll take you around with me," Kaner proceeded, "and show you our country. A measure of prosperity has come to us with $300 cotton. This is the region of the genuine long staple."

A kind man, Abner pronounced, when the visitor had gone, but, like the rest, a shade benighted, unenlightened, toward the black brother. With this I was able to concur. "They see things," he specified, "that don't actually exist, and make the negro out to be a sort of scarecrow. It's time for the evening prayer."

He rose and called Lucy. Kneeling with Abner Shapley and the girl in the front room, I couldn't but be impressed by the beauty, the power, of the invocation sounding about Lucy's devout position and responsive ardor.

To Be Continued Tomorrow and Concluded Tuesday.

Records of the Eleven Republican Candidates for Three Circuit Judgeship Nominations

Only Three Democrats Are Seeking Honor and Democratic Lawyers Have Indorsed Them

Republican Lawyers' Slate Includes Shields, Grimm and Pearcy, While "Courthouse Ring" of City Committeemen Wants Killoren, Kimmel and Ossing—Zachritz, Mix, Allen, Landauer and Mugan Running.

The Post-Dispatch herewith prints facts concerning the 11 candidates for the Republican nominations for three circuit judgeships, to be determined at the primary, Aug. 3. The term of Circuit Judges is six years, and the salary is $8000 a year.

There is no contest for the three Democratic nominations for judgeships. The three candidates who have filed, and who will be the Democratic nominees, are Richard A. Jones, Franklin Miller and Charles B. Williams.

Two opposing slates contain the names of six of the Republican candidates. The "Courthouse Ring" of city committee members, headed by Circuit Clerk Nat Goldstein, is backing William H. Killoren, Judge Karl Kimmel, an incumbent, and Erwin G. Ossing. The Republican lawyers of St. Louis, in a ballot conducted by the St. Louis Bar Association, have indorsed Judges George H. Shields and Hugo Grimm, incumbents, and Claude O. Pearcy.

The "Courthouse Ring" has its nucleus in Goldstein, who is city committeeman from the Nineteenth Ward, and five members of the committee who are deputies in his office—"Bobby" Moore of the Sixteenth, "Tub" Becker of the Eighth, Gus Oetting of the Second, Gabriel Roth of the Fifth and Elmer Moone of the Twentieth. These men, clerical attaches of the courts, have undertaken to select the Judges who shall sit in the courts.

Allied with them for several weeks past have been Herman Bader of the Twenty-first Ward, clerk of the criminal division of the Circuit Court; E. E. Butler of the Eighteenth, whose father-in-law, "Hank" Weeke, is an ally of Goldstein; and Anton Schuler of the Sixth, who is a candidate for City Treasurer.

Early in June, just before the Republican National Convention, Goldstein and Moore became famous as the "$5000 pair," they having received $2500 each of the Lowden campaign fund. Both were district delegates to the convention. They admitted, in their testimony before the Senate Committee in Washington, that they had not spent the money in Lowden's behalf. They have since returned the money, and their strength in the City Committee does not seem to have been impaired. In fact, the "Courthouse Ring" appears to have gained new adherents. Chairman Schmoll, who is a candidate for Sheriff, has shown himself unwilling to antagonize the Goldstein following. Mayor Kiel also has appeared desirous of propitiating Goldstein, in order to help City Counselor Daues, who is a candidate for the St. Louis Court of Appeals, and with a view to his own prospects in next spring's city election. Frank M. Slater, committeeman from the Seventeenth Ward, and candidate for Public Administrator, is believed to have reached an understanding with the Goldstein following.

Some of the "Courthouse Ring" are said to have made the assertion that 20 of the 28 members of the City Committee are now supporting the ring's slate—Killoren, Kimmel and Ossing. This is probably an overstatement, and it is known that some of the 20 are not supporting all three of the ring's selections; but the "Courthouse Ring" is unquestionably a strong factor in the primary situation.

The Bar Association's vote was taken after the Post-Dispatch had printed the fact that the "Courthouse Ring" was backing Killoren, Kimmel and Ossing. About 400 Republican votes were cast in the poll, and the result was that none of the trio on the politicians' slate received the indorsement of the bar. As stated, the bar indorsements went to Judges Shields and Grimm, and Pearcy. About 200 Democratic lawyers voted indorsement of the three unopposed Democratic candidates.

Twelve Republican candidates filed for the primary, but one, Ephrim Caplan, has withdrawn since, asking that his name be not placed on the ballot. The 11 remaining candidates, in the alphabetical order in which their names appear on the ballot printed as official advertising, and facts bearing on their candidacies, are as follows:

Charles Claflin Allen, 5200 Waterman avenue. Is 65 years old, and is a graduate of Princeton University and Washington University Law School. Has practiced law in St. Louis since 1877. Member Missouri House of Representatives 1881, associate City Counselor 1895-1901, and Circuit Judge from 1907 to 1913, serving in both civil and criminal divisions. President St. Louis Art League, and active in the war period in promoting patriotic community singing, one of the songs used being "The New America," of which he is author. Was a candidate for Republican nomination for State Supreme Court in 1906, but was defeated. Former president St. Louis Bar Association.

J. Hugo Grimm, 3137 Lafayette avenue. One of the three receiving highest votes in Bar Association poll of St. Louis Republican lawyers. Is 56 years old, a graduate of Washington University Law School, and practiced law in St. Louis up to time of his election in 1908. Was re-elected in 1914, and is now seeking a third term. In his first term he decided the Tower Grove crossing case of the Missouri Pacific Railroad in favor of the city, and decided the universal transfer case against the United Railways Co., which has since given transfers at all intersecting points. He decided, in the city's favor, one of the first of the mill tax suits. From July, 1918, to January, 1919, he served as field director of the American Red Cross at Jefferson Barracks. He has incurred the opposition of some members of the Republican City Committee by his unwillingness to grant political favors, particularly in excuses from jury service.

William H. Killoren, 2909 Dickson street. Formerly clerk in a law office, studied law at night, and was admitted to the bar. Has been an Associate City Counselor for the last six years, and has handled city cases of various kinds in the courts. He is one of the three candidates favored by the "courthouse ring" and he has the support of Mayor Kiel. Killoren is a near neighbor of Goldstein, who is especially interested in his candidacy.

Karl Kimmel, 4569A Laclede avenue. Is 45 years old, and is a graduate of Baker University, Kansas, and of the Law School of the University of Missouri. He was appointed by Mayor Kreismann in 1911 as Judge of the First District Police Court, now known as City Court No. 1. As Police Judge he used the parole system in the effort to reform first offenders. He became involved in a controversy with members of the grand jury, in 1914, over his action in discharging strike pickets, and in releasing Jeptha D. Howe, former Republican boss, and another defendant in automobile speeding cases. He was elected Circuit Judge in 1914, and is backed in his candidacy for a second term by the Goldstein "courthouse ring." One of his policies when in the criminal division of the court, was severity toward automobile thieves. He was criticised for his part in the release of a large number of negroes who were charged with attempted fraudulent voting at the 1916 election. This was largely a matter of partisan controversy, the Republican contention being that the wholesale arrests of negroes, at that election, were not made in good faith, but for the purpose of intimidating negro voters into remaining away from the polls.

Isidore Landauer, 5967 Minerva avenue. Is 41 years old and a graduate of the Washington University law school. Has practiced law in St. Louis for 19 years and served as a four-minute speaker for the Liberty loans and in the recent municipal bond issue campaign.

George E. Mix, 5946 Kingsbury avenue. Is 43 years old, a Yale graduate, and entered practice of law 16 years ago. Appointed by Mayor Kiel in April, 1919, as Judge of City (police) Court No. 2. Inaugurated a policy of stricter enforcement of traffic ordinances, with graded fines for first, second and third offenders in speeding cases, but with assured punishment for all violators. A suit for personal damages, filed against Judge Mix by A. H. Asadorian, has gone over until after the primary, Judge Kimmel and other Circuit Judges having refused to docket it for trial before the primary. Asadorian charges that Mix struck him while questioning him at a hearing in a lawyer's office. Mix is a member of the committee which is endeavoring to raise funds to build a Masonic Temple.

M. D. Mugan, 322 North Grand avenue. Is 49 years old, and has been an educator most of his life, teaching school branches and specializing in the teaching of law. He has been a member of the law faculty of the University of Alabama. A biographical publication issued in 1912 described him as "a mugwump in politics."

Erwin G. Ossing, 4566 Holly avenue, one of the three candidates favored by the Goldstein "Courthouse ring." Formerly clerk in City Law Department; now an Assistant City Counselor, handling cases in police courts. His political backing is due largely to the support of Herman Bader, committeeman, in whose ward, the Twenty-first, Ossing lives.

Claude O. Pearcy, 3850 Lafayette avenue. One of the three candidates receiving highest votes in the poll of Republican lawyers conducted by the Bar Association. Is 39 years old, a graduate of the University of Missouri, and served in the Lower House of the Legislature in 1915. He was active in that session in the promotion of the proposed reform of the code of civil procedure. He has been a lecturer, for six years past, in the St. Louis University Law School and the City College of Law.

George H. Shields, 3665 Delmar boulevard. One of the three candidates receiving highest votes in the poll of Republican lawyers conducted by the Bar Association. Is 78 years old, and has served two terms as Circuit Judge, beginning in 1907, with a two-year interim between terms. He has lived in St. Louis since 1873, and was Assistant Attorney-General of the United States, and later counsel for the Interior Department, under President Harrison's administration. Was president of the Board of Freeholders which framed the St. Louis City Charter of 1876, with the scheme of separation from St. Louis County. Is a member of Blair Post, Grand Army of the Republic.

William Zachritz, 2921 Lafayette avenue. Zachritz was Circuit Attorney from 1892 to 1896, and Circuit Judge from 1897 to 1903. He was defeated in 1901 for the Republican nomination for Mayor, and was renominated for the bench in 1902, but was defeated in the election. In 1912 and 1916 he was defeated in the primary for a nomination for Circuit Judge. He was serving in the criminal division of the Circuit Court in April, 1898, when the Post-Dispatch printed details of the $250,000 boodle transaction by which Robert M. Snyder bought the passage of the Central Traction franchise bill, in the Municipal Assembly. One week after the publication of the facts, Judge Zachritz delivered a charge to the grand jury, instructing it to investigate the charges, and declaring that if the allegation of bribery could not be substantiated by legal evidence, the editors of the Post-Dispatch should be indicted for criminal libel. The grand jury failed to find an indictment against the boodlers or the editors. Four years later, under the direction of Circuit Attorney Folk, all the facts stated by the Post-Dispatch were legally established. By that time the statute of limitations protected the principals, and thus the guilty men in the greatest of St. Louis boodle deals escaped punishment. Folk caused the indictment of the bribe-giver, Snyder, holding that the statute of limitations did not protect him, as he had been living outside the State. The facts were established in the Snyder trial, and he was convicted of bribery, but he was freed by the Supreme Court on the ground that the statute of limitations applied to him, as he had maintained a residence in Kansas City.

The grand jury of 1902, in its report on the Central Traction case, expressed its regret that the grand jury of 1898 had not obtained evidence for indictments, which would have been effective at that time. "We cannot but believe," the 1902 body said, "that if the officers whose duty it was at that time to prepare and present matters of this kind to the indicting body, had discharged their duty faithfully and vigorously, the result would have been different."

When Zachritz was a candidate for the nomination for Mayor in 1901 the Globe-Democrat, then the organ of the Republican party, said editorially that it would be a serious mistake to nominate him. It also opposed him for re-election as Judge in 1902.

HEAD OF TENANTS' LEAGUE REPORTS INCREASED RENTALS

Says Organization Will Ask Governor for Commission That Can Adjust Matter.

Membership in the recently organized Missouri Tenants' League is growing rapidly, according to U. S. Grant Lewis, 4250 Botanical avenue, the president, who said yesterday that he had responded to many letters and telephone calls inquiring about the organization.

Lewis said that officials of the league had visited several residential districts in the city and had found that rents had been increased as high as 100 per cent, and that, with few exceptions, no repair work or decorating had been done.

He said that letters from other towns in the State regarding high rents indicated that the situation was general throughout Missouri. He predicted that the league would have a large membership in the near future.

One of the purposes of the organization, Lewis said, is to have the Governor appoint a rental commission, with powers to fix rents. It also is planned to have the State Legislature revise the landlord and tenant laws. The league will furnish free legal aid for members who become involved in litigation with landlords and real estate agents.

HIGGINS ASSISTANT GENERAL MANAGER OF BARGE LINE

St. Louis Agent of Mississippi-Warrior Flotilla Receives Notice of a Promotion.

The appointment of J. P. Higgins, general agent at St. Louis of the Mississippi - Warrior Waterways, which is the barge line between St. Louis and New Orleans, to be assistant general manager of operation, was announced yesterday.

Higgins said that the appointment would have the tendency to center the direction of the barge fleet in the St. Louis office and thus facilitate decision on questions raised by shippers.

Higgins also made known today that the first of two sea-going tugs, used by the army in New York harbor during the war, had been placed in service between New Orleans and Natchez, Miss. Tows departing from St. Louis now will be picked up at Natchez by this tug. One of the greatest recent handicaps of the operation has been the inability of the temporary fleet of towboats to stand up under the long trip to New Orleans, which delayed shipments.

The first of the fleet of six new towboats designed for the river operation likely will be delivered within the next two weeks, giving further power addition which will facilitate uninterrupted movement of the barges.

SUES FOR $2155 REALTY FEE

Broker Claims Share in Commission on Sale of Granite Building.

Suit was filed in the Circuit Court yesterday by A. L. Shoults, a real estate broker, against Robert S. Williams and Charles P. Bland, partners, doing business as Williams & Bland, 717 Chestnut street, to collect a commission alleged to be due as the result of a realty sale.

Shoults alleges that in December, 1918, he was employed by the defendants to find a purchaser and assist in the sale of property at 406 Market street, known as the Granite Building, for which he was to receive half of any commission that might be made by Williams & Bland in the transaction. Shoults alleges the sale was made for $170,000, and that the defendants collected $4310 in commissions. He asks $2155.

The August Sale of Furs

—With Guaranteed Savings

TO merely make announcement of our August Fur Sale this year, without an explanation, would be doing our customers an injustice.

The August Fur Sale is a Stix-Baer-Fuller institution and through the entire twelve years of its existence, the dominant features of this selling event have been, and still are, advantageous prices, coupled with complete selections and authentic modes. To this is credited the remarkable growth of the sale. The 1920 August Sale of Furs will uphold its tradition. We shall assure our customers substantial savings, notwithstanding the present uncertain conditions prevailing in the Fur industry.

It has always been our policy to deal frankly with any subject that affects prices on merchandise. The chaotic state of the Fur market today makes it a mere matter of guesswork to forecast conditions and prices. It is this state of unrest and uncertainty that has decided our policy in this sale.

To state it briefly—

Our August Sale will present extremely low prices on Furs.

Raw pelts are now low in price. There is a great lack of skilled labor.

Fur prices will be governed by demand.

An increased demand for Furs will tend toward stabilizing the present low market prices on raw pelts.

If manufacture, which includes cost of labor, becomes normal, and there is an increased demand, Furs will be higher in price.

Facing this situation, we present our August Sale of Furs, consisting of the handsomest assortment of Furs ever assembled in August, at prices that are lower than the present Fur market makes possible.

We do not anticipate any greater decline in prices later in the season, and will guarantee the August Fur Sale prices until December 1, 1920.

St. Louis is the greatest Fur market in the world. We are in constant touch with the slightest change in Fur quotations. Recently raw pelts dropped in price on account of decreased manufacture of Furs. Prices for pelts are at their lowest point now. However, the idea prevails that the market will become normal as the demand for Furs increases during the coming season.

The greatest difficulty that the Fur market is experiencing is the lack of expert furriers—workmen who will devote their time to the industry. While the cost of skins has decreased, the cost of labor has increased so that prices on many Fur pieces have not been affected. To illustrate—if a certain small skin costs one dollar less, and forty of them are required for making a coat, the saving in raw skins is $40. But the cost for cutting, designing and making the coat has increased to more than cover the amount saved on the lowered prices on the skins.

If manufacture will resume a normal scale, and if there is any lack of demand, Furs will be lower in price. For that reason we are going to safeguard our customers, and therefore make this unique arrangement concerning Furs purchased in the August Sale. The plan of selling every Fur on the basis of a price guarantee protects you against any change in price later in the season. It assures you that in the August Sale you will effect a decided saving on any Fur piece you may select.

We desire to emphasize that the sale prices are guaranteed until December 1, 1920.

—And Now About the Furs

The limitless ingenuity of the Fur designers has created wraps and scarfs that fulfill the supreme desire for beauty and originality. The wonderful art of dyeing Furs is so perfect that many of the dyed pelts are more beautiful than the same pelt in its natural shade. These models we emphasize particularly:

—A triple flounce wrap of finest Dutch moleskin, with a very deep collar of dark Siberian squirrel. It is drawn closely about the figure to emphasize each flare.

—A three-quarter wrap of Hudson seal, banded with sable dyed squirrel, is drawn in tight at the lower edge to give a slight blouse to the coat.

—Soft draped lines are one of the beauties of a wrap of Hudson seal, whose collar is of tailless ermine. The coat is lined in purple satin, embroidered in gray.

—A gray Siberian squirrel cape has an effective way of coming up to the ears in a stand-away collar style.

—A coat with a bit of a swagger is a French topcoat of gray caracul with a soft little cap to match. The collar is very big—and it is a very youthful set.

—A stole of finest Russian ermine possesses the royal air associated with ermine. It is quite long and at the neck there is a fringe of the tails.

Besides the wraps there are beautiful separate scarfs of double animal skins. The blue fox pelts are perhaps the newest among scarfs. This season the August Sale offers a greater number of exceptionally fine Furs than we have ever had the good fortune to present at this time.

Furs purchased in the August Sale may be stored without charge in our cold storage vaults. Customers who do not have charge accounts may pay a small deposit for storage.

Items of Interest

Furs

MANY, many years ago the fur pelts of animals were used as couch and tent coverings or to protect the natives from the icy cold of the North wind and the driving Alaskan storms. They soon became the object of barter and an article of fashion, and many a war was the outcome of the rivalry of securing these pelts. They constituted the price of redemption for royal captives, were gifts of emperors and kings or badges of state function. From this time on they became the garnitures for wealth and fashion. They have brought Aaska, the land of snow and of the Midnight Sun, of mystery and adventure, into closer contact with the rest of the world, and in turn Alaska has given to Femininity her beautiful pelts, fashioned into coats.

This is the season to buy Fur Coats, and so in our August Sale you will find many wonderful wraps so very wonderful that we have given our three best windows in which we are going to show them to you. They will speak for themselves. Don't fail to see them.

Interesting Trinkets From the Frozen North

ALASKA today is the veritable paradise of the hunter and trapper; in fact, every lover of the great outdoors; here is the land where the mink are the darkest, the foxes the largest and the quality of the lynx is unsurpassed. This is the land to which Mr. E. C. Steffen, of the firm Mass-Steffen, traveled in interest of the fur buying. On this trip he collected many interesting Trinkets of ivory, etc., which the trappers make in dull moments. He has kindly given these to us for display. They will be shown in one of our Olive street windows. Get a glimpse of the frozen depths of the Yukon forests.

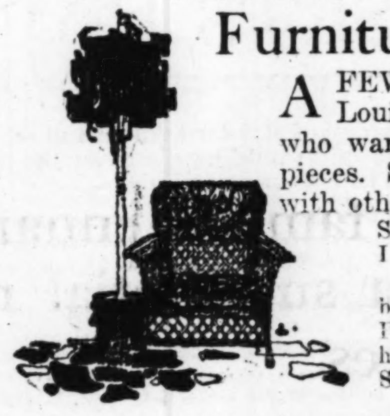
We Have a Great Stock of Summer Furniture in Reed and Wicker



A FEW days ago a woman journeyed all the way from Louisiana to this store. She was a business woman who wanted to fit up her shop with Reed and Wicker pieces. She saw our selection and she compared the prices with other Furniture she had seen, and she bought here. She said, "This is the finest selection of reed Furniture that I have seen, and I think your prices are right."

The beautiful cretonne patterns in cool colorings, yet bright and cheerful, the solid, yet artistic construction of this Furniture appealed to her and it will appeal to anyone who has a porch, sunroom, breakfast room or lawn to fit out for Summer or all-year-round living.

U. S. LAWS, BOAT SPACE, BLOCK HUMAN FLOOD FROM EUROPE

Consular Official Estimates That 1,500,000 Persons Would Soon Depart for This Country.

(Copyright.)

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, July 24.—If it were not for the immigration law and a shortage of transportation, there would be a record-breaking emmigration of Europeans to the United States, according to reports of American Consuls in different parts of Europe. The Russian-Polish war is accentuating the desire of thousands of Poles to go to America. In fact, eastern and southwestern Europe would rush thousands of immigrants in the next few months if they could depart.

One highly placed American consular officer declared to the Post-Dispatch correspondent today that if it were not for the United States immigrant restriction and the dearth of accommodation, fully 1,500,000 Europeans would soon be leaving Europe for America. One of the interesting facts about applicants for a vise in London is that two-thirds of the would-be immigrants in the past six months have been Russian, Polish and other Jews from London's East End, all desiring to go to America permanently. When some were asked if they ever intended going to Palestine they declared they would sooner go to America.

Owing to the fact that some eastern Europeans going to America would avoid passing through Danzig, where they would have to submit to disinfectant measures, it has been arranged that persons from such areas who try to go through British ports to America shall undergo quarantine in London for five to 12 days. Similar facilities are to be provided in Southampton.

Trans-Continental Economy Run

A Coast-to-Coast dash was started at New York July 18 at midnight when an Overland Four stock car left New York for San Francisco.

The run is being made by relay of drivers—men who have never before sat at the wheel of this car.

Daily reports of the progress of the car and its record of Economy and Stamina were received to date by telegrams.

Toledo, Ohio, July 20th.—Transcontinental car left Joliet, Ill., eight P. M. Tuesday, nine hundred sixty-four miles in forty-four hours, averaging twenty-two half miles per gallon gas. Roads rough. Twelve drivers so far.

118 GRAINS IN HEAD OF WHEAT

Yield of 38 Bushels Per Acre Reported in Jersey County, Ill.

James L. Whirl of near Grafton, Ill., has the prize head of wheat for Jersey County. A count of the grains showed that there are 118 in the head. Other heads averaged 86, 90 and 108 grains. Whirl thinks his wheat may hold the championship for the State. In Marion County the record was 114.

Wheat harvest in Jersey County is about two weeks late this year, but the grain is now coming in to the Jerseyville elevators in a steady stream. The record yield reported thus far is by Ira Cottingham, who has a 22-acre field in the Nutwood Drainage and Levee District that averaged 38 bushels to the acre. His son, Lloyd Cottingham, has a 10-acre field on his farm just south of Jerseyville that averaged 33 bushels to the acre. H. S. Hunter of Jersey Township had a yield of 31 bushels to the acre.

EXPECT NEW RAIL RATES WILL TAKE IN WAGE AWARD

Railway Shares Plainly Influenced by Such Belief—Light on Foreign Trade.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 24.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly review, says:

"In this week's stock market, railway shares were plainly influenced by the belief that the pending decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission on the application for higher rates would liberally take into account the increase of $600,000,000 annually in wages just granted by the Railroad Labor Board. The award of increased wages, made by a body established by law and composed of representatives of the workers, the employers and the general public, carried with it an official sanction which might have been lacking in an increase arrived at merely by the rough give-and-take of private negotiation.

"With this action of the Labor Board, an important part of the new transportation act has been put in motion. Its working will be watched with keen interest, the more so because the law leaves a wider latitude to the commission than was generally recognized when the measure was first put on the statute books. The stock market and the railway officials themselves have traveled far from the idea at first hazily entertained that increased rates would follow automatically on increased expenses, and that a certain return was practically 'guaranteed' by the law.

"Just what level of rates will be fixed will be determined by three considerations; first, the 'physical value' of the railroad properties, as yet only partially calculated; second, the commission's view as to what constitutes an adequate return bearing in mind 'the transportation needs of the country' and the necessity of enlarging existing facilities, which can only be done by attracting new capital into railway development, and third, the degree of economy and efficiency which the commission demands of the roads in determining a fair return. Any extravagance that is indulged in must be paid for by the companies themselves.

"This last provision of the law doubtless indicates an important field of governmental supervision in the future. It will give the commission power of review over railway expenditures which it did not officially possess in the past. This particular, as much as any other, opens the way to initiative and effective management, which many people feared was only poorly provided for by the transportaion act.

Question of Rates.

"An increase in freight rates at this time of hesitation in business and uncertain outlook has a particular interesting bearing on the general situation. One of the grounds on which increases in railway wages were occasionally opposed during the war periods was, that such an advance in railway pay, inevitably followed by higher rates, meant the beginning of another 'cycle of inflation,' a spiral of higher costs, higher wages, expansion of credit and so on. It is worth noting that in the present instance the emphasis has quite generally been placed elsewhere.

"The question has been whether to impose larger operating costs on business at the present time, when much is said about the diminished 'purchasing power of the public,' would not hasten the tendency toward slackening trade and falling prices. Certain it is that under the qualifications above referred to, the railways are placed in a position where they are to be largely exempt, in point of earning capacity, from the normal fluctuations of business. The burden of supporting an adequate railway revenue, in good times or bad, is to be placed upon general business enterprise. The justification must lie in the now generally recognized importance of maintaining the country's railway facilities. The cost lies quite properly with business itself and not with the Government. But the cost of such maintenance in a period of slackening trade and falling prices is a very practical question.

Fall in Exports.

"Two developments in the past week have thrown some light on much discussed trade reaction, in so far as it applies to our foreign commerce. The Government's report on exports and imports for June, indicating a reduction of $115,000,000 in exports and an even greater increase in imports, with a favorable trade balance the smallest of any month in nearly six years, showed in a striking manner what had already occurred in our foreign commerce. Let the decrease and increase, respectively, be only half as great in another month and we would be actually confronted with an excess of purchases abroad over sales abroad—a development which would certainly have an electrifying effect both on our politics and our finance. It is not necessary to assume that anything of the sort will take place. Variations of a hundred millions in a month have been common enough during the period of war and so-called reconstruction.

"Another event which points in the same direction of diminishing exports, however, has been the week's sensational break in the foreign exchanges. How much of this belongs to the realm of speculation, how much to legitimate trade or to political and military happenings abroad, no one can say with assurance. All are more or less responsible. The essential fact is that Europe will now find it more costly to buy from us than it was a fortnight ago, and that the promising schemes for financial aid and co-operation among the nations, which were to be propounded at the Brussels financial conference, must now rest upon some other basis than the arranging of the German indemnity which was to have been one of the chief tasks at Spa."

LONDON STOCKS REFLECT CRISES IN POLISH AFFAIR

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, July 24.—The crisis in Poland and in Ireland has brought weakness in stocks thus counteracting the effect which would otherwise have been produced by this week's large reduction of £25,500,000 in treasury note circulations. The weakness of sterling exchange and the talk of higher money rates in the United States also command attention.

It is felt here that the military crisis in Poland should not be regarded too lightly, because it expresses momentarily the acute phase of the Bolshevist crisis. This in its turn is also underestimated. No real financial recuperation is possible until the Bolshevist spirit, which is apparent in many directions, is effectively removed.

The Stock Exchange has been disinclined to face the real facts, being bullish on the idea of a coming slump in trade causing money to be transferred to stocks. This is a wholly unsound argument, first, because it is doubtful whether the trade reaction will go very far, and second, because the reasons which before the war, led to a transfer of money to stocks as trade slackened may not necessarily apply. A drastic reaction in trade, in fact, coming quickly after an artificial prosperity might involve social disorder of a character inconsistent with booming stock. Nevertheless, if the Polish crisis is surmounted an improvement in stock during the holidays is probable because of the usual holiday cessation of fresh capital issue.

Goods Being Carried.

Although piece goods are severely hit by the drop in Eastern orders, resulting from the fall in silver and the demoralization of the Eastern exchanges, prices of commodities are slow to fall. The indications are that even at present high money rates, producers are carrying goods on borrowed money rather than submit to a cut in prices. The best quarters here, however, consider that the situation would be bettered by lowering prices with possibly increased shipments to you and to other affluent countries.

As we see the situation here, there are evidently somewhat similar conditions prevailing on your side and the effects of your dear money policy are closely watched.

Wall Street News and Comment —SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 24.—The financial markets this week have got rid of one cause of uneasiness only to face another. The most immediate concern early in the week was the apparent dissatisfaction among the heads of the railway unions with the wage increase granted by the Federal Labor Board. While the threat of a nation-wide railway strike was never taken very seriously, the mere possibility of such an event would have hardly fallen short of a catastrophe, was sufficient to hold Wall Street operations in check. Then, when all danger on this account was apparently removed by the decision of all but one of the big brotherhoods to accept the wage award there arose the Polish crisis to overshadow for the moment at least all other considerations.

Nearly all competent observers agree that progress toward solviing the credit is a problem which is the supreme factor in the financial situation as it has been right along for eight months past. Expansion of loans has been halted by the drastic raising of Federal discount rates. A slight reduction in the general loan account has taken place. Where opinion differs is on the question of the autumn crop moving, which will entail this year a larger use of credit than ordinarily because of the very high staple prices and because of the difficulty in getting farm products to market. Will these extra demands, falling upon the present strained situation produce unpleasant results or will the measures that have been taken and will be taken to meet the emergency be effective in carrying the markets through the critical period without anything very serious happening?

Gold Situation.

There is no doubt that in banking circles there is a more hopeful feeling regarding the outcome of these uncertainties than there was two months or more ago. Some people are frankly apprehensive still. But by far the majority consider that the Federal Reserve officials have the situation well in hand; and that they are steadily forcing the liquidation of non-essential loans, and that with the ability to mobilize credit under the Federal Reserve system, using the surplus of the stranger districts to meet any possible deficiency at points of weakness, we shall get through the autumn all right. Something depends upon how much gold we can secure during the next few months abroad. The fact that American bankers have outbid India in this week's offerings of gold in the London market is significant. But even if America were to secure what came in weekly from South Africa it would mean an importation of probably not more than $15,000,000 during August and September. The hope is that the foreign banks in the course of settling up the remainder of the Anglo-French loan will be able to scrape together enough gold to make the movement to this country reach as respectable a total as it did last March, when $50,000,000 was shipped across the water.

Some critics more hopeful than the rest take the view that the bulk of the harvests demands for credit will have to be met by the latter half of October and that then funds available for Wall Street uses may be more plentiful. But the general expectation is that we will do very well to go along through the remainder of the year with the present 8-per-cent money market and with just enough of a credit supply to allow speculative interests to hold onto their stocks and do a little exploiting occasionally of special issues which have patricularly strong attractions.

Priority Orders.

The priority orders put out to facilitate the movement of coal and grain will undoubtedly have to continue in force for some time longer and so hamper other industries. In the case of the steel trade, it is impossible to obtain a proper fuel supply and very difficult to avoid the piling up of goods for want of the transportation facilities to carry them to the distributive centers. This will tend rather to augment than to relieve the tendency toward reaction in industrial lines and will also retard the thawing out of credit, but there is no help for it so long as there is a car shortage and so long as this shortage will be intensified through the period of the crop moving.

Investment Market.

The investment market continues in satisfactory shape, that is, there is an ample demand for high grade, old line issues, and a prompt absorption of most new offerings that come out. The feeling among bond men continues very confident that bottom prices have been seen and that this is the opportunity of a lifetime to put money into first-class mortgages, railway and industrial, at a marvelously high rate of return. But, of course, bond prices cannot advance to any extent until money rates come down and money will not come down until the credit position has been so relaxed that the Federal officials will feel that they can reduce their discounts.

Opinions of the Street.

Most of the week-end letters were made up before word came of the Russo-Polish armistice. Their expressions, in consequence, were largely colored by the supposed serious crisis in European policies. Notwithstanding this, most of the letter writers refused to abandon their bullish stand for the future. Clark, Childs & Co. had this to say:

"Such corporate reports as that of the Corn Products Refining Co., for the June quarter and that of the Republic Iron and Steel Co., for the same period, should give these individuals who can see nothing aread of us but depression, food for serious thought. The statement of United States Steel Corporation for the June quarter, due Tuesday next, should be very gratifying. A better market is expected before long, but it will not come about until the banking control feels that the coast is clear for it. In the meantime those stocks frequently mentioned in these messages should look very attractive on any further unsettlement."

Interborough.

It was learned today from a very good source that The Interborough Rapid Transit Co. is preparing to grant a further wage increase of 10 per cent to its men. The fact that this action is to be taken by the company is regarded as an indication that its financial condition is showing improvement. At the present low level of 45, there has been some speculative buying of the Interborough 5-per-cent bonds on the idea that passing of the January coupon has been pretty well discounted and that the situation may be better.

Coal Market.

CHICAGO, July 24.—The Black Diamond, organ of the coal industry, in review of the market this week, says:

"Efforts on the part of governmental agencies to stimulate coal production and distribution, through priority orders on open-top cars in favor of the mines and on lake shipments in favor of the Northwest, have so far failed to change materially the serious coal situation confronting the nation. Neither has the effort of the Government to check high prices through prosecution of certain West Virginia operators had any effect to date.

"In the East the dominating influence this week, aside from car shortage, was the concerted action of large steam coal buyers in refusing to invade the high priced market. The result was that prices declined, the drop being from 75c to $1.25 a ton, although the remaining level was still far above normal quotations.

"In the Central West the most important change was caused by the strike of the day men at Southern Illinois mines, resulting in practically a total shutdown and curtailment of production in that field. In other Central Western fields production was running about at the same level as has been the case during the past few weeks.

"Governmental action makes it clear that at last the seriousness of the situation is permeating the consciousness of those in a position to act, and eleventh-hour measures have followed seeking to avoid the catastrophe with which the shortage threatens the country."

CURB OFFERINGS TAKEN; LATE MARKET STEADY

General Asphalt Meets Good Demand and Advances—Oils Quiet.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 24.—A moderate selling wave at opening caused a weak tone in the Curb Market, but before the end of the first hour the supply had been absorbed and a steadier tendency developed, resulting in recoveries from the lowest in the leading issues.

General Asphalt, after a weak opening, was in comparatively good demand and rose nearly a point. United States Steamship was steady, but moved within fractional limits. Retail Candy and others were unusually quiet, many issues being neglected during the entire day.

In the oil list, there was less interest than in several weeks, and quotations as a rule were about unchanged. The recent advance in National Oil apparently attracted a weak following and moderate offerings caused a fractional decline in that stock.

Mining shares were quiet with slight changes in prices.

ANTICIPATED BIG WHEAT YIELD GOVERNS PRICES

Trade Looks to Winter Wheat Crop to Offset Any Loss in Northwest.

Optimism in regard to a big yield of wheat this season despite black rust helped to ease the wheat market during the past week.

Official estimate that the Kansas wheat crop would be 37,000,000 bushels larger than had been expected last month was regarded by many traders as more than an offset for whatever damage might be done by black rust in the northwest. Later, too, there were forecasts by a leading private expert that regardless of rust the spring wheat yield would total, as much as 300,000,000 bushels. Winter wheat was figured by him at 550,000,000 bushels.

Timely rains in Western Canada together with a stoppage of export buying for Great Britain tended further to unsettle the confidence of bulls.

Persistent buying on the part of a big Chicago elevator company was largely responsible for the strength of corn. Besides, there was talk that corn receipts would soon be greatly curtailed.

Rapid harvesting made the oats market weaken.

WEATHER MAP BETTER AND WHEAT DECLINES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, July 24.—A drop of 30 degrees in the temperatures from yesterday was registered in the Northwest today. This will prevent the spread of rust and curb injury. There is less apprehension felt over the condition of spring wheat as experts are finding the crop further advanced in the big wheat belts of the Northern section and losses there will not be so severe as in the South. There was a little better buying of wheat futures, but commission houses were good sellers and a lower range of prices prevailed, last prices being 3c to 3½c lower. Cash houses and Eastern interests were the best buyers. There were no export bids in the market. Country offerings to arrive were light and no perceptible increase in the receipts was noted.

A lack of buying power was noted in corn; values were forced lower, in consequence. Closing prices were ½c to 2⅛c below last night's finish.

Hot weather was shown over a big portion of the belt and rains were reported in some sections. Selling was general, some of the big wire houses leading and locals following. Sales on stop-loss orders were also uncovered. Cash corn was ½c to 1½c lower. Shipping sales were 3000 bushels. Vessel room was chartered for 100,000 bushels of corn to go to Canada.

Oats were weak, particularly the July. Liquidation was on in the current month. Receipts are heavy and two cars of new oats were received today from Central Illinois, the first of the season. They graded No. 1 and No. 2 white and tested 33½ and 31½ pounds respectively. Sales of 50,000 bushels of contract oats were sold to go to store. Cash oats were weak and 2c to 3c lower. Shipping sales were 22,000 bushels. Last prices were 1@2¾c lower.

Provisions were dull and lower with grain and hogs. Trade was light. Pork closed 25c lower, lard, 17½c lower, and ribs declined 25c.

With few exceptions, cattle values showed a downward trend on the St. Louis market the past week. Fairly liberal receipts and an indifference demand from buyers influenced a slow trade in general. Approximately 30,000 head arrived during the six-day period, 5000 of which consisted of grass steers from Texas and Oklahoma.

Market opened weak Monday and by late Wednesday sharp declines were inflicted in the trade. Selling the following two days was extremely slow and further losses were reflected in many instances.

Corn-belt steers closed on an average of 50c lower for the week, spots showing a 75c loss. Western range steers closed late Friday 50c off for the week. Heavy native beeves topped for the period at $16.15, while yearling steers scored up to $16.50.

Strictly choice yearlings finished right at 25c lower, while all of the plainer sorts showed declines ranging from 50@75c and in spots $1. Butcher cows late Friday revealed a 75c lower trend for the week, while canner classes were steady to 25c lower. Bulls closed 25@50c off, more in spots.

There was a fair demand for desirable stockers and feeders early in the week, but decline on killing cattle later affected trade adversely and market closed dull in all departments, especially mean action being experienced on the common she-stuff.

Veal calves, an exception to other departments of the cattle trade, showed a sharp upturn. Whereas top on choice lights Monday was $13.75, this mark had, by Thursday, been raised to a $15.75 basis. The latter figure was also paid Friday, and market that day averaged $2 over that of the opening session.

Hog Prices Higher

Hog values here on Tuesday of the past week attained the highest level on record for over three months, the top on that day going to $16.70, with a short load at $16.75. This is the highest level since April 22. Market later weakened slightly and closed on a $16.60 basis, or 35 to 40 cents higher than the way the market finished the preceding week. Choice light and butcher hogs were in good demand and ranged from $16.25@16.50 for the most part. Strong weight and heavy hogs were irregular and cleared through a spread of $15@16.25, or sharply below the top. Pig market was also uneven, but good weight and quality offerings cleared around $15.50 to $15.75, or not much changed from a week ago.

Lamb Receipts Increase.

Sharply increased receipts of lambs deflected the market downward the past week and closing prices reflected a depreciation of $1 per hundredweight. Fat sheep, on the other hand, continue scarce and the market advanced 50 cents. This brings choice lambs down to a $14.50 basis, equaling the low point of the session, with fat sheep selling at $7.50, or $1.50 higher than two weeks ago. Medium and just fair lambs have been very mean sellers and are quotable from $11@13, with culls from $5@6.50, generally at $6. Canner sheep are quotable from $1.50@2, and choppers and bucks from $4@5.50.

Demand for Southern Horses.

While trade in horses at St. Louis the past week was comparatively light in volume, business was restricted largely by the light receipts that arrived. Less than 200 head were actually available for auction. Demand strengthened for the better class of Southerners and fairly good prices were realized.

Reports of crop conditions in the Southern States are favorable and this is expected to stimulate good activity here in the Southern department. So far the Carolinas have put forth the best call for material in the equine department.

In addition to the regular native trade next week two special range sales are scheduled to take place and offerings will run well over 2000 head, according to present indications. Nearly 75 per cent of this total had already arrived Saturday. These Western sales bring buyers from all sections of the South and usually stimulate increased activity in the native department.

There is some call at present for extra good work teams weighing 1500 pounds and over, although the regular Eastern trade is at a standstill.

Some Call for Mine Mules

A slight increase in mule receipts prevailed throughout the week and there was fair call for miners and a few extra good work animals. Values, however, showed little material change. Sellers also succeeded in disposing of a limited number of feeders, although demand for this type of mule is not as yet of sufficient volume to constitute an open market for these. Dealers expect more activity in mules in coming weeks, as different branches of the trade open.

STEADY TONE TO COTTON TRADE ON NEW YORK MARKET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 24.—While the foreign exchange situation was somewhat better this morning, and room traders seemed inclined to cover for over the week-end, the cotton market continued unsettled, with an early downward trend to prices for which a return of fair weather over the cotton belt, unfavorable cotton goods news and the disquieting European political rumors were chiefly responsible.

Opening prices were from 10 points lower to 10 points higher, but the list soon declined to a general range of about 10 to 12 points under the previous night, reflecting increased local and Wall street pressure in anticipation of possible further disturbing reports from abroad over Sunday. Another influence that claimed attention was the drop of 50 points in spots at Houston yesterday, making 2¼c decline in that market this week as an outcome of increased offerings of new-crop cotton.

Subsequently a renewal of covering orders carried prices up again to about 15 to 17 points over last night's close.

Only about 40,000 pieces of print cloths were sold at Fall River for the week, demand being confined almost entirely to spots and nearby deliveries. It is said by some cotton goods people that hardly 20 per cent of the production of the mills in the past six months has as yet passed beyond the jobber.

At the same time, a big Chicago house reported that there were more customers looking around in the past week than for a long time. There seems to be little inclination to trade in cotton yarns, and a North Carolina spinner said he thought yarn mills were not running over 70 per cent of capacity. All branches of the cotton trade are keeping a close watch on the European political situation, which is generally regarded as distinctly bad for the future of the trade especially the outlook in Poland.

Cotton futures closed steady; Oct., $33.02c; Dec., 31.29c; Jan., 30.57c; March, 29.75c; May, 28.90c.

SON CONFESSES KILLING MOTHER; FATHER WAS HANGED FOR CRIME

Ontario Boy Moved to Admit Murder, Following Reprimand, During Evangelistic Service.

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, July 24.—Confessed murderer of his mother—a crime for which his father was hanged seven years ago—Arnell Love, 22, a Ceylon (Ont.) farmer, lies in jail here today.

During evangelistic services in his home town, Love went forward and declared to the evangelist that he had clubbed his mother to death because she had reprimanded him for "keeping bad company."

Young Love was one of the principal witnesses against his father, Henry Love, who was convicted by a jury and hanged at Owen Sound, Ont., for the crime seven years ago. While the evidence against him had been mostly circumstantial, on the scaffold, the father made what was believed to be a confession of his guilt.

The youth told the evangelist that, when his mother reprimanded him, he was angered and killed her with a stick of wood and hid the body in the cellar, where it was found later. On advice of the evangelist, Love gave himself up to the police, who are investigating his story.

Memorial Tablet to Artillerymen.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the One Hundred and Twenty-Eighth Field Artillery has ordered a memorial bronze tablet to be placed in Battery A headquarters, 1221 S. Grand avenue, commemorating the death of the 23 artillerymen of the One Hundred Twenty-eighth Field Artillery who died in the late world war.

COAL MINERS IN ARKANSAS ORDERED TO RESUME WORK

INDIANAPOLIS, July 24.—Eight hundred coal miners in the Hartman and Spadra field in Arkansas were ordered to return to work following the signing of a mutual agreement reached here today.

The strike has been in progress since July 5 and was due to claims made by the miners that the coal companies were charging the miners exorbitant prices for supplies.

In the agreement reached at the international headquarters at United Mine Workers of America here, the price of these supplies is left blank and is to be the subject of an investigation at which the price will be fixed later.

The order calling off the strike was sent by John Wilkinson, president of District No. 21, which includes Arkansas, to the District Secretary, O. F. Ross, at Muskogee, Ok. The latter will notify the local unions in the two fields.

AID SOCIETY MAKES PLEA FOR BOARDING HOMES FOR BABIES

Placing-Out Secretary Says There Are Many Children on Waiting List.

An appeal for temporary boarding homes for babies was made yesterday by the Children's Aid Society. Miss Herta Miller, placing-out secretary of the society, stated that never before in the history of the society had there been so many on the waiting list for homes. The babies are all under one year of age and in good health. Their homes have been broken up through sickness, death or other misfortune, and they must be cared for until such time as they can be restored to their families. Board will be paid for each child by the society, their clothing supplied and medical attention when necessary.

A number of other homes are also wanted by women with children, who want housekeeping work etc., where they can keep their babies with them. Information about the babies or other wards of the society may be obtained from Miss Miller, at the headquarters, eighth floor, 318 North Eighth street.

Every Man Would Be His Own Doctor Under Standardization of Medicine, Expert Declares

Widening of Field for Self-Treatment to Follow Efforts Toward Uniformity, According to Dr. David Orr Edson.

By ARTHUR BENINGTON

A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT OF THE POST-DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, July 24.

WOULDN'T it be a fine thing if as soon as you felt sick you could go to an office where you would be told exactly what was the matter with you, and return home to treat yourself according to a set of rules as simple and accurate as the multiplication table?

No more bother with doctors, no more uncertainties as to what ailed you, no more experiments!

For instance: The test shows pneumonia No. 1; you send a boy to the nearest Board of Health dispensary for a bottle of pneumonia treatment No. 1, with which you proceed to dose yourself according to directions printed on the label, and rest in security that within a certain number of days you will be quite well and at work again.

Wouldn't that be fine?

But it sounds like an iridescent dream of a Utopian Communist, and no physician living today need plan to begin life over again for fear that his practice may leave him through all the world becoming its own doctor. And yet, fantastic as the dream may seem, that is the very condition toward which we are tending. We are already, without perceiving it, well along the road, for there are today many diseases which can be treated in just that way. In fact, though few patients are aware of it, many of them are so treated every day.

What we are coming to is the standardization of medicine, and we may be there before we know it. Certain of our physical ailments and the remedies for them are already standardized, others are almost so, and others bid fair to be before many years.

The best physicians know this, for it is precisely they who are doing the work of standardization, and they look forward with equanimity to the day when you and I will be treating ourselves or placing ourselves in the hands of a technician rather than of a physician.

Expert Traces Development.

In discussing these new developments with Dr. David Orr Edson a few days ago, he traced their history from the days of Jenner and opened the writer's eyes to what is being done today.

Dr. Edson, a well-known New York physician, is noted as one of the most progressive and intellectual members of the medical profession. He is a son of the late Mayor Edson. A graduate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, he served for four years as visiting physician of the Department of Charities and Correction. He was associated for a long time with the late Dr. Holbrook Curtis. Dr. Edson, after graduation, studied in Berlin and was the first to bring the then famous Koch tubercular serum to this country.

"Standardized medicine," Dr. Edson said, "made its first bow to the public when Jenner observed that milkmaids were not susceptible to smallpox. They often had pustules on their hands, however, and it was through a study of these pustules that he discovered cowpox, and so went on to the discovery that by passing the virus of smallpox through oxen it could be attenuated till the human body could bear it and become immune to the disease that was so common and so fatal in his time. That is what we call vaccination.

"Vaccination against smallpox was really the first step in standardizing medicine. You don't need a physician for vaccination; you can do it to yourself or any member of your family with the stock vaccine supplied by the Board of Health. The treatment is not a matter of judgment, but of definite rule. And it is infallible, or practically so. Of course, vaccination is preventive medicine rather than corrective, but prevention of disease is far more important than curing it.

"The second step in the standardization of medicine was taken by Pasteur, and it was a very long one. Pasteur explored the world of germ life, discovered the microbe of rabies, or hydrophobia, found the way to attentuate it as Jenner had done with the virus of smallpox, and gave us the anti-rabies serum which has practically redeemed the human race from that disease. This serum is now at the disposal of the whole world and it is considered 99 per cent effective.

Mad Dog Case Example.

"If you are bitten by a mad dog you send for a doctor. What does he do? He sends to a laboratory for a serum standardized and ready, with explicit instructions for use. If there is doubt as to the dog having rabies, he is killed, his spinal cord examined for rabies. It is not necessary for this latter to be done, for the serum is not injurious to human life. In short, it is standardized medicine for both immediate treatment and immunization. You probably have it administered by your physician, but this is not at all necessary, as any one can do it who knows the rules. If you had the printed directions you could do it yourself with absolute security.

"The work of Pasteur started many other men to investigate germ life. They soon found a host of bacteria which they were able to classify into groups, each with its own characteristics.

"The third important step forward was made by Klebs and Loeffler, who devoted themselves to the study of a germ which they found was that of diphtheria and to which was given the name of Klebs-Loeffler bacillus. This they hunted to its lair, found out on what it thrived and what caused its death. They were abe to give it birth or destroy it, as they pleased. The result was their anti-diphtheritic serum, which has saved the lives of many thousands. And diphtheria followed smallpox and rabies into the realm of standardized diseases with standardized remedies.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN DOCTOR IF MEDICINE WERE STANDARDIZED

"Wasserman followed by studying the spirocheta pallida, or germ of syphilis, and gave us a test by which that dread disease may be recognized even when unsuspected. Then Ehrlich's famous 606 experiment gave the formula of the drug that is death to the spirocheta, but that is compatible with human life.

"Thus step by step has medicine been standardized. These steps are all of the past. It remained for this generation to take the longest forward strides, which are showing us how to make the human body immune to disease.

"First came Schick, who discovered a test for susceptibility to diphtheria. Some people are susceptible and some are not. The latter need never worry; the former can be made immune. This test is now used in most of the institutions for the care of children. Before a child is admitted it is tested and, if necessary, made immune with anti-diphtheritic serum.

Typhoid Vaccine Found.

"No test for susceptibility to typhoid has yet been found, but we have learned so much about the disease and its potentials and limitations that we have a vaccine with which we inoculate people, making immune those who are susceptible and not in any way injuring those who are not. Typhoid vaccination is not yet universal or compulsory like smallpox vaccination, but all men entering the army or navy have to take it and our experience during the war proves that by its means typhoid can be almost abolished. This, too, is a standardized treatment for which no physician is necessary. You can get the vaccine from the Board of Health and administer it to yourself.

"There is no way yet of vaccinating against venereal diseases, but the Wasserman test and Ehrlich's medicine make it possible to catch the most terrible of them before its ravages have started their wholesale destruction of the body.

"The germ of meningitis has been isolated, and is known familiarly as the meningo-coccus. Once you catch the bug of a disease you can find the easiest way to kill him or to weaken him and accustom the body to fighting and destroying him. This has been done with meningo-coccus, and the serum in use today has greatly cut down the number of deaths.

"These discoveries and others of a similar nature gave birth to the branch of medicine that is known as Immunology and that is the most important of all, as it is purely preventive. If we could only make ourselves immune to all diseases we should all die of old age or accident! That day is far away, however, but every one of these steps brings us nearer to it.

"The longest stride of all is the most recent, for it is a matter of only about four years, and, though familiar to the medical profession, it will be entirely new to the general public. This is the discovery that certain common substances are poisonous to some persons and do not affect other persons at all. These substances are called proteins. They are highly complex bodies that exist in all organic matter, animal or vegetable, and seem to be what might be called its distinctive molecule. There are, for example, the proteins of seed, of oysters, of strawberries, of feathers, of the tubercle bacillus; you could scarcely name an animal or vegetable substance that has not its proteins which now can be isolated. We take large quantities of them into our systems with our food, they float in the air and we absorb them through our noses and mouths, even through our eyes.

Tests Being Standardized.

"We have long been familiar with the fact that certain persons could not eat shellfish without getting deathly sick; that strawberries brought out an itching rash on others; that some could not eat oranges or eggs, while others had an idiosyncrasy, as it was called, against milk or rice or tomatoes, etc.

"We did not know why, but we called it anaphylaxis. This we now know is due to the proteins of these substances being poisonous to certain persons who are peculiarly sensitive to them. The chemists have learned how to reduce the protein found in almost any substance to its distinctive molecule, and are able to furnish us with these different proteins.

"Now, when a person has an obscure ache or pain, asthma, hay fever, urticaria, eczema or rheumatism or merely obscure invalidism, we first of all try to find out what particular protein the individual may be sensitive to without knowing it. In some

BIG ULCER ALL HEALED

"Now I Can Walk," Says Mrs. Southcott of Medina.

"Here is another letter that makes me happy," says Peterson of Buffalo, "one that I would rather have than a thousand dollars."

"Money isn't everything in this world. There is many a big hearted, rich man who would give all he has on earth to be able to produce a remedy with such mighty healing power as Peterson's Ointment, to sell at all druggists for 60 cents a large box."

Read this letter, written February 14, 1918, by Mrs. Albert Southcott, of Medina, N. Y. It seems like a miracle, but it is true, every word of it.

I know it because I get similar letters almost every day from people who have used my ointment for old sores, eczema and piles.

Is it any wonder I am happy!

Peterson Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.

Dear Sirs—

"I was an untold sufferer from an old running sore and ulcers. I had tried most everything without any relief from pain. A friend told me of your wonderful ointment and the first box took away the pain that had not left me before in years, and after using just nine dollars worth of the salve I am cured. The ulcer was 3 inches by 6½ inches, is all healed and I can walk. Never, never will I be without Peterson's again.

"You may use this to recommend your ointment if you wish. I cannot say enough to praise it." Yours truly, Mrs. Albert Southcott, Medina, N. Y. Mail orders filled by Peterson Ointment Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Judge & Dolph, E. A. Medler, Enderle Drug Co. and Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. will supply you.

Girlish, Wrinkle-Free Skin Easy to Have

Since its remarkable astringent and tonic properties became known, clever women all over the world have been using the saxolite face bath to "tone up" their faces, remove wrinkles and draw flabby cheeks and neck back to normal. After using the solution, the face immediately feels much firmer. The skin tightens evenly all over the face, thus reducing lines and soreness. The formula is: Powdered saxolite, one ounce, dissolved in witch hazel, one-half pint.

This simple and harmless face bath is a splendid thing for the outdoor girl, since sun, wind and flying dust are so provocative of squinting and other contortions which cause wrinkles and crow's feet. Also it is fine to freshen up a tired face in hot, depressing weather.

THE drinks the youngsters dream about—Ward's Orange-Crush and Lemon-Crush. Mothers need not hesitate to give their little ones all they want, because the drinks are the very essence of purity and quality. The flavors come entirely from the delicious oils pressed from sun-matured oranges and lemons, purest granulated sugar and citric acid—the natural acid of oranges and lemons.

Never a corn

on millions of feet nowadays

Do you know that millions of people who use Blue-jay keep entirely free from corns?

If a corn appears it is ended by a touch. A Blue-jay plaster or a drop of liquid Blue-jay is applied.

The corn pain stops. Soon the whole corn loosens and comes out.

The method is scientific. It is gentle, easy, sure. Old-time harsh treatments are supplanted by it with everyone who knows it.

It is made by a world-famed laboratory, which every physician respects.

It is now applied to some 20 million corns a year. You can see that corn troubles are fast disappearing.

Then why pare corns and keep them? Why use methods which are out-of-date?

Try this new-day method. See what it does to one corn. You will never forget its quick and gentle action. Your druggist sells Blue-jay.

Grocer Thankful

"I had been sick nearly 20 years with stomach trouble and was slowly starving to death, as everything I ate caused terrible gas and pain and my food did not digest. I was reduced to 115 pounds. A friend advised me to take Mayr's Wonderful Remedy about 4 months ago, which I did, and now weigh 151 lbs., and can eat anything. I am very thankful for Mayr's Wonderful Remedy." It removes the catarrhal mucous from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. EVERY MAN HIS OWN DOCTOR IF MEDICINE WERE STANDARDIZED cases this is obviously evident. For instance, a man comes in with wheals on his body after an excursion into the country and we say, poison ivy; a woman is sick always after eating eggs, and we blame the eggs. But most cases are not nearly so simple and we have to do some reasoning and a little guessing before we make the tests that will give us the proof.

"These tests are standardized and astonishingly rapid. Let me illustrate: A mother brought a child to see me, saying it always caught cold after sleeping with her but never in its own cot. I questioned her as to the differences between her bed and the child's cot, and learned that the latter had a hair pillow while the former had a pillow stuffed with goose feathers. Suspecting the feathers, through knowing of cases in which persons had developed what they called 'colds' by keeping parrots or canaries in their rooms, I took the tube of the protein of goose feathers and rubbed a minute quantity of it upon a tiny scratch I made on the child's arm, not deep enough to draw blood. Within a few minutes there was an inflamed swelling over the spot on the arm. This proved my suspicion to be right. The child's 'colds' were cured by substituting hair for feathers in the pillow.

"Another illustration: A girl was brought to me with the story that she always got hay fever at her parents' place in the country, but never in town or at other country places. I noticed that she had arrived in an antiquated hansom-cab drawn by an old horse. As we sat talking in my office her eyes filled, she began to sneeze and she said: 'I feel as if a hay fever attack was coming on.' This was in the winter, when no one gets hay fever. I asked what she did at her country home. She replied that she had an old pony which she occasionally rode. This sent my thoughts like a flash to the plug of a horse behind which she had driven to my office, and I took out the tube containing protein of horse dandruff. A scratch on her forearm, a rub of the protein and in less than 20 minutes there was the tell-take wheal. I told her to get rid of the old pony, to spend her time playing golf or tennis in the country and not to use hansom-cabs in town, and she would have no more hay fever.

Keep Away From Trouble.

"These two illustrations show that the protein of the goose feather was poisonous to the first child and the protein of the horse dandruff poisonous to the second. In each case the cure is obvious—keep away from the thing that is the cause of the trouble. This, however, is not always possible and often is not advisable. In such cases we proceed to make the sufferer immune to the particular poison."

"How can this be done?"

"In the case of food to which the person is anaphylactic the main treatment is avoidance. So far there are only a very few foods to which the individual may be immunized, the prominent ones being eggs and wheat flour. But when one gives this matter thought they are the most far-reaching and important of all adult foods. In the case of the pollen of plants—those insidious poisons which are taken into the system through the eyes and nose and respiratory tracts—the causatives of hay fever, asthma, bronchitis, etc., immunization has gone a long way. To almost every variety of these poisons one may be rendered immune. In short, immunizing pollen extracts are now made and standardized for such purposes—licensed by the Government. In the use, however, of these pollen extracts great care must be taken in determining the dose to be given. But on the other hand the determination of the dose has gone into set rules also. The care to be taken in the dosages of these extracts is determined quite as automatically as the diagnosis is determined.

"The process is so simple that I could take a man in off the street and teach him in a few days to do it. Let us say that you have been suffering with muscular pains—self-diagnosed rheumatism—or asthma, or hay fever, or eczema, or even a poor complexion. The protein to which your skin reacted at the time a diagnosis was made will, of course, be the protein from which the extracts will be made for your immunization.

"Again, a row of scratches are made upon your forearm and into each is inserted the protein extract to be used, graduating the strength of the extract from scratch to scratch in ever decreasing attenuations. Then we watch the scratches. On some, before 20 minutes have elapsed, wheals will again appear. They prove by their presence that the juices of your body have not the power to digest such strength. Therefore the first dose of protein extract to be given hypodermically for immunization must be the strength of the attenuation which fails to produce the wheal.

"Thus we put you under treatment, giving you this automatically found dose at regular intervals with ever-increasing strengths determined by the scratches, and the nonappearance of the wheal at every application. When you have demonstrated that a large amount of a strong extract of this ever increasing dosage system causes no trouble and that you can digest the ultimate strength on your skin, you strangely find that eggs or flour or pollen of plants have ceased to give their former discomforts.

Idiospncrasies Are Curable.

"In this way a person with an indiosyncrasy—that is to say, one to whom certain things are poison—can be cured.

"In the treatment of hay fever we immunize with the proteins of the pollens of grasses, ragweeds, various plants and trees, etc., according to the peculiar pollen to which the sufferer is susceptible.

"Proteins enter our bodies through the eyes, nose, mouth or through a cut; some of them, that of poison ivy, for example, can enter through the unbroken skin. Again, some of them are manufactured in our own bodies. Most of them are harmless to the majority of us, because our systems have no difficulty in digesting them, but we often come across a patient who does not know what ails him; perhaps he has a bad complexion, perhaps bronchitis or 'rheumatic pains' or gout or boils to which ordinary clinical treatment yields no relief. In these obscure situations we at once proceed with our proteins to find out first of all what protein, if any, his system cannot handle. When we have caught the offending protein we either advise him to avoid the substance that contains it or we subject him to a vaccination of the offending species, hoping—and not without a high percentage of certainty—to make him immune. You can tell a man not to eat shellfish: you had better immunize him against milk or white of egg. You can tell a city dweller not to associate with birds; you had better immunize an up-State farmer against feathers.

"When we suspect that the protein is bacterial and produced within the patient we find out whether it comes from a blind abscess at the apex of a tooth, from a diseased tonsil, a hypertrophied gland or what not; then we generally remove the cause. This may be the work of a surgeon or of a dentist. But, on the other hand, we may make a protein vaccine of the particular bacteria of the abscess and by vaccination make him immune to its particular poison. Often the most amazing relief is achieved in this way."

"But is not a physician necessary for this delicate work of experimentation with proteins?" the writer asked.

The answer was that the whole process was safeguarded by such automatic phenomena that the matter was as standard to the whole race of human beings as the location of the appendix is to the surgeon. And it is the technician, not the physician, who makes the tests. Our bacteriological laboratories are turning out many of these technicians, any one of whom is capable of diagnosing and treating most of these standardized procedures.

"I think it may be said without fear of contradiction," said Dr. Edson, "that protein therapy, as it is called, is thoroughly standardized, and it is merely a matter of working according to the rules."

"How would the technician proceed to prove that rheumatic pains were due to a diseased tooth, for example?" the writer put in.

Prove Source of Trouble.

"He would send the sufferer to a dentist whose specilaty is X-ray work. The latter would X-ray all the suspected teeth and if he found an apical abscess would pull that tooth. The technician would take a drop of pus from the abscess, culture the germs, extract its protein and test it on the man's arm. If it gave the expected reaction, as so many bacterial invasions have been known to do, he would know that the diseased tooth had been causing the pains; if it did not, he would have to look elsewhere for the cause of the trouble, knowing that the teeth were not to blame. And the man would only have lost a dead tooth that was sure to make trouble sooner or later."

"But all diseases cannot be handled in this way," the interviewer objected. "Surely a man with an ulcerated stomach, or a cancer of the liver, or Bright's disease, or hardening of the arteries, for example, would not be safe in the hands of anyone but a real physician?"

"That is true," was the answer. "But, on the other hand, a few years ago we should have said the same of syphilis or hydrophobia or typhoid fever or diphtheria or smallpox. We are learning more every day, and it does not seem extravagant to look forward to the time when even such diseases as these about which you have just spoken may yield up their secrets. Once we have caught the germ of a disease we are far on the road to finding out how to kill it or to make the human system immune to it.

"There is still another interesting situation which it seems to me bids fair soon to enter the field of standard procedure and which may soon be handed over to the technician or even the head of the household—namely, the state of the blood in disease. The prominent and outstanding features of its composition are the red cells, the polymorphonuclear neutrophiles, the small lymphocytes, the eosinophiles, the myeloctyes. Of these mentioned a profound individual increase or decrease points quite automatically to specific troubles. For instance, when we find a tremendous increase in the polymorphonuclear cells we know beyond peradventure that the human system is suffering from an acute bacterial invasion. If, on the other hand, the increase is in the small lymphocytes it is a matter of a more chronic inflammation, a tissue breakdown and not an acute bacterial involvement. With an increase of the eosinophiles the lesion points to a skin or heart or lung or intestinal disfunction. With a tremendous increase in the myelocytes and a corresponding decrease in the red cells we know we have a myelogenous leucemia, which in common parlance means at present an incurable anaemia.

"In short, it is the purpose of physicians to standardize the function and disfunction of the human system, so that they may be placed in a mechanistic category as automatic as rabies, tuberculosis, typhoid, meningitis, diphtheria, hay fever.

Go Through Summer in the Finest Health

Take a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin when tired, dull or constipated. Quick results!

WE cannot all spend the Summer in cool mountain resorts, and those who stay at home and swelter through the hot days will find it necessary to be extra cautious about their health. Hot foods are easier to digest than cold, and even hot soup, though it overheats for the moment, is grateful to the system.

Above all, keep the bowels open; that in itself cools the blood and calms the nerves. But when the bowels are sluggish and show signs of constipation, take a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and you will get quick relief. Syrup Pepsin is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin which druggists have sold for a quarter of a century. It is the largest selling liquid laxative in the world.

Syrup Pepsin is the family doctor, the chief medicinal reliance of thousands of people in constipation and ills of the stomach, liver and bowels, in warding off colds, headaches, fevers and summer complaints. Mrs. R. B. Masters of 1424 Second Ave., Birmingham, Ala., has used it in her family for twelve summers, and she never misses an opportunity of telling her friends how healthy Syrup Pepsin has kept them. It has many uses these summer days.

FREE Millions of people of all ages suffer from occasional or chronic constipation. Let them send name and address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 512 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., for a free sample bottle of his wonderful Syrup Pepsin. 8 million bottles were bought at drug stores last year, the largest sale in the world.

Hot Summer Sun Trying On the Complexion

How to Protect Your Skin and Bring Roses to Your Cheeks

A Free Oatmeal Prescription Does Its Work Overnight. You Can Prepare It at Home.

New York—Exposure to sun, dust and wind has a very bad effect upon the skin and complexion. There is a way to overcome this. "It is my own discovery and takes just one night to get such marvelous results," says Mae Edna Wilder when her friends ask her about her wonderful complexion and the improved appearance of her hands and arms. "You can do the same thing if you follow my advice," she says. "I feel it my duty to tell every girl and woman what this wonderful prescription did for me. Just think of it. All this change in a single night. I never tire of telling others just what brought about such remarkable results. Here is the identical formula that removed every defect from my face, neck, hands and arms. Until you try it you form no idea of the marvelous change it will make in just one application. The prescription, which you can prepare at your own home, is as follows:

"Go to any grocery store and get 10 cents' worth of ordinary oatmeal, and from any department or drug store a bottle of Derwillo. Prepare the oatmeal as directed in every package of Derwillo. Before applying Derwillo cleanse the skin thoroughly with a good cleansing cream (Liska cold cream I have found to be the best). The first application will astonish you. It makes the skin appear transparent, smooth and velvety. I especially recommend this method for dark, sallow skin, shiny nose, freckles, tan, sun spots, coarse pores, rough skin, ruddiness, wrinkles and, in fact, every blemish the face, hands and arms are heir to. If your neck or chest is discolored from exposure, apply this combination there and the objectionable defect will disappear as if by magic. It is absolutely harmless and will not produce or stimulate a growth of hair. Since short sleeves are in vogue it is necessary to have beautiful hands and arms, and no matter how rough and ungainly the hands and arms or what abuses they have had through hard work and exposure to sun and wind this combination will work a wonderful transformation. Thousands who are using it report the same results I have had."

Miss O. C. says: "My complexion was poor and my skin rough. My neck, chest, hands and arms were dark from exposure. The very first application of this wonderful Derwillo-oatmeal combination convinced me that my poor complexion and skin blemishes would soon be a thing of the past. In a few weeks all these unsightly defects had entirely disappeared, and I shall always use it to keep my complexion at its best all the time. I have recommended it to my girl friends and they are just as enthusiastic over it as I am. We all use it before going to the theater, dances or parties and it's wonderful what a difference it makes in our appearance."

Mrs. G. V. writes: "Oatmeal and Derwillo have worked miracles with my complexion. I had many despised wrinkles and a sallow rough skin. My hands and arms were covered with freckles. After eight weeks' use of Mae Edna Wilder's wonderful complexion prescription these objectionable defects have entirely vanished. I look ten years younger, and advise every girl and woman to try it and feel confident after one or two applications they will use it continually and be just as favorably impressed with it as I am. I recommend it to all of my friends."

NOTE—To get the best effect, be sure to follow the complete directions contained in every package of Derwillo, and it is so simple that anyone can use it, and so inexpensive that any girl or woman can afford it. Department stores and druggists guarantee that there will be a noticeable improvement after the first application or they will refund the money. It is sold in this city at all toilet counters under a money-refund guarantee, including Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph, Johnson Bros. and the Enderle Stores.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.

5% ON YOUR SAVINGS

The most convenient, most safe, most productive savings plan imaginable—Industrial Loan Company's Savings Certificates.

You can get a Certificate at any time, and for any sum from $50 to $5000. No red tape about the transaction—you buy it as you would a bond. But a Savings Certificate does not fluctuate in value as a bond does—it is always cashable for its full face value. By giving us 30 days' notice we redeem it with interest to date of payment—or, if you must have the money at once, we pay face value of the Certificate on demand.

These Savings Certificates yield 5% interest, payable January 1st and July 1st. They are backed by the entire assets of the Industrial Loan Company, which is directed by some of the best-known business men of St. Louis.

Social, fraternal, labor and business organizations of all sorts use these Savings Certificates extensively for the investment of funds which must be quickly available when needed.

WASHINGTON AND LEE HAD SHARE IN CAMPAIGN

Three of Graduates, Davis, Owen and Poindexter, Presidential Candidates Same Year

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Washington and Lee University at Lexington, Va., has the proud record of having three presidential candidates in the field in the same year. This is perhaps unequaled in the history of American institutions of learning.

John William Davis, the American Ambassador to Great Britain, and Senator Robert Latham Owen of Oklahoma, two of the Democratic aspirants, are alumni of Washington and Lee, as is Senator Miles Poindexter of Washington, who was a candidate for the Republican nomination.

Ambassador Davis took up the degree of Bachelor of Arts at Washington and Lee in 1892. Three years later he was graduated from the university's law school. In 1915, his alma mater conferred the degree of LL. D. upon him. He was assistant professor of law at his university in 1896-7. Senator Owen received his degree at Washington and Lee in 1877, and received the degree of LL. D. in 1908. Senator Poindexter took both the academic and law courses, receiving his low degree in 1891.

Washington and Lee is one of the most famous of Southern institutions, and one of the oldest. Founded under another name, it took its present title after the presidency for many years of the Confederate leader, Gen. Robert E. Lee. Secretary of War Baker is one of its graduates, as are also Senator George E. Chamberlain of Oregon, Julius Kruttschnitt of the Southern Pacific and Wade H. Ellis, former Assistant Attorney-General of the United States.

Other presidential aspirants of 1920 came from the following colleges and universities:

Democratic candidates — William Gibbs McAdoo, University of Tennessee; James M. Cox, high school graduate; A. Mitchell Palmer, Swarthmore; William J. Bryan, Illinois College and Union College of Law; Champ Clark, Bethany College and Cincinnati Law School; Woodrow Wilson, Davison College, Princeton and the University of Virginia; James W. Gerard, Columbia and New York Law School; Gilbert M. Hitchcock, German universities and University of Michigan Law School; Edwin T. Meredith, Hghland Park College; Homer S. Cummngs, Yale; Carter Glass, private and public schools; Furnifold M. Simmons, Lake Forest College and Trinity College; Bainbridge Colby, Williams College, Columbia Law School and New York Law School.

Republican Candidates — Warren G. Harding, Ohio Central University; Frank O. Lowden, Iowa State University and Union College of Law; Leonard Wood, Harvard; Hiram Johnson, University of California; Herbert Hoover, Leland Stanford Jr.; Philander C. Knox, Mt. Union College; Calvin Coolidge, Amherst; Charles E. Hughes, Colgate, Brown and Columbia; Robert M. La Follette, University of Wisconsin; T. Coleman du Pont, Urbana University and Massachusetts Institute of Technology; William E. Borah, University of Kansas; Peter C. Pritchard, school education; Howard Sutherland, Westminster College and Columbia University; James E. Watson, De Pauw University; Irving L. Lenroot, school and business college; Nicholas Murray Butler, Columbia University and German and French universities; Frank B. Kellog, school education.

PRESIDENT TO USE PEN AS CAMPAIGN WEAPON

WASHINGTON. — President Wilson's part in the forthcoming presidential campaign will be passive only in the physical sense and passive only because the illness from which he is recuperating precludes the possibility of active physical participation.

But in the physically passive support the President will render Gov. Cox and Franklin D. Roosevelt and the Democratic party there will be intellectual vitality of the sort that caused leaders of the allies to declare "President Wilson's notes did more to break the Germans than the force of the allied armies."

Whatever aid the chief executive renders will come direct from the White House, as Secretary Tumulty officially announced that Mr. Wilson would remain in the capital throughout the summer, thus setting at rest rumors that he is preparing to establish a summer White House.

Iowa Farm Conditions Improved.

DES MOINES, Ia.—Labor conditions on farms are better in Iowa now than at any time in the last three years, according to a statement by George B. Albert of the State Employment Bureau. Albert said a report that 150,000 men are wanted for farm labor is false. Perhaps 1500 men were needed, he said, but they have been obtained. He said reports from Kansas and Nebraska are that those States have all the labor needed.

"The blood picture just cited is no small step in this direction."

"When that millenial day arrives," the writer remarked, "when the technician shall have taken the place of the physician, when a case of proteins, a microscope and a book of rules in every home shall have sent the corner drug store the way of the corner saloon, and when every man shall be his own doctor, what will physicians do?"

Dr. Edison laughed as he said: "Then we may devote ourselves to the scientific study of disease in the hospitals and laboratories. In spite of the standardization of medicine there will always be plenty of work for the doctors, for diseases and functions are being as newly and constantly fashioned as hybrid plants. Life is still in evolution."

Piles Cured 9 Years Ago—Still Cured.

R. 1, Belleville, Ill., May 16, 1911.

Dr. W. P. Henrich:

Dear Sir:—When I called on you for treatment last January at your office, I was suffering with Internal Piles which had unfitted me for business and made life more or less a burden. I felt that I was in such a condition that something radical had to be done, and instead of wasting any more time with patent medicines and regular physicians, decided that I would submit to the treatment of a good Rectal Specialist, which I understood you to be. I dreaded the treatment; more than I can say, and was most agreeably disappointed, finding it very mild and so effective that I improved from the very start.

Thanks to your skill and careful attention, I am today a well man without a trace of my former troubles. Your work for suffering humanity has proved a blessing to hundreds and I most gratefully indorse your method. No knife is used and the cure is perfect and permanent.

Yours very truly,
JOHN H. CLARK.

URBAN LEAGUE PLACES 2000 NEGROES IN JOBS

Organization Looks After Welfare of Men and Women of Own Race.

The Urban League of the St. Louis Provident Association, with offices at 2329 Market street, an organization for the social and industrial betterment of the city's negroes, has obtained employment for more than 2000 negroes so far this year, and, in its neighborhood department, has reached about 5000 more. The employment work of the industrial section of the league is stressed as one of its most important activities.

Further than obtaining employment for members of the race, the Urban League watches over the industries which employ many negroes and is constantly on the watch for new industrial opportunities. General industrial welfare work is carried on also and representatives of the league sometimes act between workers and employers, interpreting the motives of one to the other.

The neighborhood department provides various recreational activities for children, after school hours and in vacation. Folk dancing is taught them, and various games and sewing classes arranged. George W. Buckner, a negro, executive secretary of the Urban League, estimated that 4000 negro children had participated in neighborhood department affairs this year.

Community meetings have been held weekly at the L'Ouverture School, Jefferson avenue and Papin street, with an average weekly attendance of 500. Here citizenship schools for women are being conducted, the making of a family financial budget explained and personal hygiene taught.

Good Food Instead of Silks.

"Too many of our race have been coming up from the South and getting big wages, spending all they made," Buckner said. "We want to teach them to arrange their finances properly, not to invest their surplus in silk shirts and such. We even show them how good menus can be arranged."

For the first time, manual training and domestic science work for negro children of grade-school age has been carried on this year, a course having been given at the L'Ouverture School at the expense of the Urban League. About 138 boys and girls were enrolled.

It is hoped that the Board of Education will take over this work. "The Urban League wants to turn over its activities to other established organizations," Buckner said, "when practicable, so that we may extend our own work."

The Urban League has been conducting a dental clinic at Special School No. 6, 3106 Lawton avenue, at an expense of over $150 a month. Dr. J. B. Bell, a negro dentist, has been in charge there. Social workers' and other educational classes have been held.

Among the organizations with which the Urban League co-operates are the Central Council of Social Agencies, the Mullanphy Travelers' Aid, the Employers' Association and the Board of Education. The Provident Association underwrites the league's expenses, but otherwise has no control. The league is a member of the National Urban League, established in 33 of the largest cities.

Leaflets Distributed.

In a leaflet, "A New Day," distributed to negroes by the league, the statement is made in the preamble, "We want St. Louis democratic—free from race prejudice and discrimination. You can help!" Among various bits of advice included are these:

"Go to your work clean and change your working clothes before you leave. This breaks down prejudice.

"Be respectful on street cars, avoid vulgar and loud language, be thoughtful of other people. This is decency.

"Help our women to stop wearing bungalow aprons, boudoir caps and house shoes in the streets. Tell our men to stop wearing 'box-back' coats! Dress neatly, not flashy! This wins others' appreciation.

"Avoid patent medicines. Consult your doctor or free clinic in case of sickness. Use the toothbrush, the hairbrush and comb, and soap and water freely.

"Get a job, get there on time, be regular, master it, dignify it, do it better than the other man."

Other advice given is on health, sanitation, schooling, thrift and affiliation with some church.

The officers and board of directors of the Urban League include negroes and white people. The Rev. Dr. John W. Day, pastor of the Church of the Messiah, is chairman; P. L. Usher, principal of the Dessalaines School, is vice chairman, and Dr. C. H. Turner, professor of zoology at Sumner High School, is secretary. The latter two are negroes.

Truck Gardener, 95, Is Thriving.

JUNCTION CITY, Kan.—Watering a thousand sweet potato plants each morning before breakfast is only a little item in the life of John Scott, 95 years old, said to be the oldest man in Geary County. Scott, a resident here for the past 50 years, each summer raises a large amount of garden truck. He arises at 4 a. m. and works for several hours before breakfast. After eating, he brings his vegetables to town in large baskets and they are in demand at the local stores.

Scott's physical and mental condition are much better than those of the average man a quarter century his junior, and he seldom loses a day because of illness.

Editorial

Is There Any Advantage in Buying the Furniture for My New Home Now, During Your August Sale?

Isn't it true that furniture as well as nearly everything else is going to be cheaper soon or in the Fall?

Such questions as these have been put to me a number of times and I think it is due our customers and the public that I answer them in my Editorial, as briefly as possible.

Bedroom and Dining Room Furniture will not be any cheaper, but in all probability somewhat higher, as manufacturers will not guarantee their present prices even now.

Upholstered or Living Room Furniture may be somewhat lower in price before the end of the year, but we are anticipating this, by offering the public wholesale prices now on all upholstered furniture, because it is made in our own factory.

We guarantee the lowest prices in the city of St. Louis, and will say that you who need furniture this Fall have everything to gain and absolutely nothing to lose, if you will take advantage of these low prices AND MAKE YOUR SELECTION NOW.

Doctor Tells How to Straighten Eyesight 50 Per Cent in One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eyestrain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Bon-Opto Strengthens Eyesight

NOTE: Another prominent physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed to them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." It is sold in this city by all good druggists, including the Enderle, Johnson Bros., Pauley, Judge & Dolph and Wolff-Wilson stores.

Says His Prescription Has Powerful Influence Over Rheumatism

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that [illegible] and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery to [illegible] who took it, with what might be called marvelous success. After years of [illegible] ing he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery [illegible] the newspapers. SMITHSONIAN PLANS NEW SOLAR STATION

Effort to Be Made to Forecast Weather From Sun Observation in Arizona Desert.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Dr. C. G. Abbot, assistant secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, has left Washington for Arizona, where he will establish a solar observing station for the Smithsonian in the Haqua Hala Mountains, in the heart of the Arizona desert region. The purpose of the station is to observe daily the amount of solar radiation received on the earth, from the variations of which it is hoped eventually to evolve improved methods of forecasting weather conditions and temperature. Naturally the best place to observe the sun is where there are no clouds, and the Haqua Hala Mountains of Arizona were selected after consultation as being probably the most consistently cloudless region in the United States. Here a shelter will be constructed and the special instruments for observing the sun and computing from the observations the amount of radiation, devised and constructed in the Smithsonian astrophysical observatory, will be set up.

The Smithsonian has maintained an observing station at Calama, Chile, for the past few years with such good results that the Argentine weather bureau receives daily telegraphic reports from the station and uses them very successfully in predicting the rainfall and temperature in Argentine. As it is desirable to have these stations in as many different localities as possible in order to avoid any possible effect of local conditions, it was decided to establish a new station in the United States in addition to the Calama station.

Experiments On 15 Years.

Measurements of the solar radiation have been carried on during the summer months for the last 15 years by Smithsonial observers on Mount Wilson, California. They have shown that the amount of radiation from the sun varies not only from year to year, but also from day to day. The long period variation is due to sun spots and similar indications of activity within the sun. During these times of solar activity, fresh material is brought to the surface of the sun, giving rise to a hotter sun and a greater amount of radiation received on the earth.

The short period variation, which is of greater interest as a possible aid in forecasting weather conditions, is due to changes in transparency of the outer solar envelope. It will be readily seen that to establish a definite relation between the solar radiation and our temperature and weather conditions, it would only be necessary to observe a definite relation between a curve drawn from the daily observed variations in the solar radiation and one drawn from variations from the normal temperature and weather conditions.

This was done by the Argentine Weather Bureau with the result that a remarkable similarity in the two plotted curves was observed, showing that certain deviations from the normal amount of solar radiation are followed at a definite number of days later by deviations from normal temperature and rainfall.

It is hoped to still further verify these results by daily observations from the new station in the Haqua Hala Mountains, Arizona, where the sun shines from a cloudless sky on a large majority of days in the year. The establishment of this station by the Smithsonian was made possible through the generosity of a friend of the institution whose interest in this phase of scientific research led him to provide aid for further development of the investigation.

CANADIANS WAX RICH FROM LIQUOR TRADE

Bootlegging Along Border Prospers Despite Efforts of Authorities on Both Sides.

By the Associated Press.

OTTAWA, July 23.—As long as profits from bootlegging are what they are, and the only deterrent is a fine of $200 or so, there will be big money in the bootlegging game and it will be very difficult for the authorities on either side of the international line to stamp out the traffic.

That is the summary of opinions expressed by Ottawa officials as to the situation regarding smuggling of liquor from Canada to the United States. Further, high officials of the Royal Canadian mounted police say that while they are doing all in their power to check infractions of the Federal laws in this respect, it is really for the American authorities to see that liquor does not reach the thirsty souls beyond the imaginary line 3000 miles long.

The situation apparently is that from three provinces in particular there is a large trade in bootlegging to the United States. These are Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia. At the same time a respectable quantity of fiery liquid is finding its way across from the maritime provinces and from Manitoba.

Profits Are Enormous.

At Windsor and in the surrounding districts the mounted police are carrying on a constant campaign against the illegal liquor vendors, and many have been hauled into court and condemned to pay fines from $200 up. One parched Detroit man, however, is said to have parted with $500 for three cases of Scotch whisky, which reached him via the "underground route" a short time ago, so that the profits in the illegal trade are known to be enormous. Information from Windsor and district intimates to the authorities here that some farmers in that vicinity have found it more profitable to smuggle liquor across the border than to farm, and have let their farms run to weeds while they pursue the elusive dollar via the bootlegging route.

Quebec, it is stated, is the mecca for thirsty thousands of Americans every week-end, and automobiles passing back and forth carry their loads of human and other freight, bound for the Saraha across the border. Under these conditions, Canadian police authorities admit that it is practically impossible to enforce the stringent liquor laws at present in force.

Bootlegging an Achievement.

The chief reason for the difficulty of enforcement, according to an official of the Royal Canadian mounted police, who have under their jurisdiction the carrying out of all federal laws, is the fact that many people are not in sympathy with the liquor legislation, and the securing of contraband liquor is regarded in many quarters as an achievement rather than a disgrace.

However, if the carrying of liquor into the United States from Canada is to be prevented, it is intimated that it will have to be done by an army of customs inspectors and police on the American side of the line rather than in Canada.

IRON SHUTTERS CAUSE POGROMS

Riots and Massacres Follow Fight of Levant Shopkeepers.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 28.—Iron shutters have probably caused more riots, massacres and pogroms in the Levant than political agitators. All shops in the Near East are provided with rolling iron shutters which work in iron grooves. When they are banged down they make as much noise as a machine-gun. Every time there is rumor of any sort of trouble some timid merchant slams down his shutters to protect his plate glass. Without investigating the cause, other merchants follow instantly with such a clatter that the public becomes panicky and rushes about trying to discover the cause of the flurry.

At such moments, excited crowds will credit any rumor which is put into circulation. Pickpockets avail themselves of such opportunities. Soapbox orators, street fakers and magicians gather crowds by this device. In any Turkish city the circulation of a rumor that a movement is to be started against Christians will cause all the Armenian and Greek shops to close within a few minutes, and frequently the noisy closing of the shops fans the religious hatred of the Moslems into action.

35 BUSHELS AN ACRE FROM VOLUNTEER WHEAT IN KANSAS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SMITH CENTER, Kan.—Of the thousands of Northwest Kansas wheat growers who have come into small fortunes this season through the growth of volunteer wheat, none was more lucky, perhaps, than Emmett Womer of this county. With 270 acres of stubblefield to plant to wheat last fall he was unable to do the work because of bad weather, and finally gave up his plan. To his surprise, however, a heavy rain in September started a rank growth of volunteer grain, and it looked so promising that he let it stand. It furnished rich pasturage all winter for 100 head of cattle, and at the present time the owner is just finishing the task of putting the grain from the field into bin, using a combination header-thresher. It produced about 35 bushels an acre on an average, and the grain tests 60 to 63, with a market price of $2.60 a bushel.

Now you can see the beautiful Jackson Models that have aroused so much favorable comment in the foremost motor centers of the country. We are happy to present the 1920 designs to our many motor friends who have eagerly awaited their coming.

There's a reason for Jackson success. The 1920 models are a reflection of factory practices so unusual in these days of quantity production. For over sixteen years acknowledged automotive craftsmen have produced the Jackson in accord with fixed ideals, and these cars are the fullest expression of their art. A high degree of handwork wherever it is superior to machine work supplements noteworthy mechanical features. Such careful building makes the Jackson the embodiment of the honest, rugged purposes so characteristic of the historic figure whose name it bears.

PHILIPPINES RENEW BAGUAN NEGOTIATIONS

Efforts Again Being Made to Get Island Ceded to United States by Treaty.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

MANILA, P. I., June 24.—The Philippine Government has renewed negotiations for control of the little island of Baguan, only 30 miles northeast of British North Borneo in the Sulu Sea. Baguan, although part of the Philippine group ceded by Spain to the United States in the Treaty of Paris, has remained under the control of the British North Borneo Government, because of the proximity to that island.

Baguan also known as Turtle Island, on account of the great number of turtles there, is inhabited by Moros, who, Philippine officials assert, should be placed under the control of the Government of the Sulu Archipelago which is the southernmost part of the Philippine group.

Sir Aylmer Pearson, Governor of British North Borneo, has been visiting at Baguio, the summer capital of the Philippines, and officials of the insular Government hoped to complete the preliminary negotiations with him for taking control of Baguan, so that the matter might be presented to Washington for final adjustment in a short time.

The island of Baguan is said to be the clearing house for a ring which smuggles large quantities of opium into the islands of the Sulu Archipelago, as well as into the island of Mindanao. Officials believe this opium traffic can be broken up when Baguan is brought under control of the Philippine Government.

BOY TRIES TO DO MOVIE STUNT IN PARK AND IS ARRESTED

Hanging Proves to Be Too Realistic and Frightened Woman Gives Alarm.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HANNIBAL, Mo.—Jerry Gordon, 18 years old, was arrested because he was too realistic in carrying out some of the movie thrillers in one of the parks of this city. Gordon is employed at one of the local moving picture houses and there he has ample opportunities to see the stunts of the dare-devils of the screen. Accordingly he decided to go them one better.

He tied a strap around his right leg near the knee and to this he tied a rope. Placing the rope around the base of one of the trees in the park, he made a loop in the rope which was placed around his neck, after which he drew himself up to the tree.

While he was in this position a woman who was passing saw him, and believing he was trying to hang himself, became frightened and called a fireman. The boy escaped, but was later arrested and advised to confine his movie stunts in the future to a more private place.

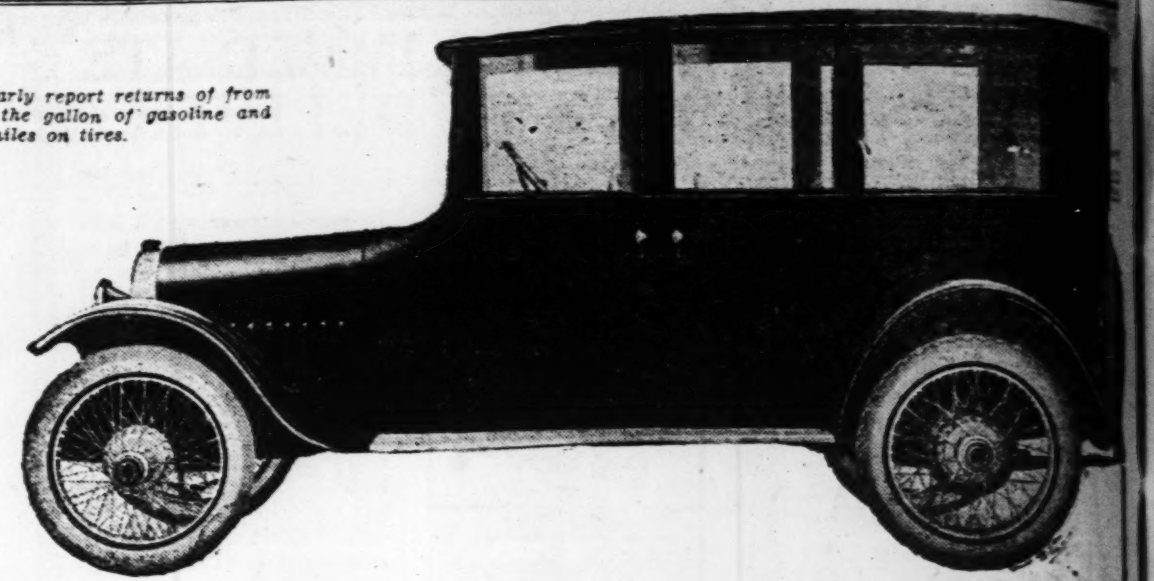
CONSIDERATION FOR DOG

Such Conduct Led to the Discovery of a Fire.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind.—A lad's consideration for a hungry little dog resulted in the discovery of fire at the Temple Laundry, which was burned the other night, it was learned.

Herschel Martin, employed at the place, had a dog which he was not permitted to keep at home, so he kept it in the boiler room of the laundry. After supper the other night he gathered scraps left from the meal and went to the boiler room and waiting dog. A younger brother was with him.

As they passed a window they saw flames in the west end of the building. Unlocking the door they rushed in and telephoned fire headquarters.



Oakland owners regularly report returns of from 18 to 25 miles from the gallon of gasoline and from 8,000 to 12,000 miles on tires.

A CHALMERS

With HOT SPOT & RAM'S-HORN accomplishes more with the low grade "gas" today than many cars did with a high test "gas" years ago

Quality First

THE resourceful minds in the Chalmers engineering corps have wrestled with the gasoline problem, solved it; and now a Chalmers does undreamed of things with low grade gasoline.

Hot Spot and Ram's-horn, accepted by the public and the automobile trade alike, as the means of getting out the power that nature stored in gasoline, perform engineering miracles.

That they get the power out is well known.

That they increase mileage from "gas" is well known.

That they reduce vibration is well known.

That they save in up-keep and repairs a large sum each year is well known.

But how well known are these facts:

1. A Chalmers engine is practically carbon exempt.

2. A fouled spark plug is seldom found in a Chalmers.

3. An improperly adjusted carburetor is seldom experienced in a Chalmers.

Only those who drive a Chalmers know, and they will tell you that these are but a few of the reasons why a Chalmers is one of the few great cars of the world

NEW COTTON PLANTING METHOD

Matamoras Cultivator Does Not Thin Out Rows in His Fields.

MATAMOROS, Mexico.—An experiment of growing cotton thick in the rows, instead of chopping the plants so that they would be about 24 inches apart, has been made this season by E. J. Puig upon his 360-acre farm near here. It has proved highly successful and a yield of one and one-half to one and three-fourths bales per acre is being obtained. Cotton growing in Northeastern Mexico is rapidly becoming a most important industry and is bringing much wealth to farmers. It is necessary to market all of the staple and seed in Mexico as a quarantine against the exportation of these products to the United States is in effect on account of the alleged existence of the pink boll worm in this country.

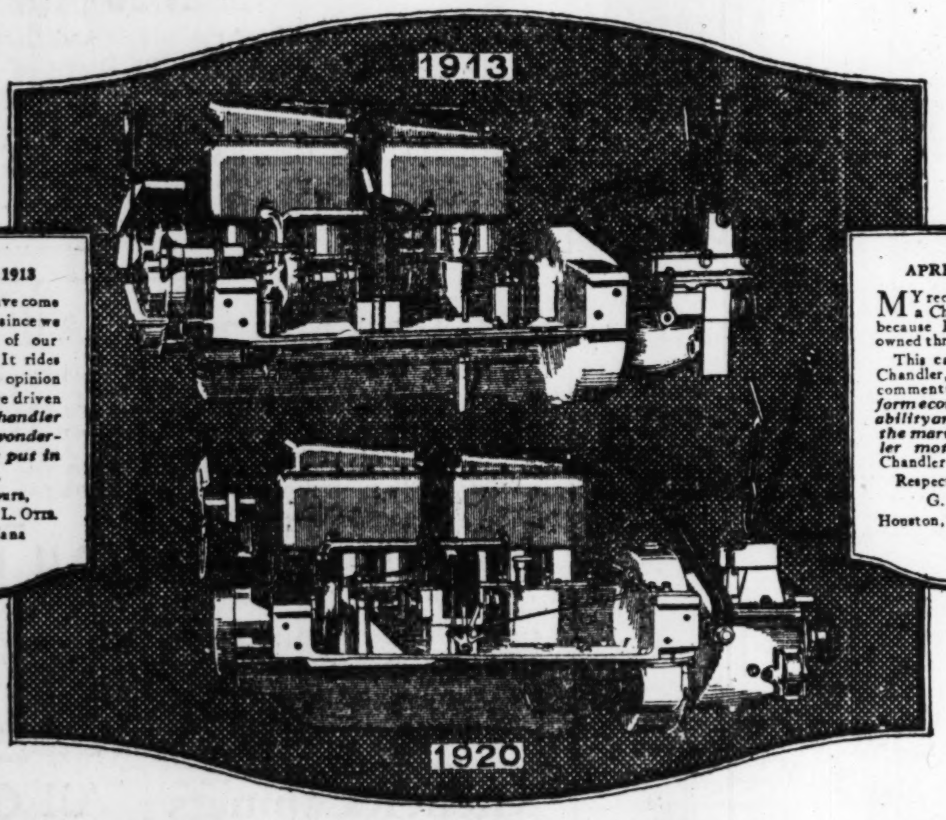
CHANDLER SIX

Famous For Its Marvelous Motor



AUGUST 29, 1913

SURPRISES have come thick and fast since we took delivery of our Chandler Six. It rides perfectly and the opinion of those who have driven it is that the Chandler has the most wonderful motor ever put in an automobile.

Very truly yours,
W. L. OTTE.
South Bend, Indiana

APRIL 28, 1920

MY recent purchase of a Chandler Six was because I have already owned three Chandlers.

This car is my fourth Chandler, and I desire to comment upon the uniform economy, dependability and efficiency of the marvelous Chandler motor of all my Chandler cars.

Respectfully yours,
G. GRAHAM HALL.
Houston, Texas.

The Motor of Seven Years Ago and the Motor of Today

The Chandler Six of 1920 is a refinement of that first Chandler Six of 1913. Seven years of devotion on the part of the Chandler organization to this one Chandler motor has placed it in the position of distinction which it holds today.

Seven years of service in the hands of thousands of owners, seven years of skillful application by Chandler engineers, has brought the Chandler motor and the one standard Chandler chassis to approximate perfection.

In these seven years many motors of many makes have come and gone. Chandler continues a leader among fine cars, because of the excellence of its performance.

On the one Chandler chassis are mounted six handsome types of body.

PORTAGE
PORTAGE RUBBER CO. AKRON, OHIO, U.S.A.

THE Grand Pass from New York City to Canada lies up the Hudson River and Lake Champlain, where lived the dreaded Iroquois. Between the head of the river and the foot of the lake is a Portage (as the rough paths between the lakes were called,) that has become famous in history.

Its soil has been trodden by the feet of such men as Champlain, Johnson, Abercrombie, Montcalm and Burgoyne. In the wars between the French and English, it echoed with the war whoops of brutal savages and the cries of helpless pioneers and settlers. During the Revolutionary war it played an important and historic part.

It was to experienced pathfinders, the Indian guides and trappers, that our ancestors entrusted their safety, their canoes and their baggage on their perilous journeys of exploration and settlement. Especially in traversing the Portages, were keen eyes, quick ears and sure feet needed.

IT is to tires of established reputation, tires that have earned a name for big Mileage and dependable Service, that we entrust our automobiles and their burdens today, on the great highways of travel.

Such are PORTAGE TIRES. Built up of many layers of the stoutest cotton fabric and cord; fortified and protected by a thick and tough (but pliant) rubber tread, they combine easy-riding comfort with assured mileage. Through ten years of faithful performance they have come to be recognized as trustworthy carriers, like the old trapper guides that made the first Portages between the lakes.

Trust Portage Tires—They're Mileage Pathfinders!

"KATINKA" IS OPERA SEASON'S FINAL WORK

Five Performances of Musical Play, and Then Farewell Concert as Curtain.

"Katinka," a musical play by Rudolf Friml and Otto Hauerbach, authors of "The Firefly," will be the municipal opera company's offering for the final week of the season of eight weeks, beginning Tuesday night at the open-air theater in Forest Park. "Katinka" was given here in November, 1917, at the Shubert-Garrick Theater.

Its story deals with a singer, Katinka, who, in a fit of temper, jilts her lover, Ivan Dmitri, and marries Boris Strogoff, Russian Ambassador to Austria. The course of true love is assisted by an obstreperous American, Thaddeus T. Hopper, and after the scene shifts from Vienna to Constantinople, and finally to Paris, the usual happy ending arrives.

The roles are assigned as follows: Varenka, Katinka's maid, Elva Maghus; Petrov, an old servant to Boris, Ralph Nicholls; Ivan Dmitri, an attache to the Russian Ambassador, Warren Proctor; Boris Strogoff, Bernard Ferguson; Katinka, Irene Pavloska; Tatiana, Katinka's mother, Mildred Rogers; Thaddeus T. Hopper, Raymond Crane; Knopf, manager of a cafe in Vienna, Harry Hermsen; Arif Bey, warden of Izzet Pasha's harem, Charles E. Galagher; Olga, later Nashan, first wife to Boris, Eva Olivotti, and Mrs. Helen Hopper, Lilian Crosman.

The work will be given only five nights, for next Sunday evening, the last night of the season, is to be devoted to a grand opera concert, under the direction of Max Bendix.

COAL SITUATION NEAR CRISIS; SHORTAGE OF CARS INCREASES

Relief Not Likely to Come Until Rail Brotherhoods Can Supply Switchmen and Yardmen to End Congestion in Nearly Every Terminal in East.

LOW RAIL RATES FACTOR IN SHORTAGE

Abuse of Car Assignment Said to Share in Making Conditions Acute—Revenue for Increased Wages Waits on I. C. C.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, July 24.—The situation in the coal fields has become of the utmost vital importance to every wage earner and consumer in America. Steadily since March 1 the coal operators have faced an ever-increasing shortage of cars. This condition cannot be remedied until the railroad companies and the brotherhoods can supply sufficient switchmen and yardmen to clear the congestion in practically every railroad clearing yard east of the Mississippi River.

Thousands of freight cars are stowed away on sidetracks and held there, due to lack of help in switching at transfer points. The coal mines have been and still are being hard put. The shortage of coal cars in the southern Illinois district almost takes one's breath away. The time lost in 68 of the leading mines in Franklin, Williamson, Perry, Jackson, Saline and Gallatin Counties amounted to 27 per cent of total working time on the week ending April 1, 54 per cent on the week ending May 1, 46 per cent on the week ending June 5, 56 per cent on the week ending July 1, and approximately the same ratio on the week ending July 17. In other words, the mines in this district lost over half of the full working time, due directly to the shortage of coal cars.

The acute shortage has resulted in universal dissatisfaction among coal miners working day and straight time employed in mines that are not engaged in filling orders of railroad companies.

Car Assignment Abuse.

On the face of it the average dealer wonders why some mines are running full time with a plentiful supply of cars, while another mine, just across the road, is only able to secure enough cars to run two and a half to three days a week. This condition is directly due to the assigned car abuse.

Railroad companies in pre-war times enjoyed the privilege of assigning system cars for their own individual orders at will. However, in the spring of 1918, John Skelton Williams and William G. McAdoo appealed to President Wilson and the President immediately ordered that the assigned car system be abolished. However, since the railroads were returned to private ownership, the Baltimore & Ohio, Pennsylvania, and other railroads appealed to the Commission to allow them assigned car privileges, with the direct understanding that system cars only would be assigned on each railroad's individual contract.

The railroads have apparently taken advantage of the acute car shortage, and one of the leading coal operators of the Central Illinois district told me that at one time the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul assigned 165 cars to certain mines that had contracted with the road and that there were only nine system cars in the lot. The result of the assigned car abuse has manifested itself in one mine working full time where they were fortunate enough to have railroad orders, while the mine directly alongside, with scores of orders awaiting shipment, is unable to procure enough cars to work half time.

Where Responsibility Rests.

Investigation indicates that the responsibility for this crisis, probably the greatest that the country has ever faced, rests in the railroad brotherhoods, the railroad companies and the Federal Railroad Commission. Without doubt, the bulk of the responsibility rests with the Interstate Commerce Commission, because the railroads are unable to pay sufficient wages or properly reconstruct rolling stock until rates have been raised to a point where they can secure tremendous financial assistance. It is pointed out that, with wage increases totalling over 100 per cent and construction materials advanced from 100 to 300 per cent, the railroads cannot finance

Miners Advised to "Go Back to Work"

By the Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 24.

"GO back to work," was the advice telegraphed to miners' locals today by Vice President Harry Fishwick of the Illinois Miners' Union. With Department of Labor arbitrators on the ground, waiting to start conciliation efforts Monday, Fishwick believes many miners will heed his order.

Whether the conciliators, John B. Lennon of Bloomington, and William H. Rogers of Albia, Ia., will hold public hearings or visit the coal fields, has not been decided. Their mission here, as told by Vice President Fishwick, is to get the mines working again. The conciliators themselves refuse to say anything further.

DECISION TOMORROW ON M'CULLOCH DEMURRER

If Attack on Indictment Is Overruled, Trial Will Begin Aug. 30.

A decision on the demurrer offered by the defense to the indictment against Richard McCulloch, president of the United Railways Co., and Bruce Cameron, former superintendent of transportation, charged with second degree burglary and larceny, will be rendered tomorrow by Judge Orin Patterson in the Green County Circuit Court at Springfield. The case is pending in that court on a change of venue from St. Louis.

The charge arises from the theft of referendum petitions against the United Railways franchise ordinance, from a safe in a St. Louis office building, June 15, 1918.

The demurrer represents the effort of counsel for McCulloch and Cameron to obtain dismissal of the case on a technicality, without hearing of the evidence. The demurrer was filed May 24, when the case was called for trial, and arguments were heard by Judge Patterson on that day. A continuance was then granted, because of the absence of a witness for the defense, and to give time for consideration of the demurrer. Aug. 30 was set as the date for the trial in case the demurrer is overruled.

Briefs Filed by Both Sides.

Two printed briefs have been filed by the lawyers for the defense and one by the State's lawyers. The attorneys for the defense are Barbour & McDavid and Roscoe Patterson of Springfield, Patterson being a brother of Judge Patterson and P. H. Cullen, Thomas B. Harvey and Elliott W. Major of St. Louis. Circuit Attorney McDaniel is in charge of the prosecution, assisted by William Baer and A. C. Maroney of his office and by O. J. Page and Sam M. Wear of Springfield, Page being prosecuting attorney of Greene County.

Circuit Attorney McDaniel will go to Springfield tonight, to be in court when the decision is rendered.

If Judge Patterson should sustain the demurrer, the prosecution would have the right of appeal to the State Supreme Court, and such an appeal would probably be taken. If the Supreme Court should uphold the lower court, the case would be at an end; if it should reverse the lower court, the case could be reinstated on the docket, but the delay would probably have an unfavorable effect on the State's case.

Argument of Defense.

The demurrer is based on the argument that referendum petitions are not property, having no individual ownership and no money value; and hence that stealing them is not larceny within the meaning of the law, and that breaking a safe for that purpose is not burglary, but only malicious destruction of property, a minor offense.

The State's reply to this argument has been that the referendum petitions are designated in the indictment as pamphlets; that they have a value, given to them by the work done in preparing them and obtaining signatures; and that they were the property of an individual so long as they were not filed with the Election Board. Edward H. Hellman, secretary of the Cigar Makers' Union, is named as the owner. The State also argues that the statute on larceny is broad enough to cover this offense. The statute, after reciting certain objects which are the subject of larceny, adds, "or other personal property or valuable thing whatsoever."

BAILEY LEADS IN TEXAS PRIMARY

Former Senator Ahead in Race for Nomination for Governor.

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, Tex., July 24.—At 10:30 o'clock tonight an unofficial tabulation of 48,796 votes from 139 cities and towns gave Joseph W. Bailey, former United States Senator from Texas, a lead of 1,847 votes over his closest opponent for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, Pat M. Neff. Robert E. Thomason, on the face of these partial, unofficial returns, was a poor third, with B. F. Looney, former State Attorney General, fourth. The figures were: Bailey 17,575; Looney 6,843; Neff 15,728; and Thomason 11,150.

MILES STANDISH AND JOHN ALDEN SAIL FOR AMERICA

Adventurers in Doublets and Buckskins, With Families, Embark on "Mayflower" and "Speedwell."

SORROWFUL GOODBY AND GODSPEEDS

Pageant Celebrating the Departure of the Pilgrim Fathers 300 Years Ago Is Held at Southampton.

SOUTHAMPTON, July 24.—Garbed in doublets and buckskins, a band of adventurers, with their wives and children, today marched solemnly to the Southampton shore and embarked on two fragile ships, "Mayflower" and "Speedwell." Their passengers included Miles Standish, William Bradford, John Carver and John Alden.

Crowds remaining behind made sorrowful goodbyes and godspeeds. One cried, "reckon America be a long way off." The crowd stood waving farewells as the ships sailed. One ventured: "Reckon none of us know what will be the ending of this sailing of the Mayflower." The people sang "God of Our Fathers, Be the God of Their Succeeding Race."

Thus terminated a pageant celebrating departure of the Pilgrim fathers 300 years ago.

The pageant, in which 400 persons participated, was enacted in the shadow of the Mayflower monument erected by American descendants of the Pilgrims in 1913. It was viewed by a large gathering, including the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Mayor of Southampton and J. Butler Wright and other representatives of the American embassy. It depicted scenes in the village life of England under the first Stuarts. Arrival of the Huguenot refugee, Henri Portal, who escaped from France in a barrel, afforded much amusement.

Several events in American history were portrayed, among them the Boston tea party, Lincoln at Gettysburg and the American entry into the World War.

Lord Chancellor's Speech.

The Lord Chancellor, Baron Birkenhead, speaking at the Pilgrims' lunch, said:

"My view of the future of the League of Nations is that its power, its influence, will depend precisely on the contribution which the American nation thinks proper to make to it. The Americans created it, it is their child.

"The league was brought forward by President Wilson in a sense that compelled attention of the world, because President Wilson occupied a position of extraordinary power. At the moment that power was strongest, that trumpet note was heralded to a world broken and stricken—an unforgetable message of great idealistic hope—and for it full responsibility must be borne by the American nation. The whole body of the Allies has made a generous and unanimous response.

Must Yield to U. S. View.

"The whole of Europe is prepared to define its power and its functions in terms which the American nation ultimately desires to impress upon us. Nor is it in our power to lend it greater or higher importance than the American nation is prepared to concede.

"If, as a result of their present political preoccupations, their deliberate decision is to attenuate its importance and diminish its functions, we shall and must acquiesce in that view, but I am persuaded that we have inherited from American eloquence and idealism a conception which may still pluck some salvage from the bloody and devastating struggle."

J. Butler Wright, Counselor of the American Embassy, pointed to the fact that 16 American presidents had been of pure English blood, while nine others were of Welsh, Irish or Scotch ancestry.

Charles H. Sherrill, speaking for the American guests, declared his belief that the commission forming the International Court at The Hague was laying the cornerstone of future American participation in the attempt to adjudicate international troubles.

POLICE STRIKE NEW TRAIL IN TRUNK MURDER MYSTERY

Letters Produced by Expressman Ordered to Hold Trunk Expected to Reveal Identity of Slain Woman.

HANDWRITING SAID TO BE SAME IN ALL

Wife of Writer of Letters Known to Have Disappeared Mysteriously Day Trunk Was Shipped.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 24.—The police are still trying to identify the young woman whose nude body was found yesterday morning in a trunk in the general storage warehouse of the American Railway Express Co., through newspaper publicity they were able to strike a trail which they hope may lead to the murderer.

Having read that the man who shipped the body from Detroit, June 10, gave his name and address as A. A. Tatum, 105 Harper street, Detroit, and that a man named E. Leroy left his apartment at that address about the same date, a day after his wife mysteriously disappeared, Andrew J. Branic, proprietor of Branic's New York and Brooklyn Express Co., went to the police with a remarkable story.

Branic said that on June 11 he received a letter from Detroit, signed A. A. Tatum, asking the express man to get a trunk which Tatum was sending prepaid from Detroit, and to hold it until Tatum arrived in New York. An express receipt giving the name of the shipper as A. A. Tatum and the consignee as James Douglas, was inclosed in the letter. Branic called for the trunk twice but did not get it.

The handwriting in the Tatum letter, said Branic, was the same as that in a letter the express man received Jan. 7 from O. J. Woods, asking him to send to Detroit a trunk which had been left at Branic's place of business since July 10, 1919. The letter asked that the trunk be sent to E. Leroy.

Branic turned both these letters and the express company receipt over to the police, who are making a thorough investigation along this line. The police withheld some of the most interesting details of the expressman's story.

Leroy and Tatum Same Man.

"There is no doubt that Leroy and Tatum are the same man," said Branic. "The handwriting in each of the letters is the same. But neither of these names is his correct name. He had a habit of changing his name whenever he got into trouble and he was known to me by two other names, O. J. Fernandez and O. J. Woods.

"I have known him since October, 1918. He introduced himself then as Fernandez, which I believe to be his real name. He came in here from Pennsylvania Station with a man named Joseph Yanez. They said they had just arrived from San Antonio, Tex., where they have been Government inspectors of airplanes during the war. They engaged me to get a trunk from Pennsylvania Station and keep it here, which I did.

"Later I came to know Fernandez and Yanez very well. They took a room on West Thirty-sixth street and used to come here often and talk. In November, 1913, they took the trunk and went to Philadelphia to take work in an airplane factory in or near that city.

"A short time later Yanez came back to New York and took a room in a house in the Spanish colony in West Sixty-third street. Fernandez remained in Philadelphia until July, 1919, when he joined Yanez in New York. Either then or previously, I think he was employed by the Hudson Automobile Co. He and Yanez were expert automobile mechanics and good drivers.

"About this time Fernandez got into a bad scrape. He was driving an automobile home from Coney Island, with some girls and men, when he had an accident in which one person was killed. He was in the hospital several days and was in jail about a month before he got out on bail.

Gave Name as O. J. Woods.

"He gave his name when arrested as O. J. Woods and on July 10 last left a trunk at my place under that name for me to store for him. He also borrowed $20 from me. In October or November he jumped his bail and went to Toledo, O. He went to Detroit shortly after and was there on Dec. 25, 1919, for he wrote me a letter on that day.

"On January 7, 1920, I received a letter from him asking me to send the trunk to E. Leroy, care of Y. M. C. A., Detroit. He inclosed a check for $25 to pay back the $10 he still owed on the $20 loan and the charges

FLATIRONS FLY IN GIRLS' RACE RIOT IN REFORMATORY

Negro Inmates Defend Selves With Knives at Bedford, N. Y.

By the Associated Press.

BEDFORD, N. Y., July 24.—Inmates of the reformatory for women today engaged in a race riot, which started in the laundry and quickly spread to all cottages at the institutions.

Hot flatirons used by the negro girls in the fight in the laundry forced their opponents to flee, but the battle was renewed on the lawn when scores of white inmates joined in the fray. The laundry was wrecked. About 150 girls took part. The negroes were outnumbered five to one, but they held off their opponents with knives and flatirons.

Three girls escaped from the reformatory tonight. A fourth, who escaped during the riot, was caught.

Several policemen and troopers were injured while quelling the disturbance. One was bitten by a girl. About a dozen girls were cut and bruised. The ringleaders and about 70 participants were locked in the prison building, where they continued screaming and shouting.

Miss Florence Jones, superintendent, resigned tonight as a result of the trouble. The Rev. Thomas Kelley, former chaplain, assisted the police.

"Some of the girls got the impression they could do just as they pleased," he said. "One girl said they could get away with murder."

31,349 AUTOMOBILES STOLEN IN 19 CITIES IN LAST YEAR

St. Louis Only Large City With Number of Thefts Less Than in 1913.

There were 31,349 automobiles stolen in 19 of the larger cities of the United States in 1919 as compared with 25,613 in the same cities the previous year, according to figures compiled by the National Automobile Dealers' Association and made public today at the association's headquarters here. This is an increase of 22.4 per cent.

Belief was expressed, however, that 1920 would show a material reduction in the number of stolen machines because of the Dyer law, which makes interstate transportation of stolen automobiles a Federal offense.

Of the 31,349 cars stolen in 1919, 23,332, or 74.4 per cent, were recovered. Cars not recovered were valued at approximately $8,658,360.

New York again leads the cities in cars stolen with 5527 in 1919 against 3340 in 1918. St. Louis was the only large city where the number was less than in 1918.

STORM BLOWS DOWN TENTS IN GUARDSMEN'S CAMP AT NEVADA

Member of Kansas City Regiment, Caught Under Pole, Suffers Broken Arm.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEVADA, Mo., July 24.—Storm swept over the encampment of the Missouri National Guard this afternoon. All of the smaller tents and some of the outlying buildings were wrecked. The storm hit the camp at 3:45 and continued for about an hour and a half. The tent used by the Y. M. C. A. flattened out when about 25 men were in it. An unidentified man from a Kansas City regiment was caught under a pole, suffering a broken arm and internal injuries.

While the storm was at its highest, the men rushed out and caught the tents which were blown down and by the time the clouds had blown over all of the tents were up except for a few which were blown away.

The men will break camp tomorrow.

TEMPERATURE AT ST. CHARLES 105, HIGHEST IN 19 YEARS

Reading in Shade Breaks Records Since 1901—Corn Crop May Be Damaged by Heat.

The weather bureau thermometer at St. Charles registered a temperature of 105 degrees in the shade at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, establishing a record for heat that has been unequaled since July 23, 1901, when a temperature of 112 was registered.

No heat prostrations were reported, though the farmers expressed the fear that the early corn crop was injured. The highest temperature at St. Charles Thursday was 100 degrees and on Friday 102.

WILL DEPORT WESTERN ALIENS

Four of Them Rushed From Ellis Island to Outbound Vessel.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 24.—Thirty-five of the 63 aliens brought to Ellis Island from Western and Middle Western cities are to be deported because of their radical activities, Immigration Commissioner Wallis announced tonight. Four of them, he said, were rushed to an outbound vessel and sent to their native land.

Referring to the remainder, Commissioner Wallis said he planned "to make quick work of these Bolsheviki deportees."

SOVIET MOVES FOR POLISH ARMISTICE; ARMY FALLING BACK

LENINE, AIMING AT WORLD REVOLT, DECLARES LEAGUE FAILURE AIDS HIS CAUSE

Premier Tells Internationale Economic Crisis Promotes Bolshevism and Says Capitalism Is Near Collapse.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, July 21.—Nikolai Lenine, the Soviet Premier, speaking at the opening session of the Third Internationale, Monday, stated that the world's economic crisis and the failure of the League of Nations to reconcile and unite the interests of capitalistic governments were the most important factors promoting the aims of the Third Internationale, one of which was to consolidate and organize world revolution.

After Lenine's address, in which he declared, among other things, that the entire capitalistic system of the world was threatened with collapse and that the League of Nations contributed to communism, the Internationale adopted a resolution calling on the workers of all nations to institute an economic blockade of Poland. Lenine pointed out that even in countries where there were the most favorable conditions, such as America, Japan and England, the increase in the cost of living was disproportionate to the rise in wages, and declares that those who benefited in all countries were an infinitely small proportion of the population.

Collapse of Capitalism.

The collapse of the entire capitalistic system was threatened, Lenine said, owing to the impossibility of settling war debts without involving many countries in economic ruin and because of the hopelessness of reconstruction under a capitalistic regime. English economists such as Kent, he declared, had already advanced the idea that annulment of war debts was necessary for the re-establishment of international credit.

The deportation of "500" communists from America would not help the capitalistic regime while need among the laboring classes was increasing and capitalists were continuing to enrich themselves at the expense of the workers, the Premier continued. The working classes were ripe for a broad revolutionary movement and the task of this internationale was to consolidate and organize world revolution, he said.

The League of Nations, a prey to international dissensions, had furnished no protection to small nationalities, he asserted, and the imperialistic Governments, in pursuance of selfish interests, were placing the defeated nations in the position of colonies. Lenine cited the differences that had arisen over Turkey. Thus, he said, the activities of the League of Nations had facilitated the work of the communist internationale.

Fertile Fields for Soviets.

The Premier pointed to the representation in the Internationale for the first time of colonies, dependencies, and "oppressed nations," which he declared was significant. Experience was proving, he added, that noncapitalistic countries, such as those of Asia, were fertile fields for Soviet doctrines.

Regarding international organization, Lenine asserted that the Social Democrats were the most serious obstacle to the development of revolutionary power as a means of service to all countries, as it had been shown they were the enemies of the working class and defenders of the Bourgeoisie. It would be an easier task to unify the left wing of the Socialistic movement, he said, and rectify mistakes in the Proletariat campaign by the adoption of a program of united action.

SURPLUS OF FLATS FOLLOWS "BACK TO FARM" MOVEMENT

Chicago Has 6000 to 8000 Vacant Places Now — Costs Delay New Building.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, July 24.—Two months ago Chicago people went around vainly trying to find a flat or a house in which to live and landlords were boosting rents.

Conditions have changed. Real estate men admitted today they had between 6000 and 8000 vacant flats, the result of a "back-to-the-farm" movement.

Owing to extreme high cost of materials and labor, more than 50 per cent of the building projects for this season have been abandoned. This has resulted in no work for thousands of trade workers, who have gone elsewhere to find employment.

There is a remarkable exodus of families of soldiers who came to Chicago to reside during the war and are now leaving the city.

Taxes and high cost of food are factors in the case of many who are getting out of the city to farms or towns where they can grow their own food.

NEW OFFICIALS AS ELECTION FRAUD CHECK

Board Proposes to Change Judges and Clerks Where Suspicion of Dishonesty Exists.

The Board of Election Commissioners yesterday determined to scan the returns of the 1916 and 1918 elections to see in what precincts it appeared that possibly the returns made were not as the votes had been cast.

The board proposes to name new judges and clerks in any precinct where there seems to be suspicion of dishonesty. Judges and clerks are appointed for two years under the general election law, but the primary law permits appointment at any time at the discretion of the board.

There is no penalty for dishonest returns in the primary law. The board has recollection that in 1916 one precinct of the First Ward returned 132 votes for one candidate and none for his opponents. This was the case in every office on the ticket. One man got all the votes and even though, in some cases, he had three or four opponents, none got a vote.

Senator Spencer, who is a candidate for re-election, recently called the attention of Chairman Arnold of the board to that fact that in another of the First Ward precincts in the 1918 election his opponent received 98 votes while he received only one. He expressed the opinion that more than one vote was cast for him in that precinct.

"South of the Priepet," it adds, "our troops have counter-attacked, driving the enemy from Rzezvtsa, Kachuka, Vola and Jeziercy. Upon the line of the Styr to the south the enemy, after heavy losses in fruitless attacks, remains passive.

Soviet Army Ordered to Begin Armistice Negotiations.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 24.—The Soviet Government of Russia today notified Poland that the Soviet army command had been ordered to begin immediately negotiations for an armistice, it is announced in a wireless dispatch from Moscow today.

The following telegram was dispatched by George Tchitcherin, Russian Soviet Foreign Minister, to Prince Sapieha, the Polish Foreign Minister, at Warsaw, at 1:15 o'clock this morning:

"The Russian Soviet Government has given orders to the supreme command of the Red army to commence immediately with the Polish military command negotiations for the purpose of concluding an armistice and preparing for future peace between the two countries.

"The Russian command will advise the Polish command as to the place and date for commencing negotiations between the military commands of the two sides."

Another message, signed by Vassileff and Khvostchinsky, for the chief headquarters staff and the Revolutionary Military Council, was sent to the higher military command in Warsaw, marked "very urgent" and saying:

"The supreme command of the Red army has received the order of the Soviet Government to enter into negotiations with the Polish military command on the questions of an armistice and peace between Russia and Poland. The supreme command will send representatives furnished with full powers to a place which will be indicated to you by the command of the Russian front, who will inform you of the place and the date when the Polish representatives will be invited to attend."

In their offensive against Galicia, the Bolsheviki are reported to be bringing up Tartars and Kuban and Terek Cossacks, who have entered the line. Four regiments of Tartars already have been identified in the forces driving toward Lemberg.

WARSAW, July 24.—It is understood here that the Bolshevik acceptance of Poland's armistice proposal includes the latter's right to select the place of conference.

COMPOSITE SENSE OF DEMOCRACY TO BE COX'S SUBJECT

Acceptance Speech to Sum Up Very Best Opinion Governor Is Able to Obtain From All Parts of Country.

DAYS ARE FILLED WITH CONFERENCES

Nominee Now Laying Groundwork for One of Greatest Campaigns Ever Conducted in Presidential Race.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DAYTON, O., July 24.—The speech of acceptance which Gov. Cox will deliver on August 7, will be a presentation of what the governor believes is the composite sense of a democracy. It will be, in addition, so far as its technical subjects are concerned, a summing up of the very best opinion that the governor has been able to obtain from experts in all parts of the country.

It is to make these two things possible that Gov. Cox has been consulting, in the last few days, with men from every section of the United States, and will continue until Monday to talk with men who, he believes, can provide him with the sort of counsel that he needs.

Out of it all the governor is building a groundwork which will be used, not only in the speech of acceptance, but throughout the whole of what, barring illness, is certain to be one of the most dynamic campaigns which has ever been conducted by a candidate for president.

The tentative plans which have been outlined will bring the candidates into New York state in the early part of the campaign, but not into New York city until after he has toured the West in September. He will, if possible, attend the notification of his running mate, Franklin D. Roosevelt, at Hyde Park, on August 9, and should he do so, can be counted on for his first New York state speech.

Conferences Fill Day.

Today the governor devoted largely to informing himself on business matters and shipping, although he turned aside from this long enough to obtain from Senator Beckman of Kentucky an intimate view of the conditions in some of the border states. The bulk of the day was devoted to E. D. Hurley, former head of the Shipping Board, from whom was obtained an inside view of the shipping situation. Hurley and E. D. Hurbert, President of the Merchants Loan and Trust Co., of Chicago, who accompanied him, are also in a position to speak with authority about business generally. Another caller who represented business was Henry L. Doherty, of Cleveland, an expert on finance as well as a friend of the governor's.

Tomorrow Gov. Cox has an appointment with former Ambassador James W. Gerard, with whom he will again revert to the foreign affairs of the United States, into which Mr. Cox has already gone in detail with President Wilson and several members of the Senate.

Senator Beckham of Kentucky secured from Mr. Cox the promise that the Governor would visit that state on his speaking tour.

Those who are seeking to learn what the Democratic nominee thinks of the speech of acceptance which was delivered by Senator Harding, are deeply interested in an editorial which appeared yesterday in Cox's newspapers, the Dayton News and the Springfield News.

Attitude on Harding.

The editorial starts out by saying that, while Senator Harding has accepted the nomination, that is all he has accepted, inasmuch as "he does not accept the challenge of the nation to define himself on any paramount proposition." It adds that "He does not accept the responsibility for shaping the destiny of the country toward permanent peace."

The editorial declares that Senator Harding has tried unsuccessfully to meet the demands of two conflicting elements of the Republican party as represented by Wm. H. Taft and Hiram Johnson and continues:

"He assumes a spirit of peevishness because President Wilson took the Constitution of the United States literally and served as the executive head of the country, a duty imposed upon him in these words: 'The Executive power shall be vested in the President.' In the midst of confusing sentiments expressed by Senate leaders, it is clearly shown now that they propose to make Harding a mere figurehead; simply the head of a committee of the Senate and willing official to carry out mandates that the committee agrees upon."

COAL CRISIS HELD LARGELY DUE TO LOW RAIL RATES

themselves with an increased freight rate of from 30 to 40 per cent during the same period.

The coal operators, railroad presidents and union officials are nonplused over the apathy displayed by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The direct reaction in the coal districts has come to this: Coal miners working on straight day time, and shift men, who include drivers, tunnel men and other mine employes not engaged in the actual digging of coal, have been forced to a point where they cannot live on three days' work a week.

Union officials have declared that the minimum wage in this district, awarded by the Bituminous Coal Commission last fall, amounting to $5.50 to $5.75 a day, would be fair if they could be employed at least five days a week. As it is, the coal miner, that is, the day and shift men, are receiving from $15 to $17 in their weekly pay envelope, in a large percentage of the mines. It is obvious that this condition has created extreme discontent throughout the coal fields, and especially in the Illinois district. Fully one-half of the Illinois bituminous coal shafts are idle. These are figures obtained at the headquarters of the Illinois Operators' Association.

Mines Affected Mostly Large.

The mines directly affected are nearly all of the larger type, and production has slumped to a dangerous ebb as a result. More than 30,000 day men have gone on strike. It is expected that as many more will go out. The mines in Franklin, Williamson and Saline Counties, which are the leading coal centers in the southern part of the State, are idle. Only four coal mines in the entire central and southern Illinois districts were working.

In the meantime a committee representing the coal operators is waiting on the President to see if the Bituminous Coal Commission's award cannot be changed so that a higher wage scale can be given the common laborers. The increase requested is $2 a day. The operators are awaiting direct word from the White House. A favorable decision will halt the present walkouts.

Large employers of labor adjacent to Chicago assert that they will be compelled to close down in a short time if the situation is not relieved, and many large industries view the future with undisguised apprehension. Even should the present strikes be settled, there will still be the 50 per cent working time shortage in Southern Illinois mines not contracting with railroads until such a time as the railroads can clear freight terminals and sidetracks in a normal manner. This, it is contended, cannot be done until the uncertainty is dissipated by a direct guarantee of freight rate increases by the Federal Railroad Commission.

Railroads Are Accused.

While rate increases are being considered, it is charged that railroads are not making a concerted attempt to better transportation, feeling that they will have a better chance of receiving a heavy rate increase if it can be shown that the railroads are in a bad way and unable to cope with the situation, but on the other hand, it is advanced in their defense that such a course would not seem logical.

Brotherhood officials and railroad officials assert that if the federal administration had appointed a Railway Labor Board earlier and the present wage schedules had gone into effect, conditions in the coal fields and railroad yards would now be normal.

The "outlaw" switchmen, who are responsible for most of the acute yard congestion, have been left out in the cold in the railroad wage award, and John Grunau, Redding and other leaders of the Chicago Yardmen's Association have been holding closed meetings. The members voted to reject the Labor Board's wage decision because it lacked provision to restore the seniority rights.

Word comes from Springfield, Ill., that the entire Central Illinois mine district will be practically closed down by Monday night, with a grave likelihood that the strike will spread throughout the Ohio, Indiana and Pennslyvania districts.

The situation as viewed from here, seems to be that, unless strong leadership emerges from the present chaotic state of the railroad and coal industries, hundreds of plants throughout the country will be working on part time, with danger, unless an immediate remedy is applied, of idle factories, scarcity of food, high-priced coal and unemployment.

CONCILIATORS WILL OPEN HEARINGS ON STRIKE TOMORROW

Coal Operators and Sub-District Men to Be Called for Testimony in Springfield Inquiry.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 24.—Only the failure of John J. Walsh, Federal conciliator, to arrive in Springfield tonight, is holding up announcement of complete plans for the Government hearings here Monday which are expected to settle the Illinois coal strike. Walsh is due in the city late tonight, and will confer at once with the other two Government men, John B. Lennon of Bloomington and W. H. Rogers of Albia, Ia.

The hearings are scheduled to open Monday morning. Present plans are for the calling of members of the Central Illinois Coal Operators' Association and the Illinois Coal Operators' body, as witnesses for the mine owners, and of prominent sub-district men from each district as witnesses for the striking company men.

The chief issue will be one of wages, the company men demanding $8 per day.

Regarding various rumors, Vice President Fishwick said: "Farrington has known for months that he could not keep the men from striking, because their demands are just. The operators admitted that the claims were just, but said they could not remedy conditions, that only the Government could do this.

"Farrington doesn't want Lewis' job. He is a candidate for re-election to the State presidency, and will not be a candidate in the international election.

"Let me say that the State headquarters places the 'outlaw' railroad men in the same place that they placed the 'insurgent' coal miners of last summer—a class of men attempting to break up their own union. The State mine officers would never aid them."

COAL OPERATORS ARE SANDBAGGING PUBLIC, MINERS' HEAD SAYS

Statement Given Out by Lewis Reveals Possibility of General Strike in Central Field.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 24.—Possibility of a general strike of bituminous coal miners in the Central Competitive Field was revealed in a statement given out tonight by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, regarding the strike in the Illinois field. Lewis' statement follows:

"The present situation in the Illinois coal fields is directly chargeable to the lamentable blunder of the United States Bituminous Coal Commission, which failed to provide adequate compensation for certain classifications of mine workers. This award was affirmed by President Wilson over the protest of the national officers of the United Mine Workers and in violation of the pledges of the United States Government that justice would be rendered the miners.

"Since the rendition of the award the mine workers in most of the coal fields have been employed but a small percentage of full time, due to the miserable breakdown of the nation's transportation facilities. In the meantime, coal operators are charging unprecedented prices for coal and are enthusiastically engaging in what one may term the sun dance of the profiteers. In certain sections coal is selling at the outrageous and indefensible price of from $11 to $12 per ton f. o. b. the mines. The American public is being sandbagged by these daring commercial vandals who stagger beneath their loot.

"When the basic wage agreement between the miners and operators was consummated, on March 31, representatives of the mine workers attempted to secure acquiescnce of the operators in an arrangement which would give justice to the day workers and monthly men. Their efforts were repulsed by the coal operators, since which time the United Mine Workers have in every way assumed the obligations of the wage agreeemnt to which the Illinois coal operators are a party. The publicly expressed desire of the Illinois operators to now amend the wage agreement has not been officially transmitted to the officers of the national union.

"If a settlement is made in Illinois which modifies the basic interstate agreement, prompt action will be taken by this office to force an immediate shutdown of all mines operating in the central competitive field, involving some 210,000 men, until similar modifications, together with other improvements, are arranged for in the other coal-producing States."

INCREASE IN COAL PRICES COMES WITH CLOSING OF MINES

Fifty-three coal mines in Southern Illinois are closed because of the unauthorized strike of "day men," 11,119 men are idle and daily production loss is 54,816 tons, according to figures compiled by P. H. Greenlaw, secretary of the Fifth and Ninth Districts Coal Operators' Association from reports to the association.

The reports also showed that 12 mines in St. Clair, Madison, Clinton, Randolph, Perry, Bond and Washington counties are closed because of car shortage, causing 1153 men to be idle and a daily loss of output of about 6185 tons.

It is stated that, in the entire Southern Illinois field only 24 mines are working, with 4213 men employed and a daily output of approximately 22,000 tons.

Eighty per cent of St. Louis coal supply comes from the Illinois fields, requiring 45 per cent of the field's output. The effect of the suspension of the mines in St. Louis is suspension of delivery by retail dealers for the purpose of conserving the little supply on hand for emergencies. The few mines shipping to St. Louis are shipping only to railroads and public utilities. The price of coal has jumped from the $3 to $5 a ton prevailing prior to the strike to $7 and $8 for all grades at the mine.

E. J. Wallace, former advisor of the St. Louis Fuel Committee during the period of Government war control, stated to the Post-Dispatch yesterday that St. Louis householders have only about one-tenth the coal in their cellars that they usually have at this date. He said that St. Louisans usually have one-fourth of their winter coal in by Aug. 1.

"Dealers in St. Louis have orders for about 50,000 tons of coal," Wallace said, "but have only about 2000 tons on hand or in transit to fill those orders. Many Southern Illinois mines have been accepting fancy bids of New York and Canada dealers and have been shipping the coal that rightfully belongs in the St. Louis market to those bidders. Whatever St. Louis body could have acted has been negligent in not obtaining an embargo on shipments of coal to other territory until this market was satisfied.

10,969,000 Tons of Soft Coal Mined in Week Ending July 17.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Bituminous coal production of 10,969,000 tons for the week ended July 17, announced today by the geological survey, was the largest of any week since the first of the railroad switchmen's strikes in March. This output also exceeded that of the last previous full-time week by 413,000 tons.

Shipments of 603,808 tons to the lakes during the week showed little variation from the tonnage of the preceding week.

SOVIET MOVES FOR POLISH ARMISTICE; ARMIES FALL BACK

East Prussian border line and the possibility of encroachments on German neutrality, President Ebert issued a decree today, ordering that constitutional emergency measures be enforced immediately to defend that province.

The Governor pointed out that measures were made difficult by the fact that the interallied commission was the controlling authority in the plebiscite region, and that permission for German troops to enter the region had not been granted. Meantime, he said, local security police and mounted detachments were being reinforced and were acting as frontier guards. Furthermore, the Governor reported, Reichswehr troops had been concentrated at what was regarded the danger point.

Polls Expect Not Military but Economic Aid From U. S.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—In a statement issued tonight, Prince Ludomirski, the Polish Minister, said in part:

"The news of the armistice between Poland and Russia which has appeared is not official, but I believe it is true. Poland has declared, during all this war, her sincere desire for peace, for, above all things, she wants to carry out a great program of internal reconstruction necessary to her existence.

"Of the present situation, I assure you that the historians of the future will find that Poland was not exclusively to blame.

"We are grateful to our European allies for their offer of military assistance, of which at least they saw the necessity. But from America we are expecting a different form of aid—not military, but humanitarian and economic. We are expecting her co-operation in our effort to rebuild our economic life. That we will receive such aid I do not doubt."

Negotiations May Solve Problem That Has Perplexed Allies.

Negotiations bring in sight a possible solution of one of the most serious crises which Europe and the allied nations have had to face since the conclusion of the armistice with the Germans in November, 1918.

The official world of allied Europe has been stirred and undisguisedly alarmed over the sweep of the Soviet armies through territory held by the Poles, to the very borders of Poland proper, with a menace to Warsaw and the virtual wiping out of Poland as a nation looming up to the allies as possibilities, if measures were not taken to head them off by giving efficient and speedy aid to the Warsaw Government.

Furthermore, the close approach of the Russians to the German border gave additional cause for uneasiness, there existing great uncertainty and apprehension as to the effect a touching of German and Soviet frontier lines might have upon the political future of Europe.

The situation was becoming alarming to the allies at the time the Spa conference was in session, early this month, and it was decided then that steps would be taken to bring about peace between Russia and Poland, if possible. Poland was advised, on the one hand, to endeavor to make peace with the Russians, while on the other, the Moscow Government was informed that the allies would not countenance the invasion of Polish territory proper by the Soviet armies.

Great Britain took up the armistice negotiations first in an effort to bring the Soviets and Poland together, but the Soviet Government made it clear that it was not inclined to accept British intervention, but demanded a direct application from Poland. Meanwhile, it was indicated in the allied capital that military aid for the Poles would be forthcoming if the Bolshevik campaign were pressed too far.

HARDING DECLINES TO GIVE A 'HASTY' VIEW IN DEBS CASE

Republican Presidential Candidate Says It Is Not for Him Now to Review Matter, in Reply to Christensen

By the Associated Press.

MARION, O., July 24.—Although declaring for "generous amnesty for political prisoners," Senator Harding declined today to express an opinion regarding the case of Eugene V. Debs, Socialist nominee for President, who is in the Atlanta penitentiary following conviction of attempting to obstruct the draft.

He outlined his position in a reply to P. P. Christensen, presidential candidate of the Farmer-Labor party, who telegraphed both Senator Harding and Gov. Cox asking that they use their influence to secure executive clemency for Debs.

"I have your telegram relating to the release from prison of Eugene V. Debs," Senator Harding wired. "I believe as heartily as you do in freedom of thought and speech and press within the limitations which guarantee our liberties, and I can well believe we differ little about the abuses of that freedom when the republic is in peril.

"I believe in generous amnesty for political prisoners, but this broad policy does not justify a hasty disposition of any case before it is considered on its merits. It is not for me now to review a particular case, and it is impossible to utter an opinion without such review."

Congratulated on Speech.

The reply to Mr. Christensen was made in a general clean-up of accumulated correspondence. A large part of the Senator's task was acknowledgment of the many messages congratulating him on his acceptance speech. He declared himself well pleased by the response given his speech, making particular mention of the statement by Senator Johnson, a former leader of the Progressive party and a prominent figure among the Senate irreconcilables in the League of Nations fight.

Among the callers today was former Senator Lafayette Young, publisher of the Des Moines Capital, who issued a statement declaring that if the Republican party could not elect Harding "it could not elect any one."

"I am greatly pleased with Senator Harding's speech of acceptance," said the statement. "Being a newspaperman, he had the intuition as regards what the public had in mind. Nobody but a newspaperman could have thought of making that summary of his creed. This was bold and manly. He met every issue face to face."

Late in the afternoon the Senator went with Mrs. Harding and friends for an automobile ride.

SUFFRAGE HEAD SEES COX ON SITUATION IN TENNESSEE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Miss Alice Paul, head of the National Woman's party, has returned here from Columbus, O., where she conferred with Gov. Cox on the situation in Tennessee. She is hopeful of quick and favorable action on the suffrage amendment by the Tennessee Legislature.

"If the promises of leading men of the dominant political parties mean anything we will win in Tennessee," said Miss Paul. "We have almost enough pledges to make ratification certain. We need five votes in the Senate and 16 in the House, and have 75 more legislators to see.

"Gov. Cox, who impresses me as being an alert, sincere man, told us yesterday that he had three men at work in Tennessee. That indicates what he would do. Senator Harding promises well, but he may not get around to the proposition in time to help us."

MRS. HARDING WED NOMINEE AGAINST FATHER'S WISHES

Florence de Wolf, However, Declined Life of Ease to Aid Journalist in Climb Up Life's Ladder to Success.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1920.)

MARION, O., July 24.—It's from the homefolks and neighbors that one learns of the true character and personality of a candidate for the presidency. And after spending a week in Marion mingling with the folks who have known Warren G. Harding all their lives, those who call him "Warren" and his wife "Florence" without the slightest exaggeration of their familiarity with both, the visiting correspondent encountered reminiscences on every side of the struggle of the Hardings, for in a small town most everybody knows all about most everybody else's trials and tribulations.

The homefolks talk frankly and sincerely and with an honesty in their eyes that convinces the inquirer they would have made the same comment even if their most distinguished citizen were not a candidate for the highest office in the land.

The story really starts with the unhappy marriage of Florence Kling to Peter de Wolf, a railroad employe whose errant ways made life miserable for Mrs. de Wolf. It was one of those youthful marriages which never would have occurred in later years. She bore the ordeal for many years; but finally the dominating personality of old Amos Kling, her father, persuaded her to obtain a divorce. The aged Mr. Kling is still spoken of as a self-made man who made a big business success and who felt that his daughter was worthy of a better husband. And so did everybody else who recognized in Mrs. de Wolf a woman of extraordinary talents and lovable qualities. When the separation came, Kling was inclined to draw his daughter to his side and persuade her to enjoy the fruits of his wealth—either in extended travel or an exalted social position.

Father Opposed Match.

But Mrs. de Wolf fell in love with Warren Harding. He was then a poor young newspaper man struggling for a foothold. Kling wouldn't listen to the idea of a marriage between his daughter and Warren Harding. He had higher aspirations and ambitions for her. But his daughter shunned the opportunities which her father seemed to see before her and married Warren Harding. Old Amos Kling didn't think young Harding would make good in the world, but Florence Harding thought otherwise. She set to work beside her husband with an earnestness and determination which was heroism itself. Instead of the comforts and luxuries which her father might have given her, she took her place beside her husband in the tiny newspaper office and while he devoted himself to the editorial side, she organized the circulation department. She hired the newsboys and kept them on their toes all the time. To this day there are bankers and real estate and professional men who owe their first knowledge of salesmanship to the instructions given them as newsboys for Florence Harding.

Indeed there has been organized here a sort of Florence Harding alumni association, the members being the same newsboys who in their youth sold the Marion Star for the Hardings.

Slowly the Harding couple forged ahead, but still the elder Kling was not reconciled to the choice of his daughter. He lived to see Warren Harding erected Lieutenant-Governor and then United States Senator and did become reconciled to the marriage. For Warren Harding had "made good" after all. And many a man and women who remembers old Amos Kling wishes he were alive today to see Warren Harding Republican candidate for the Presidency and with a good chance to be the chief executive of the nation.

Hardings Well Known.

The character of the Senator and Mrs. Harding is such that nowhere in the town is there the slightest mention of a grievance. The Hardings are known as generous and kindly people whose success has not gone to their heads, whose hearts are still with their friends and neighbors and whose lives have been a heroic struggle against odds of every kind, but who in typical American fashion have won out and stand unimpeachable before their neighbors and their friends—the best testimonial that can be offered in public life, more persuasive than the plaudits of orators, politicians, or the flattery of party associates.

ARDING WED EE AGAINST ER'S WISHES

Wolf, However, Life of Ease to nalist in Climb Up dder to Success.

D LAWRENCE, orrespondent of the t-Dispatch. pyright, 1920.)

VOTERS' ATTENTION CENTERS ON RACES FOR GOVERNORSHIP

Candidates for U. S. Senatorship Also Arouse Some Interest, but Minor Offices Are Not in Public Eye.

FINAL WEEK OF THE PRIMARY RACE HERE

Forces Battling for Support in St. Louis—Wet and Dry Issues Wield Large Influence With People.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 24.—With the final week of the Missouri primary campaign beginning tomorrow, interest is centered largely in the Hyde-McJimsey contest for the Republican nomination for Governor, in the Farris-Mayer contest for St. Louis support for the Democratic nomination for Governor, in the Hay-Priest-Long contest for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, and in the Davis-Spencer contest for the Republican nomination for United States Senator. There apparently has not been any attention given by the voters generally to the various candidacies for other State offices.

Having the support of the Kiel-Schmoll faction of the St. Louis Republican organization, E. E. E. McJimsey of Springfield has given little attention to the campaign there, though he is expected to be in St. Louis several days this week. He is counting on the organization delivering the St. Louis vote to him. His opponent, Arthur M. Hyde of Trenton, has the support of Edward W. Foristel and the greater part of the Koeln faction, though Koeln has said he personally would support McJimsey. It is more or less perfunctory support, however, and with Foristel working for Hyde, the tip which has gone out among the Koeln followers is that at heart Koeln is with Hyde.

Conditions Not Like 1916.

In attempting to anticipate the relative strength of the two candidates in St. Louis, it will be recalled that in 1916 the Kiel-Schmoll faction supported John E. Swanger and the Koeln faction supported Henry Lamm. Lamm received approximately three times as many votes in St. Louis as did Swanger, but conditions are not at all the same this year. Then Swanger was the dry candidate and Lamm the liberal. This year Hyde is the dry and McJimsey the liberal.

While St. Louis is generally looked upon as the Republican stronghold of the State, as a matter of fact, in the 1916 primary only 28 per cent of the Republican vote of the State was cast in St. Louis, 72 per cent being out in the Sate. This indicates that although the St. Louis vote of 45,000 or 50,000 is worth striving for, the real contest is outside of St. Louis.

Both candidates are residents of smaller cities and each has his following out in the State. Reports have indicated that Hyde is the stronger candidate outside of St. Louis, and that McJimsey is the stronger in St. Louis. From this it would seem to appear that Hyde's nomination will depend upon whether he can get a sufficient lead out in the State to overcome McJimsey's lead in St. Louis. Hyde's supporters have contended that McJimsey will have to have a majority of at least 30,000 in St. Louis to win. This would mean, in an expected vote of 50,000, that McJimsey would have to get 40,000 and Hyde only 10,000. The Hyde men insist that this is an impossibility with the Koeln-Foristel faction working for Hyde and Joseph B. Thomas, committeeman in the Twenty-eighth Ward, who has always been lined up with Kiel, now out for Hyde.

G. O. P. Senatorial Race.

The Republican contest for United States Senator has proven a much more interesting affair than was promised in the beginning. Then it was generally figured that Senator Spencer would be an easy winner. Spencer has been injured, however, by the Lowden campaign expenditure exposure, which caught some of his most active supporters, and even developed that Spencer had received $100 from National Committeeman Babler, who distributed much of the Lowden money. Senator Spencer returned $100 of the amount.

Notwithstanding Spencer's failure to take a definite position on the prohibition question, he is considered to be dry, which is expected to mean that the large majority of the Republican vote in St. Louis will go to his opponent, Lieut.-Col. Dwight F. Davis. Davis' supporters have reported during the past few weeks that they have made deep inroads on the Spencer support in the rural districts. Spencer, however, was considered very strong in the country. If Davis' headway has been as great in the country as his friends say, he stands a chance to defeat Spencer, but the general impression among Republicans with a State political acquaintance is that Spencer had too big a lead for Davis to have overcome in the short time he has had.

However, Spencer won over Jay L. Torrey in 1918 by only 30,000, and Torrey made virtually no campaign. If Spencer should lose St. Louis by a large majority and be no stronger in the country than he was two years ago, Davis has a chance to defeat him.

Very little attention has been given to the campaign of James L. Minnis, the third candidate for the Republican nomination for Senator. He is not considered a real factor in the race.

Farris-Mayer Charges.

The charge by Frank H. Farris of Rolla in a speech in Jefferson City Thursday night that money was being used in St. Louis by supporters of Charles H. Mayer for the Democratic nomination for Governor to obtain the support of members of the Democratic city organization has aroused greater interest in that contest. Farris also charged that Morton Jourdan legislative representative of the United Railways during many sessions of the Legislature, and interested himself in Mayer's candidacy, and was participating in the effort to control St. Louis committeemen.

Farris has threatened to cause a legisaltive investigation of the St. Louis primary election if Mayer receives an especially large vote. Some of his friends also have said that if Farris fails to win the nomination he will return to Jefferson City as a member of the Legislature and will be in a frame of mind to punish legislative lobbyists who have lined up with his opponents. This situation is said to be causing some of Mayer's supporters much uneasiness.

While Mayer and Farris are fighting over the St. Louis vote, which is only 10 per cent of the Democratic vote of the State, and for the wet votes out in the State, John M. Atkinson has virtually no dry opposition, Lieutenant-Governor Wallace Crossley and Lieutenant-Colonel Ruby D. Garrett having withdrawn from the race. The Farris support is virtually entirely a wet support, and while Mayer has some following among the drys, his candidacy appeals particularly to the wets. He has said he would enforce the law, but has not taken a definite stand on the wet and dry issue.

Atkinson is an out-and-out dry, and for that reason is expected to receive very few votes in St. Louis. In 1916 he received less than 1000 votes in St. Louis in his candidacy for the nomination for Governor, but ran second to Gov. Gardner in the whole State vote. He has confined his campaign almost entirely to Kansas City and the rural sections of the State. He is reported to have the support of the Kansas City political bosses.

While at this time it appears that Mayer will have the support of 20 or more members of the Democratic City Committee in St. Louis, and that Farris will have most if not all the others, it would be no surprise if there should be a reversal of this situation during the week. The organization politician generally wants to be with the winner. The successful candidate, if elected in November, will control police and election appointments in St. Louis, and the politician who has supported his opponent will not be free to make the requests, or demands, he would be free to make if he had supported the winner. If Atkinson can convince the party leaders that he has won the nomination in the country and that nothing they can do can beat him, he in all probability can have the support of most of them.

Of course, if he has it won in the country he doesn't need them.

Senatorial Campaign.

Of all the contests of the campaign, however, that for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator has been most puzzling to the politicians. With the candidates representing different views, Charles M. Hay, a pronounced dry, Henry S. Priest a pronounced wet, and Breckinridge Long on the fence on the wet and dry issue, the result has been too much in doubt to find many politicians willing to wager even a small amount as to the winner. The situation has been further complicated by the fact that Hay and Long are for the Wilson League of Nations and Priest is against it.

Reports from out in the State are that Hay has been making remarkable progress in his campaign, and that if sizes of crowds are any indication Hay will win. However, Hay is not expected to get many votes in St. Louis. Priest probably will get the big St. Louis vote, though Long's organization has not been idle and there are those among the politicians who venture the opinion that his vote will be larger than either of his opponents anticipate.

While some believe that Long's candidacy has been lost sight of by the voters, there are others who insist that while Hay and Priest have been waging a spectacular fight, Long quietly has been accomplishing results which will mean his nomination.

There were some negotiations last week looking to a withdrawal of either Hay or Long, but nothing came of them. Former Gov. Lon V. Stephens accompanied Hay to Kansas City and participated in the conferences with Kansas City leaders, but he and Hay refused to listen to suggestions that Hay withdraw and enable the Kansas City leaders to line up solidly for Long. Long also refused to withdraw to permit them to line up for Hay. As a result they are divided. Mayor Cowgill of Kansas City is for Hay and William T. Kemper is for Long.

100 ARRESTED IN RAID ON KANSAS CITY ITALIAN QUARTER

Move Is Part of Campaign to Stamp Out Crime Wave Culminating in Payroll Robbery.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 24.—Police raided the Italian quarter of Kansas City late this afternoon, and arrested more than 100 men, in a campaign to stamp out a recent crime wave, culminating today in a daylight payroll holdup and a warehouse robbery in which one bandit was shot and killed. All were held without bond pending investigation.

Police characters, gunmen and idlers were taken in the roundup. Chief Godley has charged much of the crime wave to "gangs of young toughs woh infest little Italy. "These young men, wearing diamonds and silk shirts, ride about the city in expensive motor cars," he declared. "It is these young toughs and gunmen who participate in whisky robberies, hold-ups and other criminal acts."

Instructions were given by the chief to "shoot to kill when encountering bandits" in an effort to rid the city of lawless elements. "Blow these thugs out of their high priced cars," he ordered.

Four motor car bandits today held up a paymaster of an investment company on his way from a downtown bank to the country club district to pay workmen, and escaped with the payroll of $5600.

In another robbery in the warehouse district nine men, seven of whom were said by the police to be Italians, were surprised while robbing a storehouse and in a revolver fight which ensued one bandit was killed. Two negro members of the band were captured.

Mexico Mecca for Dry Folks.

By the Associated Press.

EL PASO, Tex., July 24.—Nearly half a million border permits and identity cards, entitling holders to cross to Mexico, were issued during the first year of prohibition in the United States, it was announced today. Of the 455,963 permits and cards issued during the fiscal year ending July 1, according to the report of F. W. Berkshire, border supervisor of immigration, 418,735 went to tourists.

"POLAND WOULDN'T LISTEN TO ME," PADEREWSKI SAYS

Former Premier, in Interview, Declares He Discouraged "Rash Adventure" in Ukraine, Knowing Allies Wouldn't Help.

By KARL K. KITCHEN,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

NEW YORK, July 24.—"You can't sit here—this table is reserved for M. Paderewski and Mme. Paderewski," said the captain of the restaurant car, a moment after I had taken my place for dinner shortly after the Orient express left Vienna.

"M. Paderewski, the former Premier of Poland, has engaged this table," the captain went on as I rose to change my seat. "I will place you at another table."

I don't know whether the Paderewskis came to the restaurant car for dinner or remained in their compartment, for I did not see either of them until the train arrived at Innsbruck the following morning. There I caught a glimpse of Mme. Paderewski and her dog on the platform, but the former Premier of Poland remained hidden from view in his compartment.

However, a long delay at Feldkirch, the last town on the Austrian frontier, caused the famous musician-statesman to emerge from his seclusion and while he was being snapshotted by an admiring fellow passenger I introduced myself and asked the privilege of an interview. As luck would have it our train was held up for two hours owing to the failure of one of the passengers to provide himself with a police vise to leave the country. The passport officials insisted that the passenger, a British officer, pay a fine of 3 crowns—the same amount as the cost of the police vise in Vienna—but the Englishman refused to pay it, although it was a matter of only 2 cents. He dared the Austrian officials to take him off the train, with the result that the conductor had to telephone to Vienna for instructions, and before they received word to allow the Briton to continue his journey without parting with his crowns, two hours had elapsed.

"Wouldn't Listen to Me."

The delay which was so annoying to most of the passengers on the Warsaw-Vienna-Paris express—the Orient express runs three times a week between these capitals—enabled me to have an interesting chat with the former Premier of Poland.

"I am out of politics, you know," the pianist-statesman explained, by way of prefacing his remarks, as we walked up and down the platform of the little frontier station to avoid being joined by other passengers.

"I've returned to private life and after a short stay in England I am planning to return to my home in Switzerland for a long rest."

"But surely you are not forsaking Poland," I protested, for I knew how he had toiled and struggled to bring about the establishment of the Polish republic.

"No, I am not forsaking Poland," he replied, "but Poland is no longer willing to listen to my advice. I did not approve of the rash adventure in the Ukraine. I warned everyone that it would lead to disaster, but no one would listen to me. I knew that we would not have any assistance from the allies, but my countrymen were carried away with their own enthusiasm. The result is that Poland is in a very critical situation."

The former Premier spoke in such a pessimistic manner that it was evident he was greatly concerned over his country's future.

"The military situation, which is uppermost at the present time," he went on, "is only one of Poland's problems. Our poor country has more obstacles to overcome than any country in Europe. Politically we are in a bad way. We have 16 political parties and their leaders cannot agree on anything. For more than a year we have been trying to draft a constitution, but up to the present time we have not been able to agree on the first paragraph. This, perhaps, is not so discouraging as it sounds. I believe it took you Americans several years to draft and ratify your marvelous Constitution.

"But," he continued, "the problem of our constitution is a minor one. We have other problems much more important. Our country has been a huge battlefield for more than six years. The major part of our industries have been destroyed. It will take 15—perhaps 20—years to restore them to anything approaching normal, even under the most favorable conditions. If we are obliged to fight for our very existence—as we are at present—we cannot hope to make much progress industrially.

"And we have other grave problems that are peculiar to Poland," he went on, smoking his cigarette rather nervously. "For instance, we have five distinct legal codes in effect in our country. We have the Russian code, the German code, the Austrian code, the code Napoleon and so on. It will be years before we can establish a code of our own. And take our monetary system. We have German marks, Polish marks, Austrian kronen, Ukrainian shrivna and three kinds of Russian rubles. Imperial rubles, imperialistic rubles and Bolshevist rubles. No country ever had so many different kinds of money. Think of the problem of establishing a new Polish currency—why it will be years before it can be brought about.

Reason for Big Army.

"We had enough problems without a militaristic adventure, but no one would listen to me. A war of defense is one thing—a mad invasion is another."

"But why was it necessary for Poland to maintain an army of 800,000?" I asked.

"We dared not swell the ranks of the unemployed by further demobilization," M. Paderewski replied. "With the bulk of our industries destroyed and without raw materials for those still intact, we could not send the soldiers back to the cities."

"But what will the people of Poland do without you?" I asked.

The famous pianist only shook his head by way of reply.

"Perhaps they'll get a pianola," I suggested. I felt the interview had been shrouded in sufficient gloom. For the first time since we began our chat a smile crept over his face.

"That's a very good suggestion," he replied with a chuckle. "And it's just what Poland will have to do for my playing evidently did not suit them."

Although he did not say so, I would not be surprised if the great pianist came to America for a concert tour next season. But the only announcement I can make at the present time is that if he does come he will not use an automatic piano. He authorized me to make that fact very clear.

TOO LATE TO SAVE POLAND, DECLARES MAJ.-GEN. HOFFMAN

Former Member of General Staff Says Germany Will Also Be Overrun in Present Bolshevik Campaign.

THINKS EUROPE FACES A MENACE

Soviet Troops Are Well Armed and Fed, He Asserts, and Now Fight Better Than Enemies.

By CYRIL BROWN.
A Staff Correspondent of the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

BERLIN, July 24.—That it is too late to save Poland, north and central Germany from militaristic Bolchevism is the pessimistic opinion of Major-General Hoffman, the foremost specialist on Russia on the former great General Staff, and Gen. Ludendorff's chief of operations in the east and later Prince Leopold of Bavaria's chief of staff, who was then the virtual commander in chief of the entire east front. Hoffman's remarkable exclusive statements to the Post-Dispatch is as follows:

"I consider that the Spa negotiations completely irrelevant and conducted on a false basis because they did not sufficiently take into account the Soviet Government's policy of conquest, menacing all the nations of Europe. Whether Germany keeps an army of 2000 or 100,000 also appears to be relatively a minor matter, for under the present circumstances Germany is unable to resist the Bolshevist advance. My opinion results from the military situation in East Europe. The Polish army had suffered serious reverses. In connection with such reverses invariably panicky reports are disseminated, the effect of which must not be overestimated. But even by a cautious valuation of the reports, the complete collapse of the Polish army, and therewith the Polish State, appears unquestionable, whereupon the Miscow Soviet Government's armies would appear on Germany's eastern border.

Will Overrun Germany.

"They will not halt there, but will overrun Germany. The Moscow Soviet Government has, through its numerous agents in Germany, created many armed secret organizations, and it would not have done so if it had not intended to conquer Germany like Poland.

"The German Government is not in a position to defend Germany against an attack by the Red army. The German Reichswehr, at best, is 200,000 strong. Since armed secret organizations have been prepared in advance by the Moscow Soviet Government in Germany, they will rise up simultaneously with the Russian invasion of Germany. The greater part of the German Reichswehr will be tied up in the interior so that there will be hardly any forces left for defense against an enemy attacking from without.

"Furthermore, as regards the fighting power of the German troops, the opinion doesn't appear to be justified that they will be lulled into false security. German armies, which at the beginning of the world war fought against the numerically superior Czar-Russian armies, went with enthusiasm and defiance of death into the battle and were richly supplied with all the necessary war material. The German Reichswehr still has good officers, noncoms and soldiers in the ranks, but the Reichswehr has been repeatedly bitterly disappointed in its hopes and expectations, and therefore cannot be as enthusiastic about fighting as the German troops were in 1914. Besides, the war material available for the Reichswehr becomes every day less in quantity and more inadequate for defense.

Moscow Troops Well Armed.

"Against this, the operations of the Bolshevik armies against Denikine and Kolchak as well as in the Caucasus and Persia proved that the Moscow forces were better armed and better fed. This is all the more apparent since the Poles' plan of operation was projected by Foch and the Poles were led by French General Staff officers. The success achieved by the Soviet Government's armies has further shown that the troops of the Red armies under the compulsion of frightful discipline, fight better than their enemies, that they are adequately equipped with war material and that the Russian railroads are still sufficiently efficient for moving large masses of troops.

"The Moscow Soviet Government, through its fake negotiations with Lloyd George, has gained time to be able to destroy Poland undisturbed. The Moscow Soviet Government will now be able to conquer north and central Germany, at the very least, without Germany being able to offer serious resistance.

"Even if Germany was empowered by the Entente to set up an army against the peril menacing from the east, such an army could not now be ready in time.

"But once the Soviet Government succeeds in getting a firm footing in north and central Germany then, based on its Russian armies in these parts of Germany, it will raise and organize a strong German Red army in order with it first to conquer Bavaria and then carry a war of conquest westward over the Rhine."

Anti-Saloon League List Names Candidates to Be Opposed by Missouri Drys

Survey, in "American Issue," Classifies Some Office-Seekers as Wets and in Some Cases Just Print Records.

The Anti-Saloon League survey of candidates for Missouri offices ranging in importance from State Senator to United States Senator was issued yesterday in the Missouri edition of the American Issue, the league publication.

This survey, which is to serve as a political handbook for dry workers during the remainder of the primary campaign, terms those who seek to nullify prohibition by modifying the Volstead Act, a "motley crew of law violators." It urges all drys to keep awake, vote against all wet candidates and "keep the sinister liquorites" out of Congress.

The survey, as to some offices, gives a straight-out estimate of whether the candidates are wet or dry, but on others the records are given, to permit the voter to make his own choice.

No Comment on Spencer.

In discussing candidates for United States Senator, the voter is left to form his own impression of Selden P. Spencer, candidate for the Republican nomination. Spencer failed to vote on the Volstead law when it was up for passage in the Senate, but voted for it when the measure was up for passage over President Wilson's veto.

Dwight F. Davis and James L. Minnis, the other two Republican candidates, are labeled wet.

Of the Democratic candidates for United States Senator, the survey says that Charles M. Hay "needs no comment here to advise Missouri drys that he has been a fearless champion of dry measures in the Legislature, on the platform and in the courts."

Of Breckenridge Long, for Senator, it says: 'Long takes the position that whatever decision the courts shall make is one all good citizens should abide by."

George H. Scruton is silent on the liquor question, and Arthur N. Lindsey is a minister, but does not take an agressive stand for prohibition, the survey states.

Atkinson and Hyde Indorsed.

Among candidates for Governor, John M. Atkinson, Democrat, and Arthur M. Hyde, Republican, are given straight out indorsements as "fearless" drys.

Atkinson is the leading candidate of his party and will be nominated if the drys vote for him, the survey says.

Frank H. Farris, Democrat, for Governor, is described as "the notorious advocate of the liquor interests who has been active in their behalf for many, many years and is the wettest candidate in the race."

Charles H. Mayer, Democrat, for Governor, is discussed as "a wet who poses as a dry in sections of Missouri where he thinks it will do the most good for his candidacy."

"He comes from St. Joseph, and has a wet record of years' standing there," the survey continues. St. Joseph has a provision in its charter which gives the council exclusive right to govern and regulate dramshops. When Gov. Folk sought to enforce Sunday closing of saloons, Mayer succeeded in getting the council of St. Joseph to pass the famous "Andriano ordinance," permitting Sunday opening of dramshops. He conducted the case of those charged with violating the Sunday opening law, through the courts, and succeeded in sustaining the ordinance.

"He then was sent to the State Senate from that district, and when the citizens of St. Joseph tried to get rid of this obnoxious feature by amending their charter, they found Mayer opposing any change in the exclusive right of the council to regulate dramshops. He fought against this change during two sessions of the Legislature in which he sat, and today this provision remains in the charter of St. Joseph. His platform does not throw any light on his present-day attitude on the enforcement of prohibition. He tries to straddle it."

Robert H. Merryman of St. Louis, Democrat, for Governor, is recorded as having developed little more than local strength in his candidacy.

McJimsey's Stand Uncertain.

E. E. E. McJimsey, Republican, for Governor, is said to be "a friend and protege of the St. Louis Republican bosses and is uncertain as to his stand on prohibition. No one ever has accused him of being dry."

For Lieutenant Governor, of the Democrats, Robert S. McClintic is indorsed as dry, while C. M. Buford is described as voting dry but working with the other side in the Senate. Politte Elvins and Hiram Lloyd, the Republican candidates, both are labeled as wet.

For Attorney-General, of the Republican candidates, Samuel F. O'Fallon is indorsed as dry, while Jesse W. Barrett, Harvey D. Dow and Isaac Gimbrell are described as not having taken a stand on the liquor question. Of the two Democratic candidates for that office, Willis H. Meredith is indorsed as dry, while Mark A. McGruder is discussed as "having voted for dry measures in the Senate on the last ballot, so that folks back home might see, but his other actions are such that they destroy confidence in his ability faithfully and effectively to enforce the prohibition laws."

Candidates for Congress, judged upon their answers to questions as to whether they would oppose amendments to the Volstead Act, tending to weaken prohibition, and whether they would support legislation to remedy defects in the prohibition law, are recorded as follows:

First District—Democrat, Congressman M. A. Romjue, dry; James E. Rieger, dry; Republican, Frank C. Millspaugh, no answer.

Second District—Democrat—Congressman W. W. Rucker, dry; Republican, B. F. Beazell, dry.

All Candidates Dry.

Third District—Democrat, Congressman J. L. Milligan, dry; Republicans, James M. Thompson and H. F. Lawrence, both dry.

Fourth District—Democrats, Robert I. Young, wet; William K. James and Lewis C. Gabbert, dry; Republicans, Charles L. Faust, wet; John L. Baker and Allen May, dry.

Fifth District—Democrat, Congressman William T. Bland, dry; Republicans, E. C. Ellis, dry; Fred W. Coon, no answer.

Sixth District—Democrats, Carl J. Henry, dry; Congressman C. C. Dickinson, dry; Republicans, William O. Atkeson, J. K. Martin, Richard M. Robertson, R. O. Crawford and John W. Campbell, all dry.

Seventh District—Democrat, Congressman Sam C. Major, dry; Republicans, George M. Riddle, Jesse E. Bishop, Roscoe C. Patterson, Charles S. Blackmer, dry; Ellis L. Hackett, no answer. J. D. Salts, Republican, said that he would not oppose efforts to amend the Volstead act which would tend to weaken prohibition, but that he would favor legislation to remedy defects in prohibition.

Eighth District—Democrats, Congressman W. L. Nelson, dry; Charles E. Dewey, wet; Republican, Sid C. Roach, dry.

No Drys in St. Louis Listed.

Ninth District—Democrat, Congressman Champ Clark, dry; Republicans, Theodore W. Huckriede, B. H. Dyer and S. O. Craig, no answer.

Tenth District (St. Louis)—Democrats, G. H. Force and Campbell Cummings, no answer; Republicans, Congressman Cleveland A. Newton, wet.

Eleventh District (St. Louis.)—Democrat, Harry B. Hawes, no answer; Republicans, George R. Hart, Harry Newman, Bernard P. Bogy, Otto F. Stifel, Mark D. Eagleton, no answer.

Twelfth District (St. Louis.)—Democrat, Samuel Rosenfeld, no answer; Republicans, William A. Venerable, no answer; Congressman L. C. Dyer, wet; George L. Vaughn and B. W. Clarke, no answer.

Thirteenth District — Democrat, Arthur T. Brewster, no answer; Republican, Congressman Marion C. Rhodes, dry.

Sixteenth District — Democrats, Congressman Thomas L. Ruby, dry; Republicans, S. A. Shelton and G. A. Leavitt, dry; D. D. McDonald, no answer.

The classification given candidates for State Senator in the St. Louis districts is as follows:

Twenty-ninth District—Robert G. Uthoff (Dem.) and Frank B. Warner (Rep.), both wet.

Thirty-first District—Senator Michiel G. Kinney (Dem.), wet.

Thirty-third District—Senator Joseph H. Brogan (Dem.) and Joseph Ebeling and Charles J. Dolin (Rep.), all wet.

As to the Twenty-fifth District, the survey says that "both candidates are wet, but Senator Albert E. L. Gardner has been so active in organizing the wet forces of the State Senate and in trying to block dry legislation that it will be in the interest of good government to defeat him and nominate his opponent, Richard F. Ralph." Both are Republicans.

FLEET COVERS GREEK TROOPS BEING LANDED AT DEDEAGATCH

Infantry Column Moving to Capture Jafar Tayar Bey, Turkish Nationalist Commander

By the Associated Press.

ATHENS, July 24.—Detachments of Greek troops are landing at Dedeagatch, covered by the Greek fleet. It is expected that a Rodosto column, making 30 miles a day, will attack Bule Burgas, and, if successful, cut behind Jafar Tayar Bey, Nationalist commander at Kirk Kilise, and prevent the escape of his regular troops over the Bulgarian frontier. The Greeks foresee quick victory, but wish to capture Jafar Tayar, who, however, declares that he will never be taken alive.

Another column is proceeding to Keshan to support the frontal attack by the main body of troops along the Maritsa River against Adrianople. It is hardly believed that the morale of the Turks is such as to duplicate their five months' stand against the Bulgars in 1912, when the defenses of the city, built by the Germans, were in good condition.

The Greeks do not wish to bombard the city, in which there still remains a large Greek population. A demand has been made on the Bulgarian Government that it disarm and also deliver over any of the regular Turkish troops if they retreat over the frontier.

Spain Needs 330,000 Tons Wheat.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, July 24.—The wheat harvest of Spain this year is reckoned at 37,000,000 quintals, or 2,000,000 quintals more than last year. Forty million quintals are required to feed Spain. A quintal is equal to 220 pounds or four bushels.

GOVERNOR NOT TO CALL LEGISLATURE IN SPECIAL SESSION

Gardner Decides There Are No Measures Now Requiring Submission for Emergency Action.

REVIEWS FINANCIAL CONDITION OF STATE

Declares All Departments of Government Are in Good Shape Despite Holding Up of Tax Laws.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 24.—There will be no special session of the Missouri Legislature. This is the gist of an announcement made Saturday by Gov. Gardner. The Governor changed his mind in regard to calling a special session of the General Assembly while away on his trip to the national Democratic convention. It is said that he came to the conclusion because of the fact that while it lies wholly within the power of the chief executive to call a special session, he is powerless to adjourn one. He fears that once the session is called it will be prolonged and would not justify the cost. Gov. Gardner, it is further reported, has decided that there is no real emergency and that the measures contemplated for the special session can wait until the regular session convenes next January.

"I have stated on several occasions that, in the event the thirty-sixth state ratified the suffrage amendment before Aug. 3 I would call a special session of the Legislature in order to provide the necessary state machinery so that the women could register and vote in the primary on that date. I also said that, in view of the decision of the Supreme Court in the franchise tax law, I would in the event the special session was called, ask the Legislature to reduce the State income tax rate, and, also, reduce the corporation franchise rates, or rewrite certain sections of the law.

Situation as to Suffrage.

"Unfortunately, the thirty-sixth state has not yet ratified the suffrage amendment, and the possibility of the women participating in the August primary no longer obtains.

"In the event the suffrage amendment should be ratified between the date of the primary and the general election, the women can register and vote at the general election without additional legislation. The Attorney-General has so held.

"I have carefully considered the advisability of calling the Legislature at this time in order to reduce the tax rates, as above outlined, but, after consulting the Attorney-General, I find there are still pending numerous lawsuits attacking various sections of both of these laws. For the year 1919 to date, we have received only $677,167.93 from the income tax, and $893,436.10 from the corporation franchise tax. It appears, therefore, impossible for the Legislature at this time to definitely fix rates until these suits have been settled and are out of the way and exact results known.

Ruling Expected in 60 Days.

"The Attorney-General feels they can be definitely settled within the next 60 days.

"I have also concluded that, after all, such important legislation as affecting the State revenues can best be considered after the election when we have passed the heat and passions of a great State and national campaign.

"I am glad to say to the people that the finances of the State are in a most excellent condition. Last year we spent from our general revenue fund only $9,133,000, or $2.65 per capita. I feel sure it will be about the same this year. I believe this is the lowest state government cost in the nation. We accomplished this by rigid economy, efficiency and savings. For instance, it formerly cost the State 15 per cent to collect the inheritance tax. Under our new method the cost last year was .9 of 1 per cent, thus saving the State, in one year, $200,000.

"The food and drug department formerly was a heavy expense to the State. It is now self-supporting.

"The same is true of the mine inspection department, the banking department and various other departments of the State Government. As a rule, appropriations for operating the various departments have been only partly used. Receipts into the departments increased, the new factory inspection law is working well and the department shows a surplus this year of $15,000.

Grain Inspection Surplus.

The grain inspection department will show a surplus of $100,000. The new beverage inspection law has proved very beneficial in preventing the sale of impure and poisonous beverages, as well as bringing the State this year the handsome sum of $215,000.

"The penitentiary was formerly a heavy drain upon the tax payers and the State treasury, but is now more than self-supporting. A very heavy saving has been made here.

"All old debts have been paid, amounting to $2,200,000. We have invested $200,000 cash in farms for the penitentiary. These farms have increased largely in value since we bought them and have saved the State thousands of dollars in food for the institution.

"We have invested $600,000 cash in machinery and merchandise for State industries, and we have $2,000,000 cash in the revenue fund on this date. In other words, cash on hand, debts paid, and cash investments made which could be quickly liquidated, amount to a total of $5,000,000 and we are that much better off than we were when this administration assumed control.

School Situation Improved.

"The school situation has greatly improved. Teachers' salaries have been largely advanced. The State Board of Health has taken up for the schools the matter of sanitary conditions, water, light, heat, etc., in some sections where the situation in these respects had been neglected, and has had them remedied.

"We now have ready for distribution to the public schools $3,057,650.45. This is a large increase over any previous year's distribution, and is a 50 per cent increase in three years' time. This amount would have been increased by another $1,000,000 had not suits pending held up the collection of our income and franchise taxes.

"The State's support of all educational institutions has been largely increased. The teachers' training colleges show an increase of 48 per cent; the university shows an increase of 41 per cent, and agricultural education shows an increase of 103 per cent. We have spent $50,000 in improving and placing the State fairgrounds in fine condition for this year's fair.

"The amounts appropriated by the Legislature for repairs and improvements of the various State institutions have been expended, and the institutions are now in fine shape.

"The new fish and game law is working well. Receipts have been increased and $35,644.33 has been set aside for the State park purchase. The department has completed the purchase of the famous Sequiota Park and spring site near Springfield, where the largest and most modern fish hatchery in the country is now under construction.

Roads Program Developing.

"The good roads program is favorably and rapidly developing. All indications point to the overwhelming approval by the people on Nov. 4 of the $60,000,000 road bond issue. The survey of the 6000-mile State system is progressing rapidly, 4534 miles having been completed or contracted for. The construction of 1800 miles of surfaced roads has been approved by the State Highway Commission, costing $18,500,000. Those who feared the construction of dirt roads in the State will no doubt, be agreeably surprised to learn that only 127 miles of graded earth roads have been approved in the entire State, and it is the purpose to hard surface this in the near future.

"On July 1 there was a total of $11,000,000 in the State treasury. There seems to be a general misapprehension, however, in relation to this treasury balance. It has all practically been appropriated and is being held by the State merely in trust. For instance, in this amount is included the State interest fund, to pay the interest on outstanding school cerificates, $832,000; the State school monies, which will be appropriated among the public schools inside of 30 days, $3,000,000; the State and Federal vocational educational fund, $200,000; the penitentiary fund, $107,000; the county insurance tax, amount collected by the State which will be appropriated between the cities and counties on Oct. 15, $616,000; the good roads fund, $3,500,000; the capitol building fund, $211,000, etc.

Funds Merely Held in Trust.

"It will be seen, however, that these funds are merely held in trust by the State, and have all been appropriated and must be held ready for disbursement. The only money in the State treasury subject to any disposal on the part of the Legislature is the $2,000,000 in the general revenue fund, and we must draw on this fund for the support of the courts, the University, teachers' training colleges, various State institutions, as well as the different departments of the State Government.

"The first biennial State budget was submitted to the last Legislature. It proved a splendid guide in the proper distribution of State funds. This budget is an exhaustive review of the condition and needs of the different institutions and departments of the State. It is published in book form and makes 160 pages.

"The budget estimated the reasonable necessities of the State, and called for an expenditure during 1919-1920 of $12,200,000 (not including one-third of gross receipts set aside monthly for public schools). We will not miss this estimate one way or the other more than a few thousand dollars, notwithstanding the lowered purchasing power of the dollar. The tax commission is now at work on a complete and detailed budget for 1921-1922 and I will submit it to the session on Jan. 1st, 1921."

Race Continuous Yawn or Gape, Says Ring Lardner

By Ring W. Lardner.

NEW YORK, July 24.—Well, the international yachting races is almost over, and they tell me that Sir Thomas hasn't lifted a cup yet, though we hear reports that everybody on the Orizaba done it easily the first day. If I was old Sir Thomas, with all his money and influence, I would go out to the nearest hardware store and page myself a pair of oars. That's the way to get somewheres when you can't afford a taxi or buy a railroad ticket.

According to the rules of the international cup races whoever is challenging has got to bring their yacht to the playing field under their own sails and for that reason Sir Thomas had to sail the Shamrock V to wherever we are without no outside aid. Well, I don't know how long or short it took him to get over here with that scow, but if he believes in Christmas and wants to have a tree at the Lipton home and be there himself, why he had better get on the board of a sloop that can get somewheres, for inst., the Leviathan or Imperator, or else he won't be out of the trenches by Easter.

Wind Works Both Ways.

A wk ago Saturday they called off the race because they wasn't no wind. This Saturday they called it off because they was wind. They's no grounds in the world that you can't call a yacht race off on.

As for our part, wile I didn't get what you might call a thrill out of it, why still and all I think we morning newspaper guys on the board of the good old Destroyer Semmes had a good time of it, though I wouldn't hardly call it healthy, but the chief difficulty now is, how are we going to live in comfort on land after getting use to a destroyer. Well, I have thought it all over and in behalf of the rest of the boys I will give them a few suggestions in regards to what to do. The simplest thing is to get a rocking chair with one rocker kind of broken down and set in it on the porch all day in a calm and you will get pretty near the same sensation. Of course, it is understood that you half to get up at 5 a. m. in the morning and pretend like you was falling onto a tug and then staggering onto a destroyer and then falling into one of the officers' berths and falling asleep and stay there till somebody comes in and tells you how the race come out.

Wants It in Ireland.

Several people that knows I never seen a international cup race before has asked me to give my impressions thereof. Well, boys, my impressions can be told in words of easy syllables. It's one long and continuous yawn or gape, and I only wished that the Shamrock could of win this race so they would half to hold the next one in Ireland where we don't half to try and look at it.

I will bet that the officers of our good destroyer Semmes will be sorry to say goodby to we boys. Yes, they are.

FARMERS TO ORGANIZE TO SELL COLLECTIVELY

Commission of 17 Will Work Out System of Co-operative Grain Marketing.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, July 24.—Plans for the formation of one or more central organizations or exchanges through which farmers' co-operative associations can market their grain are to be worked out by a commission of 17 to be appointed by J. R. Howard of the American Farm Bureau Federation. The appointment of such a commission is provided for in resolutions adopted by a conference of farm organizations and farm marketing associations which today concluded a two-day session here. The conference was called to consider means of stabilizing grain and live stock markets and was participated in by most of the leading farm organizations and farm marketing associations operating in the Midwest.

The committee bringing in the resolutions was composed of President C. S. Gustafson of the Nebraska Farmers' Union, Attorney B. Drake of the Equity Co-operative Union; A. L. Middleton, representing the Farmers' National Grain Dealers' Association; J. C. Sailor, American Farm Bureau Federation; B. Needham, master of the Kansas grange.

The committee of 17 is to be composed of representatives of the leading farm organizations and co-operative grain and marketing agencies in the United States. A convention of these organizations is to be later called to consider the recommendations of the committee. The personnel of the committee probably will not be announced for several weeks and it is likely that some six or eight months will be required for it to formulate its report. The committee appointed to make suggestions on livestock marketing problems recommended that a separate conference be held in Chicago in the near future to especially consider this subject.

This conference will probably be held in about 60 days. The livestock committee was composed of James Plump, president of the Kansas State Livestock Association; John G. Brown, president Indiana Federation of Farmers' Associations; James Clemons, national secretary of the American Society of Equity; Prof. H. R. Munford, manager Livestock Marketing Department of the Illinois Agricultural Association; E. P. Hubbard, president of the Nebraska Grain and Live Stock Association. The leaders of the various organizations represented in the two-days' conference expressed themselves as well pleased with the progress made toward getting farmers' organizations together on the great problem of stabilizing markets.

TWO YOUTHS HOLD UP AND ROB GROCERY STORE OF $90

Two young men displaying revolvers entered the Kroger grocery at 1125 Montrose avenue last night at 8:15 o'clock while there were no customers in the place, and held up Joseph Le Francois, 3000 Hickory street, manager, and Miss Olive Woods, 19, 1725 Ohio avenue, cashier.

They took a purse containing $40 from Le Francois and $50 from the cash register, ran south in Montrose and escaped.

FIFTH YACHT RACE, DELAYED BY WIND, SET FOR TOMORROW

Result of 25-Mile Southwester Disappoints Throng Gathered to Witness Deciding Cup Contest.

TWO-LEG COURSE FAVORS DEFENDER

Shamrock Designer Says Present Racing Series Has Shown Need of Changes in Design.

By the Associated Press.

SANDY HOOK, N. J., July 24.—Possession of the sloop America's yachting trophy still hangs in the balance, the fifth and deciding race of the 1920 regatta between defender Resolute and the British challenger, Shamrock IV, having been called off today in the face of a 25-mile southwester. The final race is to be held Monday.

Today's postponement came as a bitter surprise to a great holiday crowd that had gathered hoping to see the two-and-two tie run off, but the racing skippers obviously considered discretion as the better part of valor, for both quickly signaled "No" in response to an inquiry from the committee boat whether there was objection to postponement.

Both sloops had worked their way out through a heavy sea under light sails—Shamrock IV traveling under main sail, small working topsail and storm jib, while Resolute carried only her mainsail and a storm jib. They were bobbing about near the start like chips and were heeled over by the wind until their lee decks were awash when the postponement signal sent them scurrying back.

Second Weather Postponement.

Today's was the second postponement because of heavy weather in the history of the contests. The first was in 1903, when Shamrock III objected to racing in a northeast gale. All other postponements have been due to lack of wind. The most notable instances were in the 1899 series between Shamrock and Columbia, when there were 10 postponements out of 13 trials.

Monday's race will be run over the same course set for today—a 15-mile beat to windward and a 15-mile run before the wind.

In the five starts to date, one of which ended in "no race" because of insufficient breeze to take either contender around the course in six hours, Resolute has shown superiority in windward work.

She had taken a commanding lead in the 15-mile windward beat of the first race, July 15, when an accident to her rigging forced her to concede Shamrock IV a victory. In the second meet, Resolute failed to get a windward leg by a shift in the wind. In the third race, over a two-leg course, Resolute gained enough on the windward beat to enable her to win by her time allowance in a dead heat with Shamrock. She evened the score yesterday on the triangular course, outsailing the challenger on the windward beat and the broad reach home, and making within 40 seconds as good time as did Shamrock on the second leg, which was a close reach.

Resolute's time allowance will remain at 6 minutes and 40 seconds, the Regatta Committee has announced. This decision was made known after the official measurer went over Shamrock IV's new topmast.

Present Races Only Trial Ones.

Charles F. Nicholson, designer of the Shamrock, says he is not entirely satisfied with the Shamrock as she stands for racing in American water.

"These races have, in fact, only been trial races for us," said Nicholson, "and we are learning more about Shamrock every day. We have learned much about wind and wave conditions off Sandy Hook. Had we had such knowledge there would undoubtedly have been certain changes in Shamrock's design."

Nicholson said he was not satisfied with Shamrock's new bow and agreed it pounded too much in the ground swell that runs off Sandy Hook. One of the members of Shamrock's crew admitted today that Shamrock carried a lee helm and was not always easy to steer.

Capt. Andrew Jackson Applegate, the Jersey coast fisherman who was engaged by Sir Thomas as adviser to Capt. Burton because of his knowledge of winds and tides along the course, gave way today to an extra man to handle sails. He was on the yacht in yesterday's race and according to information received from him tonight, he will go aboard the challenger early Monday for the final race.

The yacht Vanitie sailed a race against Resolute from Race Rock, at the easterly end of Long Island Sound, to Brenton Reef lightship, off Newport, in 1915, and the wind was 25 miles and a little over at times. It was a windward thrash, and Vanitie went through it. Resolute did not finish, but went to the Herreshoff shops instead.

13th High-Bred Cat Given to Sir Thomas

ON BOARD THE STEAM YACHT VICTORIA.—(By wireless to the Associated Press.)

SIR THOMAS LIPTON sat in the shade under the striped canopy rigged over the afterdeck of the Victoria today, dividing his time between conferences with his chief yachting advisers and listening to his secretary, who read aloud the cable messages and aerograms which poured in with cheer and encouragement from all parts of the world.

There also came aboard the Victoria today additional good luck charms. A miniature yacht, a model of Shamrock built of tea roses, with Sir Thomas' picture bedded in the mainsail, was delivered when the yacht came up to her moorings. This was followed by a big black cat, bedecked with a green ribbon, the mascot, according to the donor, having a long-standing reputation of bringing good fortune. "Tom" proved to be a poor sailor and was reported to be seasick within an hour. This is the thirteenth cat received by Sir Thomas.

RACE CALLED OFF THROUGH FEAR OF LOSS OF LIFE

Explanation Given to Lipton, Who Says He Feels He Is Going to Win America's Cup.

ON BOARD THE STEAM YACHT VICTORIA, July 24, by wireless to the Associated Press—Today's race was called off by the Regatta Committee because of the fear that there might be loss of life among the crew of the challenging yacht.

This explanation was given to Sir Thomas Lipton by Captain Burton and Yachting Master Duncan Neill when they were called to the Victoria after the challenger had been returned to her moorings.

"It was with the consent of the skippers of the two yachts," Sir Thomas said. "They both agreed it was the wise thing to do. The wind was blowing fully thirty knots when the hour for the race to start had arrived, Captain Burton told me, and seas were sweeping over the racers. I was naturally disappointed at first, for the reason that from my position on the sheltered deck of Victoria I could not appreciate the conditions. I believed it was ideal weather for Shamrock to show what was in her. Since talking with Captain Burton and Colonel Neill, however, I am quite satisfied that the right thing was done. I must add, however, that there was no suggestion from Shamrock that the race be called off."

The signal calling the race off could not be observed from Victoria, due to the mist, and the first Sir Thomas knew of the abandonment was when the two racers were seen returning.

"We will sail again Monday, unless plans are changed," Sir Thomas said. "I feel I am going to win, and I have made up my mind to put the cup on exhibition in the British Museum for a month."

Sir Thomas said he was well satisfied Shamrock could have withstood the test of the sea today had the race been run, but he added that he was better satisfied that no chances were taken with the lives of the men manning the racers.

MILITARY FUNERAL FOR LIEUT. M'CARRON, ST. LOUIS AIRMAN

Plane From Scott Field Circles Above Cemetery, and Drops Wreath.

A military funeral was held yesterday morning for Lieut. William C. McCarron, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. McCarron, 5806 Enright avenue, who died Tuesday night at Fort McPherson, Ga., of injuries sustained in an airplane accident near Sandersville, Ga., July 12.

At the interment in Calvary Cemetery, an airplane from Scott Field, driven by Lieut. Kennedy, circled five times above the flag-covered casket, finally dropping a wreath. A firing squad fired a salute of three volleys and a bugler blew taps.

The services, held at St. Rose's Church, Goodfellow and Maple avenues, were conducted by Rev. Father J. J. McGlynn. Six veteran officers who served with Lieut. McCarron during the war were pall-bearers. At the cemetery the services were conducted by Father Forstell of St. Rose's Church.

Lieut. McCarron was a graduate of Soldan High School, and a member of the school football team. He served in France during the war, and at the time of his death was an instructor at the flying field at Columbus, Ga.

EDITOR GIVEN 10-DAY JAIL SENTENCE FOR CONTEMPT

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 24.—Arthur J. Sloane, managing editor of the New Haven Journal-Courier, today was sentenced to jail for 10 days and execution of the sentence suspended, by Judge Charles J. Martin of Orange, for alleged contempt of court.

Comment in reports of trials of liquor raid cases at Savin Rock, a shore resort, was deemed by Judge Martin to reflect upon the court. Sloane denied there was contempt, testifying that the object of the comment was to point out the unreliability of testimony of witnesses.

REED TO DEBATE WITH HAY, IF LATTER GETS NOMINATION

Senator, in Speech at Nevada, Assails Hay and Long for "Adopting Any Pro-League Platform."

SAYS THEY HIDE IN CELLAR OF EVASION

He Denies That He Has at Any Time Aimed Remarks at President—Has "Kindly Regard for Him."

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEVADA, Mo., July 24.—Senator James A. Reed told a crowd here today that he will not debate the League of Nations with Charles M. Hay, senatorial candidate, before the primary elections, but declared that, if Hay is nominated, he will debate with him from every stump in the State.

Reed paid especial attention to Breckinridge Long, another candidate for the Democratic nomination for Senator. Reed declared that the only thing that is clear in regard to Long's attitude on the League of Nations is that he wants the job of United States Senator and that he will take it upon any terms whatsoever.

Probably the largest crowd which assembled to hear Reed since his recent reception in Kansas City gathered at the courthouse here, where the Senator was to speak from the front steps. Reed arrived late. Rain caused the meeting to be held in the Circuit Court room. Discussing Hay and Long, Reed said:

"The Honorable Breckinridge Long aspires to a position in the Senate. The most important matter to come before that body is the League of Nations compact. I asked six questions. Mr. Long answered these questions by stating that he stands upon the platform of the Joplin convention, upon the platform of the San Francisco convention; that he likewise stands upon the position taken by President Wilson, and I presume upon any position that may be taken by Gov. Cox. No two of these positions are identical. The attempt to stand upon all of them at once is an interesting experiment in mental acrobatics.

"Wants Job on Any Terms."

"The platforms are ambiguous. They speak of reservations which do not nullify, but do not tell the people what will constitute nullification. Mr. Long evidently fears to place himself on record and tell the people what he means to do. The only thing perfectly clear in any statement made by Mr. Long is that he wants the job of United States Senator and that he will take it on any terms whatsoever. No one who has followed the course of Mr. Long can doubt that if the President had been against a League of Nations Mr. Long would have been loud in opposition. If the President had been in favor of the Lodge reservations, Mr. Long would have bowed in worship of the President's wisdom. If the President had at any moment withdrawn Article X, Mr. Long would have declared him a Solomon come to judgment. If the Joplin convention had declared in favor of specific reservation, Mr. Long would have said amen. If the San Francisco convention had adopted a different plan, Mr. Long would have readily shifted his position. If Gov. Cox should tomorrow declare that he would accept no league which submitted the vital interests of the United States to a tribunal composed of the representatives of foreign representatives of foreign governments, Mr. Long would at once declare Mr. Cox the greatest of Americans.

Long's Position on League.

"At this time when new issues are confronting the country and the greatest problems ever presented to the world are demanding solution, when that solution can only be arrived at by men who have the courage of their convictions at this time, when there is a storm in the intellectual and political worlds, Mr. Long haunts the cyclone cellar of evasion.

"Nevertheless, Mr. Long has inadvertently thrown some light upon his position. He declares that the campaign being made by myself amounts to a nullification of the party platform. This, then, is his construction of the platform: That those who insist that the United States shall have as many votes in the league as Great Britain are nullifiers; that those who insist that the United States shall always reserve to itself complete control over the construction and enforcement of the Monroe Doctine are nullifiers; that those who insist that the United States shall always retain the right to increase its army for its own defense without awaiting the consent of foreigners are nullifiers; that those who insist that the United States shall not sign a contract binding itself to engage in all the wars of the world and to send its soldiers to die in the defense of some 40 countries, scattered over the surface of the earth, are nullifiers. Thus Mr. Long places himself in a position justifying all these enormities. He seems to be more willing to nullify the independence of America than to nullify the League of Nations covenant.

Question of Peace.

"With a war cloud hanging over the world, Mr. Long still insists that we shall not make peace, get our troops out of Germany and reserve to the future the settlement of the questions of the future. His position is that we shall now sign a solemn compact which, if it were in force at this time, might, within 24 hours, compel us to again start our troops for Europe to take part in another sanguinary conflict, originating solely in a dispute between Poland and Russia, and involving, in reality, nothing except the desire of each country to acquire or to hold a strip of land 4000 or 5000 miles from our shore.

"What I have said of Mr. Long likewise applies with perhaps equal force to Mr. Hay. As for the other candidates on the Democratic ticket, with the exception of Judge Priest, they have likewise hunted the cyclone cellar. They declare they stand upon the platform. They refuse to say what it means, or what they think it means. They refuse to tell how they will interpret it. Like Mr. Long and Mr. Hay, they want the office; they are not concerned in questions of principle. The fate of the nation amounts to nothing, so long as they can claim party regularity by refusing to express an opinion. In sharp contrast with the position of these gentlemen is the position of Judge Priest. And undoubtedly he desires this great office, but more than he desires the office he desires to defend his country. He pledges the American people that no vote of his will ever surrender national rights, impair national sovereignty, send our boys to die in the wars of foreign countries with which we are not concerned, submit to the decision of foreign tribunals the vital interests of the United States or in any other way strike at the heart of American independence. He tells the people his hand will never pull down the American flag, in order that honor may be done to the flag of internationalism. Let the people decide."

Denies Aiming Remarks at Wilson.

Senator Reed, in his address, denied that he had ever indulged in personalities in speeches with reference to President Wilson's position on the League of Nations issue. He declared that, while he had criticised certain utterances and acts of the President, he had too much respect for the "great office of the President to attack him personally."

The Senator also stated that he had never had a personal difference with the President and that "for the man who is President, I have nothing but a kindly personal feeling."

"It has been recently said that I referred to the President as a braying animal," Senator Reed continued. "No such expression ever passed by lips, certainly not intentionally. I was referring to arguments that had been repeated by many people and to some gross misrepresentations and in the heat of an extemporaneous speech, did use the expression that what I said was true, notwithstanding the brayings which were being heard, but nothing was further from my mind than a reference to the President.

Denies Personal Hatred.

"It is quite possible for men charged with great responsibilities to entertain diametrically opposite views upon great questions without being actuated by personal anger or hatred.

"There are, however, some men so constituted that they are incapable of understanding that there can be differences of judgment without personal acrimony. This class of individuals and newspapers has persistently ascribed my opposition to certain great national and international affairs to the fact that at one time a difference existed between the President and myself over the appointment of a postmaster in Kansas City.

"It must be, indeed, a small mind which would attribute to any man so contemptible a reason for his public acts. A dispute, if it can be called a dispute, occurred during President Wilson's first term. Long before the President's second campaign, the Postmaster-General called me to his office, expressed regret that any differences had arisen and asked me for my recommendation. At that time the man whom I had originally recommended, Mr. O'Malley, had embarked in business and did not desire the appointment and had so stated. Thereupon Mr. Steele, my friend for 20 years, was appointed to the position.

Missouri's Vote in 1916.

"This occurred, as I have stated, before Mr. Wilson's second campaign. I entered that campaign with every energy I possessed. One speech that made in the Senate was used by the national committee as a campaign document. The State of Missouri gave Mr. Wilson something over 28,000 majority, giving me substantially the same vote. I am claiming no credit for this, I simply cite it as an indubitable fact of the miserable character of the attack which has been persisted in for two or three years."

GANG MEMBERS SOUGHT AFTER NEGRO IS SHOT

Six Men in Auto Wanted for Shooting on Chouteau Avenue at 2 P. M.

Six men known to the police as members of the "Cuckoo Gang" of Chouteau and Allen avenues are being sought following the probable fatal shooting of Riley Brown, 20 years old, of 1704 Gratiot street, a negro, as the six drew up to the curb in an automobile in front of 1231 Chouteau avenue at 2 p. m. yesterday.

Two of the six stepped from the machine and walked towards Brown, whose back was turned.

"Hey, you," one of the men remarked. Brown turned to see who had addressed him and was shot by the spokesman. The two jumped back in the machine and disappeared with the others west in Chouteau avenue.

Brown was taken to city hospital No. 2 and found to have been shot through the head, the bullet entering the cheek and emerging behind the ear.

Auto Seized by Police.

George Tissot, 1229 Chouteau avenue, a jeweler, who witnessed the shooting, gave the police the license number of the automobile in which the men were riding. Police traced the license to a man known as one of the "Cuckoos." The car was found a short time later in a garage at 835 Hickory street with the engine still warm. It was taken to police headquarters. The owner was not at home.

Police have the names of six men furnished by Patrolman Krueger, Soulard Street District, who was standing at Eleventh street and Chouteau avenue at the time of the shooting. The machine had passed him a few seconds before and he had noted the men in it.

Police believe the shooting was the outcome of the holdup earlier in the week of a saloon on Tenth street frequented by members of the gang. A white man and a negro, both armed, held up the bartender and robbed the place. Brown, the police believe, may have been mistaken for the negro robber. Brown said he had never seen the men before and said the shooting was apparently unprovoked. He said he had no connection with the holdup and knew nothing of it.

Members of Gang Sought.

At the time of the shooting policemen were searching for members of the "Cuckoo Gang" in connection with the wrecking early yesterday of the interior of the soft drink saloon of Robert M. Creed at Twenty-second and Adams streets. The piano, bar, mirror, glasses, etc., were found chopped with axes when a policeman discovered the door broken open at 5 a. m.

Creed and two of his brothers have recently been threatened, police say, by members of the gang following the killing of their reputed leader, John Lyons, in front of Allen's saloon, Tenth and Hickory streets, two months ago. The Creeds were arrested in connection with the killing but released when the grand jury failed to return any indictments in the case.

PHOTOS EXAMINED IN SEARCH FOR SIX SAFE ROBBERS

Police Find no Trace of Auto Burglars Who Took $12,000 From W. S. Ireland Home at 2 A. M.

FAMILY GUARDED ON SECOND FLOOR

Ireland Forced to Open One Safe and Is Struck With Revolver When He Refuses to Unlock Other.

Ward S. Ireland, president of the BlueBird Manufacturing Co., yesterday related to the St. Louis County authorities that his home at 6825 Natural Bridge road, Pine Lawn, had been robbed by six men, who he said blew a safe shortly before 2 a. m., and drove away in an automobile with its contents. He said the safe contained money and valuable papers, amounting to $12,000 or more.

The St. Louis police also took note of Ireland's story, and Ireland and Allen Hall, chauffeur at his house, spent three hours at headquarters yesterday afternoon, inspecting photographs of criminals. They did not find any picture which seemed to them to resemble any of the six men of whom they told.

Ireland said the robbers went first to the sleeping quarters of his chauffeur and gardener, awakened the two men, and told them that they were revenue agents, and that they had been told that a large quantity of liquor had been brought to the Ireland home recently.

Ireland said the six men—there may have been more than six, he said—awakened him and his wife and three sons, and compelled Mrs. Ireland and the children, with the servants, to go to the second floor, where two armed men stood guard over them.

"I was forced to remain downstairs," Ireland said. "I have a safe weighing about 1000 pounds in a cloak room adjoining the front entryway. They ordered me to open it. I said that I did not know the combination. One of the men spied a smaller wall safe. They said that they had been told there were stolen liquor certificates in that safe and ordered that I open it. There was nothing of value in it, so I obeyed the order.

"The men poked me in the body with their revolvers, insisting that I open the large safe. One of them struck me on the neck with his revolver. I told him that I did not know the combination.

"They then made four attempts to blow the safe, the last being successful. They took the contents of the safe and departed in an automobile. I tried to telephone to the police, but found the telephone wires had been cut. I then went to the home of a neighbor and gave the alarm, besides sending the chauffeur to the Page boulevard police."

Ireland said that he could not describe the contents of the safe or say how much money had been taken or what the "valuable" papers were. He said that the papers had nothing to do with the business of the BlueBird Manufacturing Co., which recently went into the hands of a receiver and was sold.

House Damaged by Explosion.

Constable Schoenbein, who examined the premises, said the charge of dynamite used in blowing the safe seemed to have been much larger than was needed, and that the house appeared to be damaged.

Deputy Constable Frank, who lives in the neighborhood, heard the explosion, and started from his home on a motorcycle, in time, he says, to see an automobile containing several men driving away from the direction of the Ireland home.

Four suspects were arrested, but none was held in the Ireland case. Tim Sullivan of 305 North Fifteenth street, one of those whom the police questioned in the inquiry, was turned over to Federal officers because of the discovery at his home of a copper still, wrapped in rags. He said it must have been placed on his premises by someone who was trying to get him in trouble.

BRYAN'S GRAPE JUICE GROWING POPULAR WITH PROHIBITION

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Bryan's grape juice is becoming popular as a result of prohibition, the Department of Agriculture has discovered. A careful study of the use of grapes for unfermented juices, jellies and jams was made by experts to see just what had become of the grapes that formerly went into wine. A total of 9472 cars of grapes were shipped in 1919 by growers in Eastern states, as compared with 4338 in 1918.

States that grew grapes for wine making are turning them into use for the table and for juice making as far as possible.

"In those regions which specialize in grape culture," the department says, "the production of unfermented grape juice and of jams and jellies is utilizing an increasing tonnage each year and will do much towards using the surplus left by the cessation of wine production."

BRICKLAYER LOSES $500 GETTING ON STREET CAR

Savings and Salary Dropped or Stolen While on Way to Deposit it in Bank.

Charles O. Carl, a bricklayer, of 3671 McRee avenue, either lost or was robbed of approximately $500 as he boarded a Broadway street car yesterday at noon at Broadway and Tyler streets.

A crowd of workmen boarded the car at the same time and there was some jostling. Carl had carried his savings from his home, had added his week's pay money to it and was on his way down town to deposit it in a bank.

RUSSIAN TRANSPORT CAPTURED

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—Customs officers aboard a revenue cutter, after a 10-mile chase in San Francisco Bay, today captured the Russian transport Rogday, possession of which has been claimed by rival Russian factions.

The chase was made after representatives of what has been called the Kerensky group seized the vessel early today from the Soviet Captain. The Soviet watchman aboard the boat appeared at a hospital with bullet wounds in both shoulders. The customs officials will hold the vessel pending instructions from Washington.

DIAZ READY TO LEAVE MEXICO

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, July 24.—Gen. Felix Diaz, nephew of former President Porfirio Diaz and an erstwhile revolutionary leader in the State of Vera Cruz, is ready to leave the country, considering the revolutionary movement ended, according to announcement by the War Department.

Gen. Arnulfo R. Gomez, chief of operations in Tamaulipas, has reported the routing to the rebel leader Manuel Larraga near San Jose Dewpinto.

Child Scalded in Pan of Water.

Charles Disalvo, Jr., 3 years old, 1008 North Tenth street, was seriously scalded last night when he accidentally sat in a pan of hot water which his grandmother, Katherine Disalvo, was using in "picking" chickens on the rear porch of the Disalvo home. The boy was taken to the City hospital.

U. R. MEN TO VOTE ON ASKING FOR REHEARING

Executive Board to Put Question Before Men—Support of C. T. L. U. to Be Requested.

The Missouri Public Service Commission will be petitioned for a rehearing of the wage increase demands of the organized employes of the United Railways Co., providing the union at its meeting tomorrow adopts a recommendation of the Executive Board.

As has been told, much dissatisfaction has been expressed concerning the commission's award of an increase of 5 cents an hour to more than 5000 employes of the railway company. The men had asked for an increase of 25 cents an hour. The proposal of arbitration by the commission was made by the union, in a letter to Receiver Wells May 11, in which it was stated that "if the board finds for or against us we will religiously abide by their decision."

H. M. Nelson, president of the union, said that in view of that promise he anticipated no drastic action by the men as a result of the decision, but he added that the men were disgusted by the manner in which the commission had treated them.

The executive board of the union, consisting of representatives from every craft affiliated with the union and the various divisions of motormen and conductors, met last night and, after a lengthy discussion, decided to submit to a referendum a proposition to ask the commission for a rehearing.

The boar dalso decided to send a deelgation to the regular meeting of the Central Trades and Labor Union this afternoon to ask for that body's moral support of the union's demand for an increase higher than teh oen awarded.

for storage of the trunk, asking me to return any change due him. I sent him the trunk and mailed him a check for $6.78, representing his change. The check was made out to E. Leroy and was cashed at the Detroit Y. M. C. A.

"Fernandez and Yanez were both of the South American or Spanish type. They were both handsome men and were always well dressed. They usualy wore tight-fitting clothes of sporty cut. They had dark complexions and coal black hair. Fernandez was about five feet eight and heavily built. He was about 30 years old. He was popular with the women. Yanez was about the same age, but was a good deal shorter man.

"Yanez stayed in New York until about six weeks ago, when he went to San Antonio."

Said Wife Had Gone Away.

It was about six weeks ago, incidentally, that E. Leroy left the apartment at 105 Harper street, Detroit, telling the proprietor that his wife had gone away the night before that A. A. Tatum shipped the woman's body to New York.

"The letter I received from A. A. Tatum," Branic went on, "was as follows:

"'You were recommended to me by a previous patron. I am enclosing receipt for trunk addressed to myself. Please pick up and hold till I come to New York, when I will pay you cartage and storage.'

"I went to the express company yard at Thirty-third street and Tenth avenue in few days and then to the warehouse at 228 East Forty-fourth street, but they said they didn't have any such entry on their books. I thought there was some mistake and put the letter away. I didn't think anything more about it till I read the names Tatum and Leroy in this morning's paper."

The reason the expressman did not get the trunk may be that he inquired for it in the wrong name. Whereas "Tatum" said in his letter it was addressed to himself, the receipt named the consignee as James Douglas.

According to the Detroit police, two trunks were shipped to New York from the house at 105 Harper street, Detroit, on June 10. It is possible, therefore, that Tatum shipped one trunk to "James Douglas" and one trunk to A. A. Tatum. The Detroit police announced that they are searching for an express driver who has disappeared.

Searching for Second Trunk.

The New York police tonight were silent about the second trunk, but it was learned they had asked the Cincinnati police to assist in their search for it.

Word also came from Detroit that the police there are investigating the forwarding address Leroy gave when he left the Harper street house after shipping the two trunks to New York. He told the manager of the house that two towels, two blankets and a table cloth, which were missing, had been sent to a laundry and would be returned, but if anything was wrong he could be found at Charlevoix, Mich. The laundry was not returned.

The New York police said last night that the Turkish towel and blanket found in the trunk corresponded to the description of the towel and blanket missing from the Harper street house.

Another clew being followed by the Detroit police was the label on a blue serge sack coat which was in the trunk with the body. The label was: "Browning, Hearnside Co., Men's Shop, Pulaski, Mich."

The New York police have shipped the trunk, the man's and woman's clothing, newspapers and other articles it contained, together with the rope with which the trunk was tied, to the Detroit police to help them in their investigation.

Although the police made no progress in identifying the woman, the Post-Dispatch representative was informed that a woman who called herself Miss Sullivan and gave her telephone number as Canal 417, called up the American Railway Express Co. this morning and said she believed from the description in newspapers the dead woman was her her sister, who left for Detroit a year ago and has not been heard from recently. Officials of the company referred her to the police, who said tonight she had not communicated with them. Canal 417 is the number of the Jaburg-Miller Co., Inc., battery equipment makers, 137 Hudson street, which was closed this afternoon.

No Trace of Chloroform.

The brain of the dead woman, analyzed at the Bellevue Hospital pathological laboratory yesterday, showed no trace of chloroform, which might have been there if an illegal operation had been performed. This is not a certain test as ether might have been used as an anesthetic, and ether leaves no trace in the brain. Further tests, which may take 10 days, will be made to see whether traces of poison are in the brain. A few poisons leave traces in the brain.

Whether the cutting of the body and removal of all the organs except the brain was done to conceal death by a criminal operation, poison or some other cause, has not been established. Medical Examiners Norris and Schwartz think it was done to conceal death by criminal operation, while Capt. Arthur Carey of the homicide bureau believes it was a "ripper" murder and that the organs which decompose quicker than the flesh, were removed to delay discovery of the crime.

Clew From Buffalo.

A Buffalo clew is from a man who told the police there the description of the victim tallies with that of Mary Abrams, formerly of 195 Church, Toronto, Ont., a waitress, who moved to Detroit with her husband a year ago. He was probably impressed by the fact that two of the murdered woman's teeth protruded. He said this was a characteristic of Mrs. Abrams.

Detroit police plan to compare descriptions of the murdered woman's clothing with that worn by a young woman who disappeared, according to the landlady, from the apartment house at 105 Harper avenue about the time of the murder. The husband of the woman left the house the day after his wife vanished. Just before going he sent off two trunks by express.

G. C. Brokaw, superintendent of the American Railway Express Co., has found the name of a teamster who took the trunk to the office June 10. He is "Depot" Lemon, according to Mr. Brokaw, but has not been at his stand at the Michigan Central depot since July 1.

Relative of Missing Girl Trying to Identify Body.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Pa., July 24.—Authorities of Washington County, Pa., announced today that they were making efforts to ascertain if the body of the woman found in a trunk in New York yesterday is that of Katherine Dan, 20 years old, who went to Detroit early in June and has not been heard form since.

Ida Dan, sister of the missing girl, and Alphonso Talifrone, are phisoners in jail here, and are being held in connection with the disappearance of Katherine Dan. Talifrone is charged with violation of the Mann act, and complicity in the disappearance of the Dan girl. The sister is being held for further investigation.

In a statement today, Ida Dan said she believed her sister is dead. "Whether she is the girl they found in the trunk in New York I would not venture to say," she added. Taliforne said he had not heard from the missing girl for some time.

Conuty authorities claim that details of the finding of the body in the trunk tally with facts and dates surrounding the disappearance of Katherine Dan. She left home at Canonsburg, Pa., early in June, for Detroit, and was accompanied by Taliforne, authorities said. The latter was arrested in Detroit and brought to this city, but efforts to find the girl in Detroit failed. County detectives, who investigated the Detroit end of the case, said today that 105 Harper street, Detroit, the address found in the trunk at New York, was the apartment in which they located Talifrone and found articles of the missing girl's clothing.

Trunk Received by Detroit Police From New York.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., July 24.—The trunk in which the body of an unidentified woman was found in New York was received by Detroit police this evening. Shortly after its arrival detectives hurried on what they said was a new lead. It is understood that the new clew came from New York.

"This instrument is without question greatly superior to any other of its kind, and I shall be glad indeed to have my playing reproduced with such manifest fidelity." This is what Paderewski says of the Duo-Art.

What is the DUO-ART?

Suppose you owned a Steinway Piano on which Paderewski had played the great masterpieces of music—compositions of Liszt, Chopin, Beethoven, and all the other immortal composers. And suppose that, right in your own home, whenever you desired, this miraculous instrument would repeat these performances as the master himself had played them.

This the Duo-Art does.

Paderewski makes rolls for the Duo-Art exclusively.

The Newest Haynes Creation

ANSWERING the demand for a swift, snappy production—a truly individual car that fulfills the wishes of those who desire a creation that embodies the vibrant spirit of youth, a car that fairly breathes life and vigor and confident class—comes the new series Haynes Special Speedster.

Production of the new series Haynes Special Speedster must perforce be limited. The importance of making an immediate reservation is emphasized.

LABOR PRESENTS PLAN FOR IRISH PACIFICATION

Based on Withdrawal of Home Rule Bill and Substitution of Dominion Self-Government Scheme.

SNIPING RESUMED BY BELFAST FACTIONS

Volley From Armored Car Wounds Ten Persons in Crowd Refusing to Obey Order to Move.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 24.—Labor's scheme for pacification of Ireland, presented to Premier Lloyd George, Thursday, by the Parliamentary Committee of the Trades Union Congress, is based on withdrawal of the present home-rule bill from the House of Commons and substitution of dominion home rule with provisions whereby the Ulster council will have the option as to whether it accepts.

The Premier's reply was that he was willing to discuss the proposition with anyone having authority and who could deliver the goods, but the trades union, he said, was not in that position He said: "I am very sure that things are going to happen on the other side, and things will become very much worse and very much sterner. Whatever anybody who is anxious for peace does, let him do it quickly. That is all I have to say. I have already said I was prepared to discuss with the responsible leaders of Irish opinion any plans for the settlement of Ireland, subject to two conditions. The first was that we could not agree to secession in the American sense, and the second was that we must have self-determination for the northeast."

BELFAST, July 24.—Sniping was resumed in the Kashmir street area at 3 o'clock this morning, one man being wounded.

Many arrests have been made in connection with last night's looting, and further news from the disturbances in the Newtonards road district shows 10 wounded by a volley fired from an armored car to disperse a crowd which refused to move after a baton charge by the police.

The center of the trouble last night was St. Matthew's Catholic Chapel rectory and convent, both of which buildings were protected by soldiers. Attempts were made to set both buildings on fire with cans of petrol, but the police and military forced the crowd towards Newtonards road, where it lingered until dispersed by an armored car.

RIOT SCENES IN BELFAST DESCRIBED BY CORRESPONDENT

By ARNO DOSCH FLEUROT.

Special Cable to the New York World and Post-Dispatch.

BELFAST, July 23.—Kashmir road is a little street of low brick houses in a neighborhood inhabited by a mixed Orange and Catholic population. Two avenues lead to it—Falls road, which is a thoroughfare through a solid Catholic section, and Shank Hill road, paralleling it several hundred yards to the east through an equally solid Orange section.

It is only one of many doubtful streets in a section of the city of alternate Orange and Catholic blocks, but it is a hot point in the war of sectionalism into which Belfast has been thrown by the attempt of of the Orangemen to drive the Catholics from the ship yards. Sniping, with four deaths and a score or two wounded in this street, alone, occurred during last night.

During this evening I approached Kashmir road from both sides. The Falls road section in general is quiet with the regular policemen patrolling. Sinn Fein flags are flying. The bulk of the Catholic population is peaceful but nervous. Falls road is full of curious folk, many evidently Catholics thrown out of work in the ship yards. Scattered through them doing the work of the police were many young men of the type belonging to the Irish Volunteers, who are maintaining order and warning the passers-by not to loiter. At Springfield road they formed a line across Falls road, warning everyone that soldiers had machine guns trained on the corner.

Hears Half Dozen Shots.

While I was there half a dozen rifle shots were heard and the crowd began to run. The Volunteers told them to run until they got home. I gathered that the Volunteers are acting under orders from Sinn Fein headquarters. The Sinn Fein sees that rioting here is playing into Carson's hand, who is able to lay all the blame on the Catholics.

Kashmir road I approached through silent streets with knots of people in the doorways, with a little knot of people at the further end, and portable entanglements before the barricaded soldiers. Revolver shots occasionally were answered by a short rattle of machine guns, all in obscurity. A man in the distance tottered and fell and was dragged into a doorway.

In the main thoroughfare of Shank Hill Road the Orangemen are wearing their regalia and walking about. The union jack is also flying. The police and soldiers are at home and the atmosphere is that of a party carrying on a successful campaign.

TUBERCULOSIS IS SWEEPING RUMANIA, LEONARD SAYS

Relief Worker Tells How Thousands Are Dying From Plague—Bolshevism on Decline, He Believes.

Oscar Leonard, superintendent of the Jewish Educational and Charitable Alliance of St. Louis, has returned from a five-months' stay in Rumania, his native country, where he went as a relief worker for the Joint Distribution Committee in Bucharest, capital of Rumania.

In an interview given out in New York through the relief organization which he has served abroad, Leonard declared that Bolshevism is not at present a menace in Rumania, that anti-Semitism has declined greatly, and that tuberculosis is one of the most serious problems in that country.

"The Jewish people have complete rights in Rumania now," said Leonard. "Only one of the 40 newspapers in Bucharest is anti-Semitic, and that one makes out an occasional statement against the Jews. In the University of Jassy, once a hotbed of anti-Semitism where A. C. Cuza, the leading anti-Semite of Rumania, holds a professorship, Dr. Simon Santilevici has been appointed professor of mathematics, the first Jew to become a member of the faculty of the university."

Although conditions as a whole are better in Rumania than in Poland, tuberculosis is sweeping the country, due to five years undernourishment and the overcrowding in the cities. Much of American Jewish relief work in Rumania is an attempt to combat tuberculosis. Several thousand children are being taken away from the miserable, crowded quarters in which they live in Bucharest, rooms in which families of eight and 10 exist, veritable hot-beds of tuberculosis and are being sent to the country. Other plans for combatting the disease are the building of open air schools and the establishment of tuberculosis camps, using American tents.

Homeless Being Taken In.

"Houses partially ruined by the war are being repaired and made habitable, in return for which the owners agree to take in another family to live with them," Leonard continued. "The people pay for this house repairing in small installments. This is also effective in combatting tuberculosis, because so many houses are without doors and windows and during the winter they were boarded up to keep out the cold, the men, women and children crowded in them falling easy victims to tuberculosis."

Home visits by physicians were inaugurated in the Jewish relief work, for the first time in Rumania, according to Leonard, who declared there were thousands of Rumanians suffering with tuberculosis and other diseases who had never had medical attention and who simply lay in their squalid quarters, waiting to die, unless Jewish relief physicians began administering to them.

Reconstructive relief is being emphasized in Rumania, although milk and soup stations must be continued for some time, he said. Two features of the reconstructive work proving very successful are a shop employing destitute women, where clothing is manufactured, and a nurses' school at Jassy, graduating Jewish girls able to make a livelihood at nursing and at the same time helping to supply the acute need for nurses.

"Begging is terrible in Bucharest," he continued, "and one thing that the Joint Distribution Committee is attempting is to eliminate every Jewish beggar in Rumania before completing its work."

Teaching the people to give as well as to receive was started in the relief work, by the introduction of a typical American "drive" to raise money for local charitable organizations of Bucharest. Over 2,000,000 lei (normally $400,000) was raised in Bucharest among the Jews, and the campaign was so successful that it is to be continued throughout Rumania. The non-Jewish part of the population was so impressed by the campaign that they are to be inculcated in future institutional work in Rumania, according to Leonard. Queen Marie was particularly impressed, said Leonard, and she conferred with him several times relative to it. The department of labor of the Government also asked him to assist in the organization of the Bureau of Public Welfare, newly created Government bureau, according to American methods.

Leonard said there is no fear of Balshevism in Rumania, the people being well satisfied with their Government, which is liberal and democratic, there being no press censorship.

"The King and Queen are very popular because of their democracy," he concluded. "They go around unaccompanied, enter theaters and movies unannounced, receive no demonstrations and expect none. It is no unusual sight to see the King driving his own automobile through the streets. Once I almost stepped on his toes in a moving-picture theater."

YOUTH SOUGHT FOR YEAR IS ARRESTED

Wanted in Connection With Running Pistol Fight With Police in Which One Was Killed.

Albert Lee McEwan, 22 years old, of 312 Victor street, who has been sought by police for nearly a year following a running duel between detectives and four men in an automobile loaded with safe burglars' tools, nitroglycerin and guncotton near O'Fallon Park, which resulted in the killing of one of the supposed robbers, was captured yesterday afternoon when he started to enter his home.

Detectives Koehn and Smith spent three days and nights watching the home from a shoe repair shop that commanded a view of the place after they received information McEwan had returned to the city from the west coast and would probably try to see his mother. Koehn was one of the squad of "night hawk" detectives who figured in the running fight last year. He recognized McEwan as he entered an alley and started into his home through a rear door.

Said to Be Ex-Convict.

McEwan, the police say, is an ex-convict, having served a two-year sentence for an attempted highway robbery in which his revolver was taken from him and he himself shot with it by the intended victim in 1917.

Early in the morning of Aug. 17 last year McEwan, his brother, Floyd, Edward Lester and Robert Lewis, riding in an alleged stolen automobile fled before the detectives who attempted to stop them near O'Fallon Park. A chase of several miles resulted, the detectives firing riot guns and revolvers and the four men in the machine returning the fire.

Near Warne and Florissant avenues the machine was overhauled. Floyd McEwan and Lester were captured, Floyd being shot through the nose. Lewis fled and a few minuates later was shot and killed by Probationary Patrolman Treat at Obear and Lee avenues. Albert McEwan escaped. His shirt, covered with blood from assisting Flyod was found the next day in the rear of 2007 East John avenue.

The automobile in which the men had been riding was found to have 32 bullet holes in the back. Inside the car the detectives found four revolvers, gun cotton, nitroglycerin, a "come along" for opening safes, drills, bits, "jimmies," rubber gloves to hide finger prints, fuse caps, and a piece of oil cloth.

Two Jump Bonds.

Lester and Floyd McEwan were charged with grand larceny and feloniously having burglars' tools in their possession. They both jumped their bonds of $4500 signed by "Blind" Kelly, a lawyer.

Floyd McEwan was recently captured in the oil fields of Oklahoma. Albert Lee McEwan was traced to Cheyenne, Wyo., by detectives, but as the Circuit Attorney's office had not funds available to bring him here it was decided to wait until the lure of homesickness brought him back.

Albert Lee McEwan, after his capture yesterday, denied to the detectives he was in the machine on the night of the fight. He was identified by all four of the policemen engaged in the battle. He claimed to have been back in the city for two months, but this is denied by the detectives who say they had kept close tab on his home and learned he returned three days ago at which time Koehn and Smith took up their vigil in the shoe shop.

FARRIS GETS ENDORSEMENT OF NINTH WARD DEMOCRATS

Candidate for Governor to Spend Much of This Week in St. Louis, Attending Ward Meetings.

Frank H. Farris, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, was indorsed by the Ninth Ward Democratic organization at a meeting in the Bohemian Gymnasium, Ninth and Allen streets, Friday night, at which about 200 persons were present.

City Committeeman William Kaiser of that ward, presided over the meeting, which Farris addressed. Former State Senator John Sartorious also spoke.

Farris yesterday spent a short time in Kansas City, after which he went to Buchanan County to make one speech. He was scheduled to speak last night in Platte County.

Farris plans to spend much of this week in St. Louis. He will arrive here tomorrow night, and several meetings have been arranged for him, one or two of which, in wards where the committeemen are favorable to him, are expected to be rather large.

Farris was expected to confer with Judge Miles Bulger while in Kansas City yesterday, in an effort to get his support. Bulger normally is one of the Pendergast lieutenants, but he is understood to be taking an independent course in the gubernatorial race this year.

GIRL RETURNED FROM CHICAGO TO ANSWER ROBBERY CHARGE

Jewelry, Clothing and Cash Found in Room of Former Servant in Home Here.

Julia Grodovski, 16 years old, of Glen Carbon, Madison County, Ill., was brought from Chicago to St. Louis under arrest last night and, with her, jewelry valued at $800, clothing valued at $250 and $17 of $65 cash which on July 4, it is charged, she took from the home of George L. L. Davis, 5285 Washington boulevard, Vice-President of the Scullin Steel Co.

The girl had been in the employ of the Davis family long enough to be trusted, it was thought. The family was absent on July 4 and upon their return the girl and the valuables were missing.

The police watched a girl acquaintance until a letter came from Julia in Chicago, saying that she was employed at the Illinois Athletic Club as a maid. She was wearing the jewelry when arrested and the clothing and money were found in her room. She said she momentarily yielded to a desire for finery.

TWO NEGROES, CAPTURED, ADMIT ROBBING FOUR HOMES IN WEEK

Albert Belger, 21 years old, of 609 North Twenty-third street, a negro, captured with another negro at 3 p. m. yesterday as they emerged from the residence of George W. Fryhofer, 4428 Forest Park boulevard, which had been robbed, confessed, the police say, to having robbed four other homes in the West End in the last week. He said all of the homes were those of families out of the city.

An assortment of loot was recovered at his home and is awaiting identification at the Laclede avenue police station.

At the time of his arrest Belger had in his possession a watch, a $20 gold piece made into a fob and a penny bank that had been stolen from the rooms of Ted Smith, keeper at the Fryhofer home.

SEVEN ARE INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE CRASHES

William Edward, 59, Seriously Hurt in Collision—Man Pinned Beneath Truck.

William Edward, 59 years old, of 4733 St. Louis avenue, was injured seriously and two others were cut and bruised when an automobile driven by Harry Edwards, 34, same address, overturned in collision with an automobile driven by Otis Gilworth at King's highway and Northland avenue at 3 p. m. yesterday. The younger Edwards and Joseph Sueme, 2929A Hebert street, were bruised.

Edwards told the police he had tried to drive past a truck ahead of him north in King's highway when he struck the Gilworth machine, which was westbound in Northland avenue.

Edwards was taken to his home. He suffered a fractured shoulder, hip, and ribs and internal injuries.

Raymond Thurmer, 17, of 2301 Sullivan avenue, a chauffeur for the Steyh Importing Co., was pinned beneath his truck when it was overturned at Twenty-third and North Market streets yesterday by another truck which, witnesses said, was running west in North Market street at 40 miles an hour. The truck did not stop after the accident.

Thurmer was rescued by pedestrians and taken to his home. His right arm was fractured and he suffered internal injuries.

Morris Levitt, 10, of 4320 Evans avenue, was knocked down by an automobile driven by Harry Cosmas, proprietor of the Coliseum Candy Co., Jefferson and Washington avenues, when the boy stepped into the street to take a Page car at Jefferson avenue. He suffered scalp wounds, cuts and bruises.

James Graham, 49, of Piedmont, Mo., suffered scalp wounds and internal injuries when he was struck by a truck driven by Gis Hoelscher, 4353 College avenue, at Nineteenth street and Washington avenue. He was taken to the city hospital. Hoelscher was arrested.

SECRET U. S.-POLISH RELATIONS CHARGED

Farmer-Labor Candidate for President Wires Harding to Tell Country of Situation.

By the Associated Press.

SALT LAKE CITY, July 24.—Parley P. Christensen, Farmer-Labor candidate for President, tonight disclosed what he said were "secret relations" between the United States and Poland whereby many millions of dollars worth of war material had been delivered to Poland. This material, he said, was delivered to Poland for use against the Russian Soviet Government in exchange for long-term Polish notes bearing 5 per cent interest.

The statements were made by Christensen in a telegram to Senator Harding, Republican presidential nominee, calling on him to "employ your powerful position to acquaint the country with the immensely grave possibilities to America of a continuation of the administration's Polish-Russian policy. He was encouraged to make the request, he said, by a statement recently printed in a New York newspaper, quoting the Senator as saying "it is no business of ours what form of government the Russian people choose."

The telegram in part follows:

"You are undoubtedly aware that the administration has concealed from the people the facts of the immense financial loans to Poland and knowledge of its delivery of huge war stores to the Polish armies. If you are not, I can inform you that the War Department has provided the armies carrying on an offensive warfare against Russia with 4,600 freight cars, 3,500,000 pounds of corned beef, 5,000,000 pounds of oleomargarine and $53,000,000 worth of miscellaneous military equipment.. . . . The Navy Department has likewise delivered to Poland large quantities of materials for use in the Polish attack on Russia. Insolent refusal by Secretary Daniels to divulge a word or fact have greeted requests for information.

"The Polish Legation at Washington has audaciously demanded a statement of American moral support of the Polish position, and the extension of further credits is imminent, according to the dispatches. In the event of a general European Imperialist alliance behind Poland and against Russian government, this Requblic, involved as it already is and more deeply involved as the Administration obviously intends it to be in the fate of the Polish Imperialist adventure, must need face the question of transporting an American army to be slaughtered in a merciless and insane Eastern European conflict.

"If you mean what you said about the right of the Russian people to choose their own Government, I would ask you to exert your public influence, as I will exert my own, to compel the administration to reveal the full extent of its financial relations with the Government of Poland and to reply to that Government's demand for an expression of American moral support with a statement inviting the Poles and all other belligerents asking our sympathy to return to their proper boundaries and calling upon them to restore at once the peace of Europe."

Harding Speech "Bunk."

The speech of Senator Harding accepting the Republican nomination for President is 'bunk,'' Christensen, declared in a formal statement today. Christensen ridiculed the Republican nominee for accepting yesterday, a nomination which he declared was tendered to him in a Chicago hotel room early in the morning of June 12 last.

"As to the vital issue before the people," Christensen continued, "issues involving their deliverance from economic bondage and political servility, the Senator from Ohio pours forth a sea of words signifying nothing. He, who but a few years ago sullenly said the workingman should be satisfied with $1 a day and the farmer contented with $1 a bushel for wheat, has become so progressive as a candidate for the presidency as to admit that labor is entitled to a better wage than that; but adds that 'labor must give its full measure of service for high wages if this country is going to avoid industrial and economical chaos.' "

NORTH CAROLINA GOVERNOR WARNS 'OUTSIDERS' TO STAY OUT

By the Associated Press.

RALEIGH, N. C., July 24—"I do not propose to let anybody from outside of North Carolina investigate any of our institutions, Gov. Bickett declared today, after reading published reports that the Prisoners' Relief Society, with headquarters in Washington, D. C., was contemplating making an investigation of an "epidemic of complaints" in regard to prison conditions in this State.

"We at least have State's rights left as to the conduct of our prisons," said the Governor, "and I intend that this right shall be maintained and exercised. I have been 'cussed' all over North Carolina from Cape Lookout to Slick Rock Creek on account of my sentimental love for convicts. I have been perfectly willing to take this 'cussing' from North Carolina folk. But I absolutely refuse to take 'cussing' or criticism of my official conduct from any outsider."

Railroad Pensioners Get Increase.

GIDEONS TO SPEAK AT 71 CHURCHES TODAY

Convention to Close With Services at Centenary Methodist Church Tonight.

Delegates to the convention of the Christian Commercial Travelers' Association, or Gideons, which opened Thursday at Hotel Statler and will close tonight with services at Centenary Methodist Church, will speak on the work of the organization at 71 churches at 11 o'clock this morning.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected yesterday. J. H. Humphreys of Huntington, W. Va., S. A. Fulton of Milwaukee, Wis., and Horace D. Wells of Chicago, were unanimously re-elected president, vice president, and treasurer, respectivly; J. F. Cousart of Philadlphia, was elected chaplain and A. P. Lounsbery of Cincinnati, and R. Sheplee of Kansas, were elected trustees for three years. A resolution was adopted to instruct the cabinet to appoint Robert Cowden of Philadelphia, chaplain emeritus.

Reports of the state presidents and the national president were read yesterday morning. President Humphreys' report showed 660 members added last year, 2056 associate members enrolled, and 34,140 Bibles placed in hotel guest rooms, bringing the total of Bibles so placed by the Gideons to 437,124. Associate members are men who, not being commercial travelers, are not eligible to active membership.

The convention, on recommendation of the president, adopted a resolution to give associate membership to each of the 515 councils of the United Commercial Travelers, and to co-operate with them in other ways. The president stated that through that organization the Gideons would be able to reach a greater number of traveling men with their religious work.

Sioux City, Ia., was chosen as the place for the next convention by 18 votes more than Atlantic City, its strongest rival.

Municipal Opera Policy Discussed by Former Member of Committee

George R. Robinson Asks Whether Enterprise Is Tending Towards Cabaret—Says Victor Herbert Would Protest.

George R. Robinson, a former member of the board of directors of the Municipal Theater Co., and also of the Committee on Repertoire, has submitted a statement to the Post-Dispatch with a request that it be published.

Because of dissatisfaction with the course of affairs at the Municipal Theater, Robinson sent in his resignation some months ago, and no longer regards himself as connected with the organization, although his name still figures in the list of directors, and although he was informed orally by an officer of the association that his resignation had not been accepted.

He was one of a committee of four who went to New York last winter to select a cast for this summer's productions, and was personally responsible, he says, for the selection of "The Gondoliers" and "The Firefly" as works in the season's repertory. His statement follows:

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

A few days ago the Municipal Theater Association, of whose board of directors I had the honor to be a member, published in the morning newspaper an advertisement in which were reprinted the introductory paragraphs of the articles published by the four daily newspapers concerning the production of "Babes in Toyland." At the bottom of the advertisement appeared the line "The opinion of the public is earnestly requested." As one of the public, I have certain opinions which I should like to express. Since the place has not defined to which such expressions of opinion should be sent, I am submitting mine to the Post-Dispatch, and sending a copy to Mr. Cunliff, chairman of the Executive Productions Committee.

As a member of the Committee on Repertoire, I labored earnestly for the presentation of the best of the light musical works, resulting in the selections of "The Gondoliers" and "The Firefly" and (in the way of concessions to the public) "The Mikado' and "Robin Hood." In place of three other works recommended by me, "The Chocolate Soldier," "The Geisha" and Victor Herbert's "Naughty Marietta," there were selected "The Mascot," "A Waltz Dream" and "Babes in Toyland."

Quantity vs. Quality.

After some puzzling over the advertisement published by the Municipal Theater Association, I came to the conclusion that it was an effort to discredit your reviewer by showing that the writers on three other papers disagreed with him. If so, this is a strategem which I cannot countenance. It looks to me like a misguided effort to conquer quality by sheer mass of quantity, to combat truth with weight of numbers and the expenditure of money.

In this connection, it must be conceded that to the Opera Committee which is responsible for the financial success of the enterprise, a full house is the thing, but if this idea is to prevail to the exclusion of musical values, the logical conclusion will be a cabaret—and who knows, but a prize fight?

I should be slow to believe that even those members of the committee who are strong for the massacred rendition of "Babes in Toyland" would compare its educational or musical value to that of the Gilbert and Sullivan masterpiece, "The Gondoliers," which, as one critic proclaims triumphantly, failed to receive as much applause in all its performances as did the opening scene of the aforesaid "Babes in Toyland."

Victor Herbert Would Protest.

As I take it, your reviewer based his article on an allegation of fact, not of opinion; to-wit, that out of a total of 26 musical numbers presented in the so-called production of "Babes in Toyland," 15, or more than half, were not by Victor Herbert at all. The logical deduction drawn was that the production was not "Babes in Toyland," but an incoherent miscellany of musical numbers—which is a good definition of a revue. From what I know of Victor Herbert, I do not believe he would stand for a minute this use of "frightfulness" upon his work.

The point which I wish to make is this: If the Municipal Opera is really an opera enterprise, such as its self-chosen name would indicate; if, as it continually represents, this is an effort for the artistic and musical uplift of the city; and if the enterprise was justified in seeking exemption from the war tax on the ground that it is an "educational institution"—then the most valuable thing which could happen to the undertaking would be just such a series of independent, serious and musicianly reviews as have been written by your critic.

But if the enterprise, as seems likely, is tending towards vaudeville and cabaret, and aims only at tickling the masses instead of helping them, then the committee are quite justified in preferring articles written by reporters from the point of view of "the man in the street," and by gentlemen who can hear nothing at a performance of "Robin Hood" but the rustle of an artificial waterfall. If the committee wishes the Post-Dispatch critic, and not the baseball reporter, to write about its productions, it must give musical performances.

I believe your critic's review of "Robin Hood" was one of the keenest and most informative I ever read, and I wish particularly to commend him for protesting, as no other writer did, against the salacity of the plot of "A Waltz Dream." There were gags here which would not have been tolerated in public at any place but the municipal theater. Surely young girls and children; and good church people should be safe from offense, if anywhere, at an entertainment sponsored by the municipality.

What shall we say to the figures showing this opera to have brought out one of the biggest attendances of the season? Certainly not that our people crave such entertainment, or that parents are wantonly careless of the moral atmosphere to which their children are exposed. Rather this, that not one in 500 had any idea of what was coming, and when it did come there was no advertised opportunity for the public to send in its opinion. Numerous protests, however, were passed during the days following the performances of "A Waltz Dream." The guarantors for the Municipal Opera are as a rule men who put up their money for the uplift of our people, and I do not believe they will knowingly stand for a work of this kind.

Company Is Overworked.

I wish also to renew a protest which I have urged upon the committee itself, namely, that the grind of overwork imposed under the present system on principals and chorus is inhuman. Surely our guarantors do not wish the performers to be subjected to the terrible toil of performing a new opera each week while rehearsing another simultaneously. I believe that imperfections in the productions have been due more to this one factor than any other. If we cannot have two alternate casts playing every other week, then surely it could be so arranged that the performers need not play more than two weeks in succession and could then rest the third.

In conclusion, I would recommend that all interested in the future of the municipal opera should re-read the salient portions of the article by our own musical director, Mr. Max Bendix, which was published in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine of June 27, and particularly the line: "Good music always drives out poor music if it is given a chance."

CAHILL
—have won their laurels everywhere
Cahill

CAHILL Furnaces Excel,— Why?

because Cahill castings excel, and castings are the vital parts of a furnace—the parts that come in contact with the fiercest heat. The Cahill castings are unusually heavy and thick, and special attention is given to their finish and fit. Such castings guarantee greater durability and satisfaction, because they retain heat longer than ordinary castings, thereby saving fuel, requiring less attention, and giving off a more uniform heat. The heavy Cahill castings are also more durable than castings less sturdily made and offer greater resistance to wear. It will pay you to examine the castings of a Cahill before buying a furnace. They are "built for long service and constant saving."

The modern and sanitary method of heating homes, churches, schools, factories and stores. One register heats the whole house. Simple to install, economical and easy to operate. Uniform heat in every room, constantly circulating.

How Women Are Often Cheated Out of Their Best Years

Physician Explains How Many Women Undermine Their Health and Wreck Their Happiness by Letting the Iron in Their Blood Run Low

Tells How Organic Iron, Like Nuxated Iron, Helps Strengthen The Nerves, Put Roses In The Cheeks and New Vigor and Health In The Veins Of Pale, Careworn Women.

"Where Are My Best Years Going?" asks many a woman who sits indoors, too tired to play, too listless to enjoy the good things of life. Dr. Sullivan in the accompanying article explains how women may quickly regain their health and happiness by the use of organic iron—like Nuxated Iron.

Lack of iron robs the blood of its power to make firm and healthy tissue, brain, and muscle out of the food we eat and the oxygen we breathe, and turns a woman with rosy cheeks, sparkling health and boundless energy into one who is pale, run-down, tired and hopeless. Her thin, watery blood, lacking strength-giving iron, under-nourishes her body and brain and robs her of her natural energy and cheerfulness. She loses interest in life and cannot enter into the normal healthy pleasures of those about her. She is literally cheating herself out of the best years of her life, when she might, in most cases, quickly regain her strength and vitality by feeding her blood with organic iron—Nuxated Iron.

The alarming deficiency of iron in the blood of so many women of today has been explained by a number of doctors as being due to the abnormal hurry and strain of modern life, as well as worry and overwork, and our refined, unnatural diet. These all tend to drain the natural iron from the blood faster than the body can replace it without assistance. Under these conditions we should feed the blood with organic iron, and Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and Westchester County Hospital, explains below why organic iron, like Nuxated Iron, is administered to nervous and run-down women to make them stronger, healthier, and happier.

"Every woman has the right to years of vigor and health. But many a woman cheats herself of her best years by allowing lack of iron in her blood to undermine her health.

"To me the saddest feature of modern life is the number of unhappy careworn women who might so easily regain happiness and health. Doctors' offices are filled with women who are constantly tired, pale, sickly, uninterested in life. I am convinced that many such women, by simply putting iron in their blood, might readily build up rich red blood, increase physical energy, and get themselves into a condition to ward off the millions of disease germs that are almost continually around us. To put the necessary iron in the blood, I have prescribed Nuxated Iron many, many times, and I have seen frequent instances where it gave renewed strength and energy, increased power of endurance, steady nerves, and the rosy bloom of health in about ten days or two weeks' time. I consider Nuxated Iron one of the foremost blood and body builders—the best to which I have ever had recourse."

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron, which is recommended above is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. Each tablet of genuine Nuxated Iron is stamped as follows: N I and the words Nuxated Iron are stamped into each bottle, so that the public may not be led into accepting inferior substitutes. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

Czecho-Slovakia, Holding America as Ideal, Aspires to Become World Power

Veneration for United States Seen on Every Side in New Republic—Health and Morals Big Factor in Progress.

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1920, by the Press Publishing Co. (The New York World.)

PRAGUE, July 5.—It's a long way from Broadway to Prague; a very long way from the United States to Czecho-Slovakia. But it is not nearly as long a distance in the mind of the average Czech or Bohemian as it is in the mind of the New York commuter rushing for his morning or evening train, or the subway strap hanger interested in the box scores.

To begin with, this new republic —which had a King, a very long line of Kings before ever America was an entity—knows little about the United States Senate or American politics or why the American people are not putting all their strength behind a League of Nations. But they know what the Stars and Stripes really represent and they are all for President Wilson.

When I came rumbling into the main railroad station at Prague a few days ago to attend the famous Sokols congress I found that the railroad terminus in this historic old world city was called the Wilson station. And I was not long in finding that many of the chief buildings of the city were gay with American flags and scores of purveyors of American flags at street corners were selling the Stars and Stripes on which were the words, "Glory to Wilson." There is still great veneration for the 14 points in this neck of the continental woods and a still greater veneration for the chief magistrate of the United States who formulated them.

The veneration for President Wilson is symptomatic of the veneration for the United States. This newly-born republic feels that it has a mass of things in common with the great western republic and its only regret is that an ocean lies between to prevent a much closer relationship. For the average Czech there are today two great outstanding figures in world affairs—President Masaryk and President Wilson.

Aspires to Be World Power.

But I want to tell of the efforts which are being made in this distracted and uneasy part of Eastern Europe to place Czecho-Slovakia on the world map as a substantial world power with a contribution to make to the future of the universe. One of the chief means of accomplishing such an end is through the development of the Sokols. In other words, the development of a large body of men and women to physical perfection and all it portends in the development of the morals of the State.

While other countries are lending aid, to a varying degree, to the outdoor movements such as girl and boy scouts, to the plaground movement, and the summer recreation camps, Czecho-Slovakia, through the Sokols system, is correlating the hundreds of organizations throughout this state of less than 12,000,000 inhabitants to create eventually a mighty nucleus of splendid health and morals on which the state can draw in any emergency.

The first meeting of the Sokols was held in Prague in 1862. But until Czecho-Slovakia was born as an independent state it had a precarious existence. The Austrian Government, fearing its effect as a nationalist movement, did everything to suppress it. Now it has blossomed forth in its greatest strength.

For the last four days the immense stadium in Prague has been the setting for the nationalist movement, which found its inception in a small gymnastic association. The spirit underlying is the attainment of perfection rather than that of competition. Now we see 12,000 men march onto the immense arena from two sides, in blue trousers and sleeveless white gymnasium shirts. At the signal of one man, who stands on top of the grandstand and just over the presidential box, this magnificent body of athletes goes through a series of exercises with machine-like precision. Every line is 670 deep, and none is out of alignment.

Women Also Take Part.

When the men have finished their exercises to the accompaniment of music they march off, and onto the field come 12,000 women and girls, many of them married and mothers, but more often unmarried. They wear blue serge skirts and white waists, and around their heads is bound a white dotted red handkerchief. The 105,000 spectators rend the air with applause.

Above the president's box stands a lone woman, the leader of all these wonderfully developed women, the finest examples of womanhood in the realm. They go through their drill with its dancelike movements at the command of this one woman perched high above them. Not a blemish mars their performance. Like the men, they were chosen as the best from the Sokols throughout the country to come to Prague, where for this week they are welded into one great body.

Besides this massed drill of men and women there are the daily track and gymnastic events of the picked athletes. This year an American team, including women, came over to participate.

Like the local Sokols throughout Czecho-Slovakia, the different Sokols in Chicago, St. Louis and several other American cities paid all the expenses of their trip to Prague. Those who came from places throughout Czecho-Slovakia had their way paid and also were furnished with food. While in Prague they have been living in tents.

But there were other than Sokol organizations present this year. There were wonderful teams of athletes from France and Norway, including women teams. The Americans also were represented by a number of women of Czecho extraction. Those from other countries were not Czechs. They were invited to come and demonstrate the systems of physical instruction in use in their countries, because the Czechs want to know what is being done in the same way in other states.

80,000 March in Parade.

The climax of the week was the great parade of the Sokol organizations and their guests. Fully 80,000 were in line, half of them women, and all in the costumes worn at the immense stadium where they had executed their marvellous drills before more than a hundred thousand spectators daily.

Watching this parade one had an opportunity of seeing the flower of Czecho-Slovakia's manhood and womanhood pass by at a fast gait for more than two hours. Never was the enthusiasm relaxed. Through the flag-bedecked streets this perfect army of men and women passed, amazing the stranger and convulsing in a paroxysm of joy the countrymen of the marchers. Here were the pick of more than half a million of the best physically developed men and women of the new republic.

The marchers were as enthusiastic as the people who lined the streets and hung out of the countless windows. Sometimes it developed into a battle of flowers when one company of more than usual ability passed by. Over part of the line many of the women marched upon roses.

From President to lowliest cottager there is the belief that the Sokols spell national unity. No one admits the possibility of this wonderful organization developing into a military body at a future time, but no one can gainsay the fact that it is a nucleus for an army if one is necessary. Since Czecho-Slovakia became an independent state the Sokol societies have increased 200 and 300 per cent in some localities. Today it is an organization working for physical perfection within the state by peaceful means. But tomorrow it could be used as a mighty weapon of defense.

This has been the greatest of all Sokol congresses. Prague has been a flame of color, particularly because thousands of men and women have come in from the remotest parts of the country in their national costumes to participate in the festivities. These are pre-war costumes. The ordinary person could not today afford to buy the materials for such suits or frocks. In fact, the materials are not now obtainable.

I have found no Bohemian pussyfoot demanding that this new republic follow the example of the gerat western republic in going dry. Beer in old Prague is a commodity now noticeable for its scarcity, but not for pussyfoot reasons.

No Disorder Despite Crowds.

There may be drunkenness in Czecho-Slovakia, but I have seen none of it during this week of festival. The nation's capital might just as well have no policemen, judging by the absence of indecorous conduct. Added to its population of almost a million, Prague has had to house and care for more than 100,000 guests, not including the 80,000 or more participants in the Sokol congress. The streets have been jammed, but there has been no disorder.

The people pride themselves on their ability to go about their celebrations without police assistance, and this, it must be remembered, at a time when restrictions on the consumption of alcoholic beverages are practically non-existent until midnight.

State Regulation and Our 7% Preferred Dividends

The main purpose of State regulation of public utility rates, earnings, financing, accounting and service is to help utility companies give the public ample good service at its lowest necessary cost.

Interest and dividend payments on the large sums of new capital needed every year to extend the service, as well as on that already invested, are one of the largest items in the cost of service.

The State holds this cost down as low as possible, in the public interest, by approving rates which, with good management, will make the payment of interest and dividends regular and dependable.

It is this SAFETY factor—based on State policy, energetic management and honest capitalization—which enables Union Electric to obtain millions of dollars of new capital here at home by selling its 7 per cent preferred stock at par.

By this method Union Electric obtains new capital, authorized by the State, and needed for the public service, at as low a cost as does any other large utility company in America.

By this method thousands of St. Louis and Missouri small investors, whose savings never before earned more than 3 or 4 per cent interest, are enabled to get a BUSINESS INCOME of 7 per cent, with equal safety for their principal.

Because of its safety, conservative men and women of moderate means regard Union Electric 7 per cent preferred stock as a most desirable income investment. This stock is sold only by Union Electric Light & Power Company, through its Securities Department.

PRICE: $100 a share for cash; $102 on a ten-payment plan, under which buyers draw 5 per cent interest on installment payments, and can withdraw all payments, WITH INTEREST, any time before the final installment is paid.

SALES OFFICES: Room 201 Union Electric Building, St. Louis, and Union Electric's offices in Franklin, Jefferson, Perry, St. Charles and St. Louis counties.

MAIL ORDERS: Bank draft, certified check, postoffice or express money order should be sent with mail orders. Prompt delivery of shares will be made by registered mail.

Dilhoefer Shines As Cardinals Win 10-Inning Battle

Peppery Catcher Gets Four Hits, One a Triple in Tenth, and Stars on the Defense.

FINAL WITH BRAVES TODAY

Hornsby Also Figures Heavily in Victory Which Puts Team Back in Fourth Place.

William "Pickles" Dilhoefer, whose pepper and ambition kept him in the big leagues when he was so green that the cows used to chase him to the train, was the hero of heroes at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon in the Cardinals' 10-inning victory over the ragged but hard-to-down Boston Braves. The score was 7 to 6 and it was the eighth game in succession at Sportsman's Park decided by one run.

In the course of the afternoon Dilhoefer made four hits, one a triple, out of five trips to the plate; drove in two runs and scored two himself; caught two Braves trying to steal and figured in two double plays, one of them starting with his spectacular catch of a foul which drew him to the grandstand wall.

In addition Dillie backed up first and third on every play, held up North and Sherdel in brilliant style and all in all crowded Rogers Hornsby for the honor of being the idol of the Knot-Hole gang.

Back to Fourth Place.

By grace of the victory the Rickeymen climbed back to the first division, whereas a defeat would have dropped them to sixth place. By taking tomorrow's final from the Braves the Knot-Holers can depart for their Eastern invasion with a percentage of .500. Also they must take the game to win the series, each club having won two to date.

Dilhoefer's great day at bat had its climax in the tenth inning when he opened the Cardinal half with a vicious wallop to left. Les Mann played the drive poorly and it went to the fence for three bases.

Boston quickly decided on its scheme of defense and Heathcote and McHenry were purposely passed. Sherdel popped to Maranville and things became shaky when John Scott got two strikes on Jack Smith. Jack, however, is playing with his head very much up of late and he caught Scott's next offering squarely on the nose. The ball sailed far over Powell's head. With the Boston outfielders playing near the infield the drive would have netted four bases, but as it stayed in the park it goes on the books as a single.

Deckles See-Saw Affair.

It was the deciding punch of the see-saw affair, which like the three previous struggles with the Braves, was full of excitement and bitter competition.

Boston counted two runs in the first inning. Powell poled a single to right. Pick's grounder bounced off North's glove for a single. Mann struck out and Eayrs, who is crowding his way toward the league batting leadership, lined an ace to center, scoring Powell. When McHenry fumbled the drive Pick went to third and Eayrs to second. Pick scored on Holke's sacrifice fly, after which Eayrs was picked off second.

Stock's single and Hornsby's first double gave the Cards one in their half of the first and Hornsby's second double and Dilhoefer's single tied the score in the third.

A rally in the fifth, after two were down, gave the Rickeymen a lead of three runs. Hornsby's third hit was a smash past Boeckel for a base. Lavan walked and Dilhoefer's third single scored Rogers and put Lavan on third. Heathcote walked, filling the bases and McHenry poled a single to center, scoring Lavan and Dilhoefer.

Pick's single, a walk, an infield out and Hornsby's wild throw trying for a double play gave the Braves one in the sixth and in the seventh they took the lead, Cardinal errors and bad baseball materially aiding them.

Cards Play Bad Baseball.

Maranville was safe on Lavan's weird throw to start the stanza. O'Neill forced Maranville. Scott's hopper went safely over second, a bad bounce aiding, though Hornsby did not shift as snappily as he might have done. The drive put O'Neill on third. Powell grounded to Hornsby, who failed in his attempt to take Scott on the line and then threw too late to get Powell at first, O'Neill scoring. Pick's long double scored Scott and Powell.

In the eighth inning Heathcote found a wide opening between Mann and Powell and poled a drive to the fence for three bases. McHenry punched a single through the drawn-in infield, scoring Heathcote. Knode was sent in to sacrifice for North at this point, but McHenry was left on second. Smith and Fournier popped out. Sherdel finished on the hill and was effective. His reward was credit for the victory.

Maranville had another great day at short. The "Rabbit" made two star plays in the sixth inning, robbing Jack Smith of a hit on one, a smash over second base and going to the grand stand for Fournier's foul.

Play at 2:30 p. m. Today.

Doak and Watson probably will do the hurling this afternoon in the final game of the series. To enable the Cardinals to catch an early train for the East the game will be started at 2:30 o'clock.

Fulton-Wills Battle at Newark, Tomorrow, Is Best 1920 Feature

Should the Dusky Fighter Win, Dempsey Has Agreed to Waive the Color Line and Meet Him in a Title Contest—Purse of $40,000 Put Up for Heavyweights.

By John E. Wray.

APPARENTLY fearing no outbreak of race feeling, the International Sporting Club of New York will tomorrow put on the first important heavyweight inter-racial bout since April, 1915, when Jess Willard wore out the aged and ill-conditioned Jack Johnson for the championship, at Havana.

Tomorrow's contest which, because of the unpreparedness of the club's New York arena, is to be held in the Newark, N. J. Armory, will not be a championship affair—it will witness the mingling of two leviathans of the ring, Caucasian Fred Fulton and Ethiopian Harry Wills; but because the title holder, Jack Dempsey, has declared he would fight the winner regardless of color, the event assumes more importance than the ordinary squabble between big men of title caliber. It means that a dusky scrapper may again get a chance at the white title and the old question of race supremacy revived, a theme of endless interest in the fight world.

Aside from the prospective championship flavor, the caliber of the rivals is such that many persons figure the contest to be between the candidates best fitted to oppose the champion for the title—and this goes for Carpentier and all others.

Evenly matched in weight and almost on a parity in height and reach, both gladiators are skilled hard hitters. The ingredients for a first-class struggle are all present beyond question—with one exception.

Not of the "Yellow" Race.

Parties hostile to the fighters have, at times, suggested that both of them belonged not to the white and not to the black, but to the yellow race—the chromatic distinction being as to temperament rather than to epidermis.

But the fact remains, in the case of Fulton, that he was for years the only white heavyweight with courage enough to face the black dreadnought, Sam Langford. And as for Wills, he took on the toughest of the heavyweight members of his own race—McVey, Langford and Jeannette—and climbed to the point where he stopped or defeated all of these members of the original black dynasty.

He had the courage to walk right into Langford's heavy artillery no less than six or even more times. The first occasion was when Thamuel was in his heydey and his old left howitzer was exploding with all its pristine muzzle velocity.

On that day the Los Angeles ringsiders rubbed their eyes in amazement. The spectacle that they viewed in the early rounds was a debacle. Upending the world appeared as likely as upsetting Sam Langford; but that had happened and no less than four times did the old war horse find himself on his back looking up at the rafters—the victim of a near-novice.

Facts About First Big Inter-Racial Go Since Willard Beat Johnson

PRINCIPALS—Fred Fulton, Minneapolis, heavyweight title aspirant; Harry Wills, New Orleans, negro heavyweight champion.

BATTLE GROUND—Armory, Newark, New Jersey.

DATE—Tomorrow night.

GUARANTEES—$25,000 to Fulton; $10,000 to Wills.

TITLE PROSPECT—Winner to meet Jack Dempsey, regardless of victor's race.

PROMOTERS — International Sporting Club of New York.

AGES OF BOXERS—Fulton, 29; Wills, 28.

HEIGHT—Wills, 6 feet 2 inches; Fulton, 6 feet 4½ inches.

WEIGHT—About 220 pounds each.

LIMIT—12 Rounds.

Sam came round and eventually beat Wills in the fourteenth round that day; but he lived to experience a bona-fide knockout at the hands of Wills, later, when that scrapper had gained wide knowledge of generalship.

Wills Once Trained Fulton.

Fulton, too, has never hesitated to face any fighter who could draw a hatful of money, no matter how formidable the enemy's reputation. It is an interesting incident in connection with Fulton's defeat of Langford that it was the dusky Mr. Wills who told Fulton how to do it.

Mike Collins had engaged Wills to train Fulton, about the time the bout with Langford was accepted. Wills coached Fred to use his left hand exclusively and let the shorter Samuel run into that gigantic wagon tongue of Fulton's.

The plan of battle worked to perfection. Fulton kept his left in the face of the stocky Sam and held him at arm's length. Only once did Sam connect with the Fulton dome and on that occasion, Fulton afterwards said, it raised a lump like a baseball bat might have done.

In the end Sam had to quit, blinded in both eyes by Fulton's deadly and accurate left.

Fulton's willingness to meet anybody, his uphill victory over Cowler when seemingly beaten, his readiness to take on a second time any fighter who made a good showing on the first occasion, and his almost inevitable better success in his return engagements leads one to believe that insinuations against his courage were altogether unfounded.

The fight tomorrow will be 12 rounds; if it goes the scheduled limit and will be so amply rewarded by the club as to insure the best efforts of both men being put forth.

In short there is every reason to believe it will be THE battle of the heavyweight class, for some months to come.

DUGAN QUITS MACKMEN, BUT JUMPS BACK AGAIN

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 24.—Joe Dugan of the Philadelphia Athletics is the greatest hop, skip and jump athlete in captivity. Again Joseph cracked all records in his favorite event, yesterday, when he leaped to and from Lebanon, Pa. Yes, he's back in town, but that's not all. He is very likely to be at second base again. Mack would not admit this, but he did state that it was very probable that Dugan would not jump.

The jumping jack of baseball left us flat, Thursday afternoon, and hopped a train for Lebanon. He was offered everything except the city hall and the steel plant if he would sign a two-year contract with Earle Potteiger's club.

His return was a surprise to all. It is said that he had a talk with Mack last night and that a new contract was signed. Mack would not commit himself concerning a contract.

Reds Win Final From Giants, 5-3

Victory Gives World's Champions an Even Break on the Series.

CINCINNATI, July 24.—The champions evened their series with the Giants, today, by winning the fourth game, 5 to 3. Both Eller and Nehf were hit freely. Long hits by Groh and Roush were of much advantage to the Reds. Roush's home run to left, in the second, was the first four-bagger made in that direction on the local field for several seasons. Browns Tied With Washington When Rain Halts Game

Gedeon's Triple and Jacobson's Sacrifice Fly Knot Count in Fourth Inning.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 24.—The final game of the series between the Browns and Griffmen this afternoon was interrupted at the end of the fifth round, with the score tied, 1 to 1, by a tremendous thunder and rain storm that swept down on the park, deluging many of the spectators as well as the grounds. The rain continued and Umpire Dineen finally declared further proceedings off. The game will go over until the next visit of the Browns.

"Dixie" Davis, who was on the mound for the Browns, was hit safely but three times during the five innings, but unfortunately he walked Torres in the third and a sacrifice and a Texas League single by Shanks shoved the local's only run over the rubber in the first round. Rice got a single to right, also of the Texas League variety, with two down, but Roth closed the inning with a fly to Tobin.

In the second, fourth and fifth innings the Griffmen were turned back in order.

Each Hurler Allows 3 Hits.

Harry Courtney also pitched well for the Griffmen, allowing but three hits, but one of them was a terrific drive to the left-field bleachers by Gedeon in the fourth for three bases and after Sisler had gone out, pitcher to first, Jacobson brought him home with a long sacrifice fly to Milan in left.

In the first two innings the Browns went out in order. In the third Gerber reacher first in safety, beating out a swinging bunt to Shanks. Severeid then popped to McBride. Davis forced Gerber at second, Torres to McBride, and Tobin flied out to Rice. In the fifth Austin led off with a clean single to left only to be forced at second by Gerber on a roller, McBride to Harris. Rice then made a remarkable one-handed catch of Severeid's line fly to center, and Harris tossed out Davis. While the final two innings were being played it was almost impossible to see the ball on account of the darkness created by the dense overhanging clouds, but the umpires kept them at work to prevent rain checks from being good for the game tomorrow.

Jimmy Austin in the Game.

One of the most remarkable plays ever seen on a professional diamond was engineered by the ever alert Jimmy Austin in the final inning. With one down, Torres hit a high fly towards first that the high wind carried back and forth so that the ball dropped safe between Sisler, Gedeon and Severeid. Torres reached first in safety and decided to try for second, but changed his mind after going a half dozen yards and turned back to first. Austin dashed over, grabbed the ball off the ground and sprinting to first got there before Torres and touched him out. A third baseman putting out a man at first is unique to say the least. Sam Rice's catch of Severeid's long fly in the fifth probably prevented a home run and saved the game. The ball was going over Rice's head when he jumped up, made a stab with his left hand and the ball stuck. Had the ball been missed it would surely have rolled to the limits of the grounds. The Browns were hurried through the rain to the station in taxis and boarded the six o'clock train for Detroit, where they are due to play tomorrow afternoon.

SPORT SALAD BY J. C. Davis

ILLS OF MARY.

MARY had a little lamb,
Likewise a lobster stew,
And ere the sunlit morning dawned
She had the nightmare, too.

MARY had some bread and jam,
Likewise a hunk of cake;
And ere the sunlit morning dawned
She had the stomach ache.

HOW COME?

I WANT to trust my fellow-men,
I like to think their morals sound.
And yet the column headed "Lost"
Is thrice the size of that called "Found."
—Record.

YOU want to trust your fellow-man
Though proper faith you seem to lack;
But if you've lost your faith you can Just advertise and get it back.

SOULFUL.

A COBBLER who loved a petite
Little maid who was oh, very sweet!
Once, stealing a kiss,
Said something like this:
"I now lay my awl at your feet!"

MY love will wax stronger each day,
So be my sole sweetheart, I pray;
With affection steadfast
I will stick to the last
And for you I'll keep pegging away.

The Commerce nine nosed out the First Nationals, 15—14, yesterday afternoon, in the Bankers' League. The State Nationals forfeited to the Mercantiles.

Catcher Lew McCarty Purchased by Rickey From New York Giants

THE Cardinal management announced last night that Catcher Lew McCarty had been purchased from the New York Giants and would join the Cardinals in the East Tuesday. Branch Rickey closed the deal by telephone yesterday afternoon. No other players were involved in the deal, it was said.

Before John McGraw acquired Frank Snyder, Mike Gonzales and finally Earl Smith, McCarthy was the Giants' mainstay behind the bat and was ranked high among the star receivers in the big ring.

McCarty began his professional career with the Newark club of the International League in 1911. He was sold to Brooklyn in 1913 and was traded to the Giants in August, 1916.

While playing at Cincinnati in June, 1917, he suffered a fracture of the leg, just above the ankle, which kept him out of the game for three months. He is 31 years old, 5 feet 11¾ inches tall and weighs 185 pounds.

St. Louis Teams Hitting One, Two In Major Leagues

Cards Lead National, Browns Second in American, Averages Show.

While the sluggers in the American League own higher averages for the campaign than those in the National, "dope" on the season, including unofficial records for games played including last Thursday, shows that the teams in the Ban Johnson circuit have made better use of their safeties in the matter of scoring runs.

Both of St. Louis' teams have been rather wasteful in this respect. The Browns have needed 2.2 safeties to send across a run, and the Cardinals 2.3. The Browns have tallied 408 times and the Cardinals 366.

The Yankees show the way with 535 tallies on 905 hits, an average of a tally for every 1.7 rap. The Cubs have made the best use of their wallops in the National, scoring a run on every two blows.

Yanks' Hits Count Best.

The average of hits used by each club to score a run follows: American—New York, 1.7; Cleveland, 1.8; Chicago, 1.9; Detroit, 2.1; Washington, 2.1; Browns, 2.2; Boston, 2.2, and Philadelphia, 2.4. National—Chicago, 2; New York, 2.1; Cardinals, 2.3; Cincinnati, 2.3; Brooklyn, 2.3; Pittsburg, 2.5; Boston, 2.6, and Philadelphia, 2.6.

Both St. Louis clubs continue their record batting. The Browns with a .295 figure are second, while the Cardinals, .282, are showing the way in the National.

Tris Speaker is .009 ahead of George Sisler for the American League batting supremacy, while Rogers Hornsby of the Cardinals, whose average has dwindled to .359, is still showing the way in the National.

RICHARDSON'S HURLING GIVES MEASUREGRAPHS SPLIT IN DOUBLE BILL

Richardson's pitching, which gave the Measuregraphs an even break with the Mallinckrodt's, featured the Commercial League contests yesterday afternoon. Richardson held the Mallinckrodts to five hits and two runs and struck out 16 batters, giving only one base on balls. The only runs off Richardson were the results of four-base wallops by Doerer and Hibbler. The Measuregraphs won this game, 3—2, while in the other end of the doubleheader the Mallinckrodts triumphed, 10 to 8.

In the other games in the league the Kokens swamped the Frank Adams nine, 19 to 2, and the Cupples trimmed the Union Electrics, 15 to 3.

Cleveland Moves Into First Place By Beating Yanks

Ruth Knocks Home Run, but His Error in Eleventh Inning Proves Costly.

NEW YORK, July 24.—Cleveland went back into first place in the American League today, defeating New York, 4 to 2 in 11 innings.

The Indians scored in the first on Speaker's double, a wild pitch and a bad throw by Ruel. Meusel tied the score with a home run in the second, and Ruth's thirty-fourth homer, made off Bagby in the fourth, proved to be the Yankees' final score.

Cleveland tied it in the fifth, on a triple by Wambsganss and Johnston's sacrifice fly. From then until the eleventh it was tight baseball. Bagby and Quinn pitched in fine form, but the latter retired in favor of Mogridge in the ninth.

In the eleventh Chapman reached first on Ruth's error and Wood was hit. Both scored on Gardner's triple to right. Score:

Century Four Is Again Beaten by Penn and Duluth

St. Louisans More Than Four Lengths Behind in Olympic Tryout Race.

NAVY EIGHT WINS HONORS

Middies Defeat Crack College and Club Crews and Will Go to Antwerp.

WORCESTER, Mass., July 24.—Century Boat Club's four-oared shell crew, last year's national champions, again fell before the rival crews of the Pennsylvania Barge and the Duluth Boat Clubs, here this afternoon.

In the Olympic tryout race, in which the same crews competed as entered the International four-oared race yesterday, the one, two, three boats finished in the same order. The Pennsylvania Barge Club boat was the first to cross the finish line, followed four lengths behind by the Duluth Club, with the Centurys next and fighting hard.

The winning crew gained not only the senior championship of the United States, displacing the Centurys, but will be selected to make the trip to Antwerp to represent the United States in the Olympic games.

It was a pretty start, with the crews getting away in a bunch. The Pennsylvania men did not forge ahead as quickly today as they did yesterday, but they rowed the same strong, steady stroke which told on their opponents in the previous race.

Century Second at the Half.

At the half mile they had a slight advantage over the Century, and they increased it at the mile. From that point on it was evident that the Century crew was tiring, and the barge club began to widen the distance between them, while Duluth, which had been trailing in third position, crept up on St. Louis. The Century did not give up the fight, even though defeat seemed certain. Apparently recovering, they started a new spurt when one-eighth of a mile from the finish and expended their last ounce of strength until they went over the finish line.

Duluth kept going strong and flashed over the line four lengths behind the Pennsylvania club and one-half length ahead of the St. Louis oarsmen.

While the race was rowed in 7 minutes and 30 seconds yesterday, with Duluth and Century 16 seconds behind, the time of the winner today was 7 minutes and 14 seconds, revealing the extent to which the Century crew pushed the winners until a half mile from the finish. The time of the Duluth club was 12 seconds slower with Century one-fifth second behind.

The Pennsylvania crew is declared by many to be the fastest four-oared crew that the country has ever produced. The strength and steady rowing of the men was a revelation.

The navy will represent the United States in the rowing regatta of the seventh Olympic games at Antwerp. The varsity crew of the naval academy, competing against the best college and club eights of the country, today, defeated, after a hard tussle, the crack crews of Syracuse University and Duluth Boat Club, which finished in that order.

With the navy eight, there will go to Antwerp "Jack" Kelly, again national champion in single sculls who, paired with his cousin, Paul V. Costello, a fellow member of the Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia, gained a double claim to Olympic honors by winning the senior doubles title.

The race for senior eights was rowed over a course flattened by rains, which interfered with the earlier events. The varsity crews of Annapolis and Syracuse had defeated all college eights, during the season, and with a victory each, rowed it off today.

Duluth Off in Lead.

Duluth Boat Club's first crew was first away. But after its slow getaway, navy stepped up its stroke from 34 to 36 and forged ahead at the half mile by a few feet, with Duluth close astern and Syracuse not far behind.

The navy shell, rowing 38 to the minute, passed the mile mark with an open water advantage. Astern, Syracuse and Duluth fought hard in an effort to catch the men of the navy, but the Middies held their advantage even when they eased off, running their strokes down to 32.

The Cadets finished with seven feet of open water in addition to the length of their boat over Syracuse, whose boat was partly lapped by the Duluth crew.

The Annapolis second crew, which yesterday won the intermediate eight-oared race, was the leader of the second group in this race, with Duluth's second crew fifth and the Norton Boat Club of Worcester sixth. The time of the winning crew, six minutes, 20 seconds, was the fastest ever rowed on the mile and one-quarter course here.

Moakley Sees Great Future for Hamilton, Missouri Olympic Star

Head Coach of United States T eam Says That, While Tiger Athlete Is Below Form Shown by Jim Thorpe, at Present, He Expects Him to Improve Before Antwerp Allround Contests.

By Jack Moakley.

(Head Coach of the American Olympic Team.)

AFTER closely watching the athletes of the American Olympic team at Travers Island the last few days, I feel more confident than ever that our boys will score a greater number of points at the big games in Belgium next month than any of our rival countries.

Here and there the men can stand improvement, but on the whole, as I said in a previous article, we are well fortified in both track and field.

On the eve of our departure, the athletes are quite sure that the Americans at home will be proud of their performances and achievements on foreign soil.

For the past three days I have been paying much attention to our all-round men. I feel safe in saying that Brutus Hamilton of University of Missouri; Everett Bradley, University of Kansas, and Bob Legendre of Georgetown will be the equal of any men from any other country.

Hamilton showed his great ability as an all-round aathlete by winning both the national pentathlon and decathlon championships against formidable fields. In the decathlon, he established a new American record for the greatest number of points scored in the 10 events.

Hamilton's Appearance Deceptive.

And Hamilton will improve as he goes along. He is only a boy, having reached his twentieth birthday last Monday. He is not a Thorpe in build and he lacks the remarkable strength that the famous Indian possessed, but he has splendid qualities. He is a slender lad, weighing only 165 pounds and standing 5 feet 11 inches.

In 1912, before the Olympic games of that year, Thorpe weighed 185 pounds, stood 6 feet 1½ inch, while his inspiration and expiration measurements were 42½ and 35½ inches.

You would not take Hamilton for an all-around athlete when you first glance at him in his street clothes. But when he puts on his athletic suit, his fine muscles show clearly, and after watching him in a few events, one quickly becomes impressed with his athletic ability.

Hamilton's showing in the shot-put, in the decathlon, was not particularly good. In fact, shot-putting appears to be the weakest link in his athletic make-up. And I happened to notice the other afternoon while he was practicing the reason for his failure to get better distances.

He stood with his left foot in advance of his right, and so failed to get a free swing. Furthermore, he kept his eyes on the ball, and this hampered his throwing. After I explained the proper method of putting the shot, he quickly got better results.

Hamilton is a good pole vaulter, but this cannot be said about Bradley or Legendre. Both fail to shift their hands while making a vault, and for this reason do not get good results. A little coaching will remedy this fault. By the time the team reaches Antwerp both Bradley and Legendre will improve in their vaulting.

Thorpe's Wonderful Record.

I ran across an old clipping the other day about Thorpe and his marks for the pentathlon and decathlon at the Olympic games in Stockholm in 1912. They are worth repeating both as a matter of comparison for the coming Olympic games and to show what a really remarkable athlete Thorpe was.

The Indian won four of the five events in the pentathlon and finished second in the other. He ran 200 meters in 22 9-10 seconds and 1500 meters in 4m. 44 8-10s. He threw the discus 116 feet 8 4-10 inches and the pavelin 153 feet 2 19-20 inches. In the running broad jump he cleared 23 feet 2 1-10 inches.

Thorpe performed even better in the decathlon. In the 10 events the Indian totaled 8412.955 points. In winning the decathlon at Travers Island, and creating a new American record, Hamilton tallied only 7022.9815. Thorpe's performances in all 10 events were exceptionally good and at the finish of the Olympic games he had registered 688.46 points more than H. Weislander of Sweden, who finished second.

The men the Americans will have to beat in the coming games are Loveland of Sweden, who holds the Swedish all-round record; E. Neillson of Norway and Andre of France. Andre, by the way, competed in the interallied games and finished third to Legendre and Vidal of the navy.

Bramer Here for Bout With Lynch

Kansas City Featherweight Is at Crest of Busy Five Months' Campaign.

Harry Bramer, who will face the redoubtable Joe Lynch of New York in the opening feature of the St. Louis Athletic Club, at Battery A Armory, next Wednesday night, arrived in the city yesterday and began his workouts at Harry Cook's Business Men's Gymnasium.

Bramer is at the top of a five-months' campaign and is fit to go at any time, he says. Bramer is little known here, except for a recent fight with Jimmy Murphy at Springfield, Ill. Reports of that bout said that he knocked out Murphy, but this was erroneous. Murphy was doing fairly well, but in the seventh round suffered a badly cut lip which bled so freely that in the eighth, the referee ordered the contest stopped.

In the last few months Bramer has received referee's decisions over the following fighters, among others: Bernie Hahn, Benny McNeil, Earl Puryear, Arlos Fanning (a lightweight), Frank Jumatti, Zulu Kid, Ed Coulon (newspaper decision), Jimmy Murphy, etc. He lost hairline decisions to Jack Wolfe and Pal Moore, but also fought a draw with Wolfe.

Bramer is 22 years old and says he can do the bantamweight limit. Lynch was due to arrive last night, but had not appeared up to 11 o'clock.

HARNESS HORSE CRASHES INTO FENCE, BUT WINS

KALAMAZOO, Mich., July 24.—Plucky Dillard lived up to his name, today, in the windup of Kalamazoo's 1920 harness race meeting. Although in the first heat of the 2:13 pace he got into a mixup with E. J. L., throwing his driver, Palin, running around the mile track and crashing through the fence when stable hands sought to catch him, he won the second and third heats and the race.

Harry Huffman, driver of E. J. L., was thrown and his face bruised, but he was able to drive the rest of the program.

Patrick Todd was an easy winner in the 2:16 trot, while Mac Allerton took the 2:18 pace.

Frankie Mason, Holder of Flyweight Laurels, Has Fought 441 Bouts

FRANKIE MASON, American flyweight champion, claims to have fought his 441st ring battle the other night. That's more bouts than are in the combined records of Jess Willard, Jack Dempsey, Fred Fulton, Bill Brennan and Georges Carpentier. Nearly twice as many as appear on Jack Britton's list and Jack has been scrapping 15 years.

Four hundred and forty-one fights! Think of the hours spent in training for those bouts.

Four hundred and forty-one battles! Say the average length of each go was seven rounds; that makes 3087 rounds altogether. Reduced to days, it is found Frankie has spent seven days and 13 hours in the ring. Eliminating the one minute between rounds, Mason has actually fought six days and 10 hours.

Think of the blows he has landed and think of the ones he has stopped; and yet he has taken the count but once. Pete Herman stopped him in three rounds three years ago, but Mason was not counted out. Carl Tremaine was the first actually to knock him out. And Tremaine, like Herman, was 10 pounds heavier.

Some record!

MOTOR CYCLE RIDERS WILL HOLD ENDURANCE RUN TO HANNIBAL AND RETURN

The first annual St. Louis motorcyclists endurance run will be held today to Hannibal, Mo., and return. The start will be made at 5:30 a. m. at Jefferson Memorial, Forest Park, and the finish on the St. Charles Rock road at Lucas and Hunt roads. The total distance for the trip will be 250 miles and must be covered at the average of 25 miles per hour.

The run is under the sanction of the M. & A. T. A. and is being handled by local tire manufacturers and dealers. There will be four classes, divided as follows: Expert solo, novice solo, expert sidecar and novice sidecar. There will be 23 prizes, first being a $150 watch, the others being silver cups, medals, tires and motorcycle accessories.

The first man will leave the starting point at 5:30, the others to follow at one-minute intervals.

The riders will start with a total of 1000 points and will be penalized for checking in early or late at the four checking stations on the trip. They must arrive at Hannibal five hours after starting, the return trip to take another five hours.

Mebleh Wins Lipton Trophy.

Five-Mile River Swim Draws Field Of 21 Swimmers

Fred Potthoff and Walter Sterba Only Scratch Men in Western Rowing Club Event.

Four limit men will dive from the starting barge at Eads Bridge at 4 o'clock this afternoon, and start the seventh annual handicap five-mile swim of the Western Rowing Club. Between that time and 4:10 p. m., 17 other entrants will start on their paddle through the murky Mississippi to the Western Rowing Club.

The field of 21 starters will represent 10 organizations and is a larger entry than has been attracted by the race in the past three years. Eleven of the swimmers are veterans of other races.

Only two of the contestants will start from the scratch mark, these being Fred Potthoff of the Missouri Athletic Association and Walter Sterba of the Municipal Athletic Association. Potthoff would receive a handicap on form, but requested of Handicapper Joe Forshaw that he be placed on the scratch mark. Sterba finished in fourth place last year in 1:04:52. This is better time than was made by any of the entrants in today's race.

August Muckler, who finished in second place in 1:09:20, last year, has been placed on the five-minute mark and is conceded a good chance for place prize. Lee Bawdon of the Lake Hill Natatorium, a two-minute starter, won the event in 1918.

The starters and their handicaps are as follows:

Ben Peschke, Christ Church Cathedral, and Wilburn Hartwell, William Wiegert, and Henry Bowe, unattached; 10 minutes.

Edward Gallagher, Western R. C.; Lee Roland, South Broadway A. C.; Herman Biesterfeldt, Western R. C., 9 minutes.

Gus Martz, Marquette Pool, and E. J. Jordon, L. K. Hartzog, and Henry Ulrich, Municipal A. A., 8 minutes.

William Roland, South Broadway A. C.; John Donegan, Lorelei, 7 minutes.

Joe Gelling, Marquette Pool, 6 minutes.

August Muckler, Western R. C., 5 minutes.

Joseph Martin, Central Rowing Club, 3 minutes.

Charles Mudge, Crystal Natatorium, 4 minutes.

Lee Bawden, Lake Hill, 2 minutes.

Walter Biesterfeldt, Western R. C., 1 minute.

Walter Sterba, Municipal A. A., and Fred Potthoff, Missouri A. A., scratch.

The following will serve as officials: Marion Parker, referee; Fred Ward, starter; George Schmitt and Walter Fritz, judges at start; Henry Ameiss and Albert Mandeville, judges at finish; Dr. Charles Schwartz and William Smith, timers.

MISS BLEIBTREY SETS 220-YARD SWIM MARK

NEW YORK, July 24.—A new American record of 2m. 55 3-5s. for the 220-yard swim for women, was made by Miss Ethelda Bleibtrey. She lowered her own record by three seconds.

C. R. WOODY NAMED NEW HEAD OF HENDRIX SPORTS

OZARK, Mo., July 24.—Charles R. Woody of Ozark has been elected director of athletics of Hendrix College at Conway, Ark., to succeed Coach William M. Headrick. He will go to Conway the latter part of August to get affairs in shape for the fall football season.

Woody has an enviable record as an athlete beginning his career in the Ozark High School, where he won letters in all branches of sports. He later entered the Springfield Teachers' College where he was again letter man in all sports. Then followed a term at Drury where he won letters in baseball, football and track.

His athletic career at the University of Missouri was the most notable. He won letters in baseball and football, these two sports being the only ones he participated in because a ruling of the university prohibited a student from participating in more than two branches. Woody served in the army and while there was coach in football for the Forty-third Infantry.

JONES TAKES POSITION AT LAKE FOREST COLLEGE

URBANA, Ill., July 24.—Ralph Jones, head coach of the University of Illinois baseball team since 1913, has resigned to accept a position as coach of the athletic teams at Lake Forest Academy.

Frank J. Winters of Rockford, recently added to the university coaching staff, will take charge of the basketball squad. Jones' 1914 team was second, his 1915 team was undefeated, and his 1917 team tied with Minnesota for first place. Jones coached at Purdue and Wabash before coming to Illinois.

ONE-ARMED STUDENT IS STAR BALL PLAYER

Robert H. Allison, student at Blackburn College at Carlinville, Ill., has but one arm, yet is regarded as a star athlete. He made such a fine showing in baseball during the recent season that he was unanimously elected captain of the 1921 team at a meeting of the squad.

Trolley League Schedule.

The Missouri-Illinois Trolley League schedule for today brings the Belleville Bs and the East St. Louis Butchers together at Polo Park, East St. Louis, while the Collinsville Maroons will go to Dupo to give battle to the Hustlers. The leading Wiles Chipmans and the Tri-Cities of East St. Louis will furnish the attraction in Collinsville in the absence of the home team with the Ben Millers and Maxwells of Belleville battling for honors at North End Park in Belleville. All games in the league will start at 3 p. m.

Winner of the U. S. Pentathlon and Decathlon Championships and Coach Moakley's First String Star for These Events at Antwerp.

St. Louis Cyclist Sails to Compete In Olympic Games

Jerry Freeman, Five Picked Road Race Men and Coach Make Up Team.

NEW YORK, July 24.—The American Olympic bicycle road race team, consisting of five riders, accompanied by Coach Jack Neville of Newark, N. J., sailed for Antwerp, today, on the Finland. The departing team members are J. H. Freeman, St. Louis; M. Mogaro, Washington, D. C.; Ernest Kockler and C. Stockholm, Chicago, and Robert Grafting, New York.

Fred Taylor, Anthony Young, Christopher Dotterweich and Fred Beck of Newark, N. J., with Manager Frank Denny of the bicycle track team, will sail with the other athletes, Monday.

All members of the track and field teams assembled today at Traverse Island. Included were Olympic champions of former years and world's title holders in many track and field events, in addition to many recruits from colleges and clubs.

There were several competitions on an impromptu program of events which are on the Olympic track and field list, in which all of the men took part. These constituted the final workouts for the athletes before sailing.

The change in climate and water has effected several athletes and Coach Moakley did not permit them to take part in a very heavy workout today. The strong wind interfered also with some of the events.

Many Fail to Ask for Passports.

Twenty-one of the leading athletes have failed to apply for passports, according to information received, today, from the State Department in Washington. Olympic Committee officials announced that unless these athletes get into communication with the committee by Monday they will not be permitted to sail.

Among those whose applications have not been received, it was stated, are Charles Paddock, runner, and Aileen Allen, swimmer.

Motor Cyclist Wins Three Races.

ROCKFORD, Ill., July 24.—Walker of Denver, Colo., won the 5, 10 and 25 mile tilts in the motorcycle races at Driving Park, today. The best race of the afternoon was a 10-mile sidecar feature in which Deputy Sheriff Warren won. Walker's time for the three races follows: 5-mile, 4:23; 10-mile, 8:42½; 25-mile, 20:17 2-5.

Miss Zinderstein Beats Miss Goss For Gotham Title

Clay Court Champion Wins Metropolitan Tennis Event in Straight Sets.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., July 24.—Miss Marion Zinderstein, Boston, won the Metropolitan women's tennis singles championship on Turf, today. In the final, the new National City clay court title-holder defeated Miss Eleanor Goss, New York, 8—6, 6—1.

Miss Zinderstein used her chop strokes effectively, close to the net. Miss Goss was erratic on service and suffered because of many double faults.

Miss Phyllis Walsh, Philadelphia, and Miss Leslie Bancroft, Boston, won the doubles championship by a default. The referee refused to allow a postponement because of the non-apeparance of Miss Clare Cassel, who was paired with Miss Marie Wagner.

Ray and Vardon Beat Barnes and Kerrigan, 4 and 3

British Professionals Find Sunset Hill Star Off His Game in Afternoon.

By EDWARD RAY,

The Noted English Golf Professional.

GREENWICH, Conn., July 24.—Harry Vardon was going well, this afternoon, in the match we won from Jim Barnes and Tom Kerrigan over the Greenwich Country Club course. He was very nearly at his best and as a result of his good play the chief feature of which was accurate putting, we took the match by 4 up and 3 to play.

But in the morning match, when we were opposed to Kerrigan and Douglas Edgar, the Canadian open champion, from Druid Hills, brilliant play by both of our opponents won the match by 3 up and 2 to play.

Barnes arriced at the club too late for the morning match and that is why Edgar substituted for him and why we played two 18-hole best ball matches, instead of an all-day match for 36 holes.

I was mightily pleased that Harry Vardon finished the course in the afternoon with a splendid 69, the lowest score ever made over the Greenwich course in competitive play, I understand.

The play of Barnes today is not to compare to his play during the Shawnee tourney, which he won, last week. I went out with him the last round of the Shawnee tournament and he was turning out unbeatable golf. But he appeared to be sadly off today.

In the article of this morning I talked of "slicing days" and "hooking days." Well, today was one of my "slicing days." I began slicing at the beginning of the day and could not get out of it at all. I attribute it to the extreme heat. I could not prevent the shaft from slipping in my hands. I have never experienced such terrific heat. It isn't like this in England. If it were, I doubt if anybody would go out to play.

Best Ball System Beats Britons.

Vardon and I play best ball matches by a system that is not our own, of course, for it is almost as old as golf. Today Vardon played the game, working for steadiness and soundness in his play, satisfied to make a hole in par; I played to sink my putt in less than par if possible. That is a good game to play in best ball matches, and by the use of that very game, Kerrigan, playing steadily, and Edgar trying for and attaining brilliant shots, defeated us.

Kerrigan played even a better game in the afternoon than he did earlier. Vardon and I have been thrown into contact with this young golfer more than with any other player since we came here. And we like his game. Whereas in the first match he was not quite precise in his putting, in the second it was almost deadly. His driving was better in the afternoon and he generally got to the green without an unreasonable loss in spite of a stiff breeze and his slippery hands—for they have been slippery.

The Greenwich course is one of the best we have played over. The greens are particularly admirable. I like the whole layout and consider it well fitted for a championship match or any other.

We play Roger Lapham and F. L. Douglas, tomorrow, over the Apawamis Club course, Rye, in a 36-hole match, morning and afternoon rounds.

LOUISVILLE STAR HURLS NO-HIT, NO RUN CONTEST

TOLEDO, O., July 24.—Working in a regular scheduled game against Toledo, today, Tommy Long, Louisville left-hand pitcher, registered a no-run, no-hit game.

HERMAN MAY POSTPONE $25,000 WILDE CONTEST AFTER BOUT WITH MOORE

Unless Injured Hand Shows Complete Recovery, He Will Ask for Delay.

A letter from world's bantamweight champion Pete Herman, received here yesterday by one of his friends, contains a statement to the effect that his bout with Roy Moore, scheduled at Denver Aug. 13, is to be a test intended to show whether Herman's injured hand has regained full strength.

If it appears sound and strong Herman will go to London at once to finish training for his affair with the British "atom," early in September. If the hand is still sensitive, however, it was intimated hat a postponement of the bout would be demanded to allow time for thorough recovery of the injured member.

Herman retired suddenly about two months ago after having broken a small bone in his wrist. At the time it was not known how badly he was hurt, but an X-ray later revealed the serious nature of the injury.

The champion has had complete rest, but has not had much opportunity to train or work out.

JOHNSON WILL BE SENT TO JAIL UPON ARRIVAL IN CHICAGO TOMORROW

CHICAGO, July 24.—Jack Johnson, former world's heavyweight champion, will be refused bail and sent to the county jail when he arrives in Chicago tomorrow in custody of a United States Marshal from Los Angeles, District Attorney Clyne announced today.

Johnson fled from Chicago several years ago, forfeiting $15,000 bail following his sentence to Leavenworth Penitentiary for violation of the Mann act.

An unsuccessful attempt to arrange for Johnson's release on bail was made today by Thomas Carey, a former Alderman. Mr. Clyne refused on the ground that Johnson was arrested while a fugitive from justice.

Federal authorities plan to take Johnson to an outlying jail, either at Wheaton, De Kalb or Geneva.

U. S. TRAPSHOTS CLEAN UP AT ANTWERP; AIRIE WINS OLYMPIC HONORS

ANTWERP, July 24.—America made a clean sweep today in the Olympic trapshooting, taking the first five places in the individual competition. Mark Airie of Champaign, Ill., is the Olympic champion. He scored 95 out of a possible 100. Frank M. Troeh of Vancouver, Wash., was second with 93.

Horace Bonser, Cincinnati; Frank S. Wright, Buffalo, and Fred Plum, Atlantic City, tied for third, with 87.

Airie won with a sensational straight 10 at the finish, shooting at birds sprung at random from eight traps, while Troeh, who was tied with him at 90, broke only eight of the last string.

The day's shooting was done in bad weather, with wind and rain and alternating sunshine.

The Canadian, Montgomery, finished sixth, with 86. Hamilton of the same team broke 82, but Vance with 71, and Beattie with 73 were eliminated before the last 10. Hutchinson-Black, with 52, was eliminated after 70 targets had been shot at.

BOXER, KNOCKED OUT BY BLOW ON TEMPLE, DIES

ELIZABETH, N. J., July 24.—Francis Monahan of Newark, known in the boxing ring as Farngie Mahone, a featherweight, died here today, following a boxing bout with Willie Davis, last night, in which he was knocked out with a blow on the temple.

Mahone was beaten and knocked down in the fifth round, but he refused to allow his seconds to throw in the sponge. The boxers were in a mixup when Mahone fell from a severe blow and his seconds carried him to his corner.

Davis surrendered himself at police headquarters, but was ordered paroled by County Prosecutor Hatfield, until sent for.

County Physician Wescott, who performed an autopsy, said death was due to a hemorrhage, but he could not ascertain whether the hemorrhage was from a blow delivered by a fist or from contact with the floor.

One of the most unique benefit stands ever conducted in the interest of the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund appeared at 324 West Lockwood, Webster Groves, recently. Little Miss Louise Rowley of that address, with the assistance of seven neighborhood children, managed a sale of colored sand. The youngsters used cold-water dyes, chalk, red ink and bluing for the various shades and utilized every empty bottle and dish they found available for attractive arrangement of their wares.

Every shape imaginable, from imitation ice cream sundaes to starfish were fashioned, all in colored sand, and the success of their booth was as great from a financial standpoint as from an artistic one, for they cleared $18 within a very short time. The children assisting were: Billy Sample, Helen Blood, Richard and Susan Shellbarger, Gertrude Briggs, Horton Ryan and Rowena Held.

Children's Show Success.

A miscellaneous program given by the children from the vicinity of 4729 Ashland avenue on Friday, July 16, was attended by an audience of over 250 persons. The proceeds amounted to $67.50 and some of the children, wishing to raise it to $70, conducted a lemonade stand on Marcus and Greer avenues a few days later and earned $4.15, bringing the total to $71.65. A combined show and refreshment sale at 1436 North King's highway, netted $13.20 for the babies. A cake donated by Miss Reese was disposed of after the performance. Those who worked were Lorraine and Mardell O'Neil, Dorothy Capestro, Virginia and Audrey Volmer, Evelyn Farber, Thelma McIlvaney and James Thickitt.

The children of the 5300 block on Nottingham avenue, Southampton, gave a very interesting performance on the lawn at 5301 Nottingham, the home of Miss Edna Dickson, who staged and directed the entertainment. At least 80 persons, fully 30 per cent of them adults, attended, and the proceeds amounted to $8.67. The children were George Lorenzen, Stanley Potter, Josephine Florence and Edward Delaney and Hazel and Richard Metz. Mrs. N. Potter and Mr. Murray gave them a great deal of assistance.

Children on Thomas street have done considerable work for the benefit of the babies this season, and one of their recent activities was a show at 2821 Thomas street, which netted $2.80. It was directed by Frank Kalish, and his assistants were Isadore Flegel, Minnie Berkin, Joe Flegel, Simon Kalish and Ben Cutler.

Rose Cohen and Myra Raiffie gave a show at 1233 Chouteau avenue and cleared $1.33 for the Milk and Ice Fund.

South Side Children Help.

Grace, Ruth and Esther Stephenson sold lemonade at Grand and Park avenues and made 76 cents. Ursula, Bernice and John McGrane conducted a similar sale at Grand and Chouteau avenues and earned 51 cents.

FRAMINGHAM, Mass., July 24.—Thomas Drake, wearer of a Distinguished Service Cross for heroism in the world war, was taken in custoday by a West Virginia officer and started back to Clarksburg in that State today, charged with enticing Flora E. Gill from her home by telling her that unless she accompanied him he would kill her husband, M. D. Gill of Clarksburg.

According to the Framingham police who held him pending the arrival of Gill and the West Virginia officer, Drake was a former suitor of the young woman and when he returned from the war learned that she had been married. REALTY INTEREST IS KEEN DESPITE VACATION SEASON

Demand for Residential and Investment Offerings Viewed as Prophetic of Big Movement in Fall.

MANY FINE HOMES BEING PLANNED

Negotiations for Many Investment Properties in Business and Apartment Sections Pending.

By Berry Moore.

Notwithstanding the absence of many prospective buyers as well as agents from the city on vacation, there is no let up in attraction for both residential and investment offerings ,which is regarded as prophetic of a heavy movement in St. Louis real estate the ensuing fall and winter, according to J. M. Levi of J. M. Levi & Co.

This is especially noteworthy, Levi declares, as to dwellings, the demand for which has extended to such ultra-exclusive sections as Westmoreland and Portland places; owing to the scarcity of houses for sale in those additions, however, transfers of them are restricted. There has been almost a clean absorption of houses in Parkview and in Hillcrest available for buyers, while buildings being constructed in Ames place, notably by J. I. Epstein, the George F. Bergfeld Real Estate Co., Albert G. Blanke & Co., and others, are no drug on the market. Many instances are given in which houses in those sections have been sold from the plans before completion. This is also true as to Maryland Terrace, which is being improved with a high order of houses by the Davis Realty Development Co., of which Everett Davis is president. The market for sites for high-class homes has almost absorbed Ames place, which constitutes an extension of Parkview and which is being sold under the auspices of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co.

Many Homes Being Planned.

Plans are being formulated for many houses for Ames place by persons who have recently acquired sites in that addition ,a result of the house shortage and rental advances. Plans are also being made for the erection of many houses on lots in Hillcrest, which has also been attracting numerous buyers, according to A. R. Schollmeyer, who is handling that addition.

Lot sales in the General Motors district have dwindled somewhat, due chiefly to the fact that the buying of these sites for homes has virtually denuded that district of that class of offerings. The movement in the industrial district, of which the Natural Bridge road is the center, will, it is believed, be prosecuted on a much larger scale with the opening of the big plants under construction in that locality, according to Le Grand Jones, of Paul Jones & Co., who are disposing of the Glen Echo section of Beverly Hills, which proved such a magnet for buyers on a small scale during the spring and summer.

Deals for Investment Properties.

Negotiations are pending for many investment properties, especially in the business center and in the apartment building district, sales of which, probabilities are, soon will give broad dimensions to the real estate movement in St. Louis. As an illustration, there were half a dozen offers yesterday for one piece of property of the investment order placed on sale by Cornet & Zeibig for an out-of-town owner. While this is not literally an auction sale, the firm has elected to award the offering in question to the highest bidder as the only alternative.

Blue prints and plans are much in evidence in the office of the Hemmelmann-Spackler Real Estate Co., one of the foremost lenders of money on real estate in St. Louis and headquarters for borrowers. This would signify that builders are drawing away from their reservations, but the nature of the construction activities under consideration has not been disclosed.

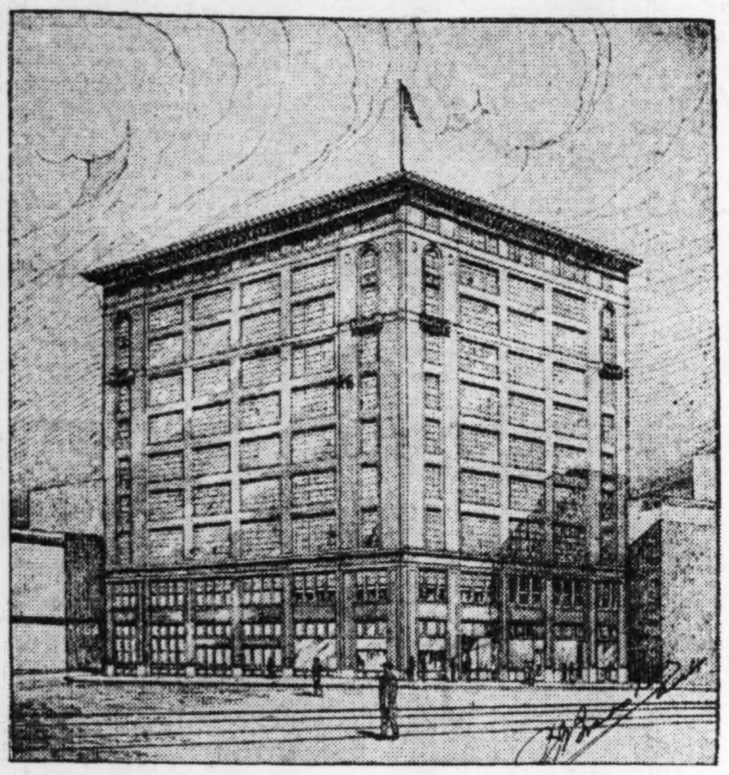
Attention Centers on Corner.

The southwest corner of Ninth and Chestnut street is exciting much attention from business concerns with large building plans, chiefly automobile interests with pretentious plans for show rooms.

The site embraces a quarter of a block, with extra large depth along Ninth street, extending south to an east-west alley of unusual width. It is improved with antiquated buildings which return a very substantial income. The corner is being offered by John Dockery & Son, who have under consideration several attractive offers for it. As a site for an automobile building on an extensive scale it is easily visualized.

The Trione Piston Ring Co. has bought 65 feet on the south side of Forest Park boulevard, between Boyle avenue and Sarah street, as a site for a plant to cost $50,000. The seller was the Marx Realty Co.

$500,000 Structure Being Erected at 16th St. and Washington Av.



D. R. FRANCIS, former Governor and Ambassador to Russia, is having erected at the northeast corner of Sixteenth street and Washington avenue a building that will form an attractive addition to the wholesale section of Washington avenue. The plans were drawn by Preston J. Srandstrom, under whose supervision the building is being constructed by the sublet method.

The structure is to cost more than $500,000. It is to be 10 stories, of the reinforced concrete skeleton type, flat slab construction. The exterior walls will be of red matt brick ornamented with terra cotta. It will be protected against fire by automatic sprinklers throughout. All the windows above the second floor will be of Fenestra steel sash.

The building has been leased for a long term to the James Clark Leather Co., and a portion of it to the Zeigler-Frankel Manufacturing Co.

The deal for the erection of the building was promoted by Inas F. Cook who effected the lease with the Clark Leather Co., while the Weisels-Gerhart Co. arranged the lease with the Zeigler-Frankel Co.

EAST ST. LOUIS CARFARE 8 CENTS TOMORROW

Temporary Increase Expected to Yield $280,000 a Year, Expenses Being up $250,000.

The collection of an 8-cent fare on the East St. Louis Railway Co. lines, authorized in an order Friday by the Illinois Public Service Commission, will commence tomorrow morning. The commission in making the order explains that the increase is granted temporarily, pending decision on the valuation of the company's property, and is made in order that the company may realize money with which to meet the immediate demands for paying the amount due employes as a result of the increased pay award made two weeks ago by a board of arbitration. This award increased the salary of motormen and conductors to 70 cents an hour, the previous figures being 46 to 51 cents. The order is retroactive to May 1, and the company contends that it has not the money to pay the current increase and the amount due since May 1.

The commission, in making its award, used the following arguments:

"The temporary fares hereinafter authorized are justified by the evidence in this case and will not produce more revenue than is required to pay operating expenses and taxes, take care of depreciation, and provide a reasonable return upon the fair value of the property of the petitioner used and useful in the public service, as now indicated by the record in this case."

The company is directed to file with the commission monthly reports of its earnings, expenses and operations, so that the commission will be kept informed as to what revenue is obtained through the increase in fare.

The increased fare is expected to yield about $280,000 a year. The increased expenses due to higher wages of employes, will amount to about $250,000. The new rate does not affect interstate rates, the bridge-city fare remaining at 11 cents, until the company receives approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission to add 2 cents to the fare.

The board of arbitration to determine the wage scale for employes of the interurban lines will begin holding sessions tomorrow. The men are receiving 53 cents an hour and asking for 95 cents.

SLAIN MICHIGAN MAN TRAILED BY ROBBERS, BROTHER BELIEVES

Victim of Chicago Hotel Shooting Once Escaped Poisoning—Thinks Woman Secretary Innocent.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 24.—Max C. Poindexter, South Haven, Mich., oil man, who was shot several days ago in a local hotel, was trailed to Chicago by robbers, his brother, Robert Poindexter of St. Joseph, Mo., believes. He told police on his arrival here today that Mrs. Ora Walters, secretary to the murdered man, who occupied an adjoining room, was innocent, in his opinion.

Poindexter said robbers attempted to poison his brother last March. He identified the weapon found beside the body as one Max Poindexter had borrowed from a sister in St. Joseph some time ago.

WAGE AGREEMENT OF WIRELESS MEN EXTENDED FOR 90 DAYS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Extension for 90 days of the wage agreement between wireless operators and the Shipping Board, which expires Aug. 1, was agreed upon today at a conference of a committee from the United Radio Telegraphers' Association and Chairman Benson.

The chairman refused the operators' demands for pay increases of from $50 to $75 a month and an eight-hour day, but told them he favored some pay increase. It was agreed that a system of graded licenses for the operators based on their years of service should be worked out.

FLAG INCIDENT EXPLAINED

WASHINGTON, July 24.—At the request of the Bermuda authorities, the British Embassy today authorized the following statement relative to the recent alleged insult to the American flag at Hamilton, Bermuda:

"Recent accounts of the alleged insult to the American flag at Bermuda have been greatly exaggerteed, the facts being as follows: Two drunken sailors began to lower an American flag flying at a hotel in Hamilton, but when Col. Outerbridge of the U. S. 23d Infantry, remonstrated, they desisted and left the flag flying. They were subsequently arrested for drunkenness and their actions were severely censured by the magistrate, who fined them and handed them over to the naval escort."

KANSAS MINERS TO STRIKE

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Kan., July 24.—A strike of the Kansas coal miners next week is impending. Alexander Howatt, president of the Kansas miners, asserted today that the miners would start a clean-up of the mines Monday preparatory to a walkout. The strike, it was explained, will be in protest of fines levied against the miners for refraining from working on Saturday.

$5 PENALTY FOR WHISTLING IN THE CITY OF AGANA, GUAM

Probably Only Possession of United States Where One Man Makes the Laws.

By the Associated Press.

AGANA, Guam, July 24.—Whistling is prohibited in the city of Agana under penalty of a $5 fine by order of Capt. Gilmer, Governor of Guam and commandant of the United States naval station here. His order reads:

"The practice of whistling is an entirely unnecessary and irritating noise which must be discontinued.

"It is therefore ordered and decreed that no person shall whistle within the limits of the city of Agana.

"The penalty for a violation of this order shall be an executive fine not to exceed five ($5.00) dollars.

"W. W. Gilmer, Governor of Gaum"

Capt. Gilmer has absolute authority in making the laws of Guam, this perhaps being the only United States possession where one man has this power.

BANDIT ROBS AUTO TOURISTS

By the Associated Press.

FRESNO, Cal., July 24.—A masked bandit, armed with a rifle, robbed four automobile stages enroute to Yosemite National Park today and obtained $350 cash, according to a special dispatch from Merced, Cal.

The robbery occurred between Cedar Brook and Miami Lodge. The bandit, who wore a white handkerchief for a mask, stood on a bank overlooking the road and, at the point of the rifle, compelled one of the passengers to alight and pass a hat among the others. Each was ordered to empty his pockets. The robber declined watches and jewelry.

CITY REAL ESTATE FOR SALE CITY REAL ESTATE FOR SALE

Expanding

RECENT census figures showing big gains for cities in St. Louis County indicate that St. Louis is expanding—forging due west, in the direction of

Ames Place

This exclusive residence section is the logical site for the home-builder of today. Its superiority is established by the many beautiful but economical homes that have been built there, the permanency of its values is reflected in its steady growth, and the fact that only a few choice lots remain to be sold is an indication that the opportunity to buy at today's low price is vanishing.

AMES PLACE is admirably located in the Washington University neighborhood, far enough away from the busy whirl of the city to insure quiet and rest, yet close enough for convenient and easy access to even the remotest downtown section.

Our representative's office on the grounds is at University Drive and Pennsylvania avenue. Take the University car.

BUSINESS FOR SALE

BIG legitimate earnings for few wide-awake salesmen. There are hundreds of splendid, aggressive salesmen in St. Louis making less than $200 a month. These same men could make $100 to $200 a week if they were in the right business. The modern subdivision business offers this opportunity. It is a wonderful field for advancement, a permanent money-making business—a business that will get better each month because St. Louis will grow faster than any of the big American cities. See us. Talk to our salesmen who are making $100 and more each week. Investigate; really learn what you can make. Don't be tied down by tradition; don't stay in a rut: If you are going to get ahead you must earn big money, and to earn big money you must be in the right business. You know salesmen having far less ability than you who are making two, three and four times as much as you are making. Why? They are in the right business. Ask for the sales manager or see Mr. Davis. The Davis Realty Development Co., 2d floor, opposite elevators, 816 Olive. (c68)

AUDITOR HACKMANN CRITICISED BY RIVAL

W. W. Phillips Against Assessing Property at Actual Cash Value.

William W. Phillips of 4283 Olive street, a candidate for the Republican nomination for State Auditor, has issued a circular attacking Auditor Hackmann for voting as a member of the State Board of Equalization for the assessment of property at actual cash value, as he is required under his oath of office to do.

Phillips states in his circular: "I will as a member of the State Board of Equalization vote against full valuation."

Section 11411 of the Missouri Statutes, prescribing the duties of members of the Board of Equalization, includes this provision:

"Members (of the Board of Equalization) shall each take an oath or affirmation that he will, to the best of his knowledge and ability, equalize the valuation of real and personal property among the several counties in the State, according to the rules prescribed by this chapter for equalizing and valuing real property."

Section 11412 provides:

"The board shall proceed to equalize the valuation of each class thereof among the respective counties of the State in the following mannner:

"First—It shall add to the valuation of each class of the property real and personal, of each county which it believes to be valued below its real value in money such per centum as will increase the same in each case to its true value.

"Second—It shall deduct from the valuation of each class of the property, real or personal, of each county which it believes to be valued above its real value in money such per centum as will reduce the same in each case to its true value."

MAN THROWS BRICKS THROUGH WINDOWS OF RELATIVES' STORE

Dispensary Physicians Find Alcoholism Clew in Raisin Odor on M. G. Adams' Breath.

Mason G. Adams, 33 years old, of 5041 Ridge avenue, an automobile mechanic, at 6:45 o'clock last night threw four bricks through as many plate-glass windows in the store of the S. G. Adams Stamp and Stationery Co., 412 North Sixth street, doing damage estimated at about $500.

Adams then ran across the street to the Columbia Theater, where he was caught by patrolmen as he was purchasing a ticket of admission. He was taken to the Central Police Station, wheer the desk Sergeant detected the odor of raisins on his breath. Physicians at the Central Dispensary said that he was suffering from acute alcoholism, and ordered his removal to the city hospital.

When asked by the police for an explanation of his conduct, Adams said he was having a little fun. Later he said that members of the Adams firm had not treated his father right. He is a son of the late R. M. Adams, formerly an officer of the company. His mother, who resides at 3965 West Pine boulevard, said there was no ground for the statement he made regarding his father. She attributed his action to eccentricity.

STREET WIDENING TO BEGIN

The work of rebuilding the curbing on Locust street between Fourteenth street and Jefferson avenue for the widening of that thoroughfare will be begun Monday morning.

The street will be closed a block at a time to permit a concrete mixing machine to operate and traffic will be directed around the block that is closed. No parking will be permitted on the street as long as the paving is being torn up near the curb. The street will be opened its entire length at night when no work is being done, however.

The work will start at Fourteenth street and will take about 10 days to complete.

AUTOMOBILE SMASHES WINDOW

Driver Run Over When Machine Starts Off at Cranking.

An automobile owned by Jacob Sanders, 36, of Clayton, started off by itself last evening at Sixth street and Washington avenue, when he cranked it, and broke a glass window at the Remoh Jewelry Co., 602 Washington avenue, valued at $150.

Sanders was cut on the legs and body by the machine, which ran over him. He was treated at the city dispensary and went home after giving bond on a technical charge of careless driving.

In loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather, Christopher H. Heins, who departed this life July 26, 1919:

We have lost our dear father,
He has bid us all adieu;
He has gone to live in heaven,
And his form is lost to view.
O, that dear one, how we loved him,
O, how hard to give him up;
But an angel came down for him
And removed him from our sight.
The God who gave has taken,
And heaven our parent has won,
And although our hearts are sad,
The will of God is done.
Heaven now retains our treasure
Earth the barren casket keeps;
Lonely hearts will always linger
Where our own dear father sleeps.

Sadly missed by those who love him.
LOUISA HEINS, WIFE; DOROTHY LANIGAN (NEE HEINS), AND THEO. HEINS, AND FAMILY.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

As we have no information bureau, it is impossible to answer queries by mail or telephone. Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

WIFE.—Apply to the Navy Department, Washington, D. C., for information concerning the deserter.

I. SHIELDS.—George Sisler was a volunteer in the gas and flame service of the U. S. Army, holding the rank of a First Lieutenant.

E. HAYES.—The Society of Mayflower Descendants, 44 East 23d street, New York City, N. Y., traces the descendants of the original Pilgrims.

G. FOLDER.—Fuller's earth is found in England, and we know of no deposit of it in St. Louis County. We know of no way of preserving bananas.

H. F. HAYS.—There are four bridges across the Mississippi River at St. Louis. They are: Free Bridge, Eads Bridge, McKinley Bridge and the Merchants Bridge.

FISH.—Fishing lines are supposed to be properly treated in their manufacture, but if you wish to further waterproof them you can, no doubt, get a preparation at some sporting goods store.

S. D.—It is about 200 miles by rail from Cleveland to Buffalo. The excursion boats run on Lake Erie till toward the end of September, but general shipping continues till the official close of navigation some time in November. It is about a 12-hour trip by water between the two cities. The fare is $6.75.

MRS. A. STOLL.—The late Lieutenant-Governer Charles P. Johnson's military service in the Civil War was for a period of three months. He was a Lieutenant in the Third Missouri Regiment of Union troops in 1861, and he helped to organize and recruit the Eighth Missouri, which he was deputized to tender to the President. He went to Washington and made the tender to President Lincoln in person, and on his return was elected Major of the regiment, but declined this position, feeling that his military knowledge was not sufficient to qualify him.

P. W.—There is an excellent preparation on the market for washing silk shirts and delicate fabrics. The following method, however, will not change delicate tints: First wash the article in warm water. Prepare a light bran infusion, which is to be decanted, and, after resting for a time, passed over the fabric. It is then rinsed in this water, almost cold, and dried. An excellent cement for joining broken crockery can be made by melting 4 or 5 parts of rosin (or, better still, gum mastic) with 1 part of beeswax, in an iron spoon or similar vessel. Apply while hot. It will not stand great heat.

UNDECIDED.—In curing ham the idea is to cure the meat so it will keep in hot weather, with the use of as little salt as possible. Pickle made in the following manner, it is believed, will accomplish this: Salt (coarse or alum salt is best), 1¾ pound; saltpeter, ½ ounce; molasses, 1 pint, or brown sugar, 1 pound; saleratus, 1 teaspoonful. Let these be added to 1 gallon water, and the amount increased in the same proportions to make the quantity required. Bring the liquor to a boil, taking care to skim it just before it begins to boil. Let the pickle cool, and pour it over the meat until it is entirely covered. The meat should be packed in clear, tight casks, and should remain in the pickle six or seven weeks, when it will be fit to smoke. Green hickory wood is the best article for this purpose. To smoke ham at home, take an old hogshead, stop all the crevices, and fix a place to put a cross-stick near the bottom, to hang the ham on. Next cut a hole in the side, near the top, to introduce an iron pan filled with sawdust and small pieces of green wood. Having turned the tub upside down, hang the ham upon the cross-stick, introduce the iron pan in the opening, place a piece of red-hot iron in the pan, cover it with sawdust, and all will be completed. Let a large ham remain for 40 hours, and keep up a good smoke. Another way, using pyroligenous acid is as follows: Take the meat out of the pickle and dry; with a sponge or brush wash all over with crude pyroligenous acid; hang up in a cool place, repeat the application at intervals of a few days, until three coats have been applied. Another method is by the use of liquid smoke; rectified spirits of tar, 2 ounces; alcohol, 4 ounces; mix, and add crude pyroligenous acid, 20 ounces. Shake well, and filter through a filter wetted with the acid. Let the meat dry well after salting, then apply the liquid smoke with a brush to one side of the meat; let it dry a few hours, and then apply to the other side; after drying for a few hours, hang up for several days. Then repeat the process, and in another week the meat is ready to be eaten. One quart of liquid smoke is enough for 250 to 300 pounds of meat.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(Prepared by a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

HARRY WINTER.—She should use her married name in signing the marriage license, but if she uses her maiden name it will still be legal.

MARY.—You are still the man's wife. The other woman could not become his common-law wife, since he was married at the time he lived with her.

H. H. W.—The letters from your wife, with character witnesses, will be sufficient to prove your own good character and conduct. If you get the divorce you can marry again as soon as you like.

K 32.—(1) The legality of the marriage is doubtful. (2) We cannot say whether you can get more than $10 a week for your support. (3) Under the circumstances the child will be legitimate. (4) Unless you want a divorce and alimony, you cannot get a lump sum.

ALTON READER.—If the husband has deserted his wife this must continue for one year before she can sue for a divorce. It depends upon the court as to how long it will be before the divorce is granted. The wife must sue in the state in which she has lived a year. If the wife gets a divorce for the husband's fault she can marry again as soon as the laws of the state permit.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

(Answers prepared by a physician of authority. Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given. Questions that cannot be publicly discussed, if showing evidences of sincerity, will be answered when accompanied by stamped envelope.)

WORRIED.—If your ankles are getting fat, and suddenly so, it is likely not fat at all, but a swelling. Be examined particularly as to your heart and kidneys.

A TOURIST.—Bleeding piles or piles in bad condition need operation. In order to keep the teeth in good condition, use almost any of the tooth pastes on the market.

A READER.—"Sore eyes" is an indefinite term. The description you give is suspicious of trachoma, a most serious affection of the eye. Do not delay consulting an oculist.

A SUFFERER.—Bunions are acquired and not inherited. They are the result of poor fitting shoes. They sometimes require surgical interference, but first try protective measures. Should operation be found necessary, do not let anyone but a first-class surgeon perform the operation.

S. W. PRATT.—A boy 5 feet 3 inches in height should weigh 127 pounds. You are, therefore, about 17 pounds light. The height of individuals varies; some are tall, some short, but weight should correspond with height. Eat sugars, fats and starchy foods. Do not exercise much and get plenty of sleep. Retire early and sleep as late as you can; if possible get at least 10 hours of sleep.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving remembrance of our dear mother, grandmother and mother-in-law, Mimma Reincke, who departed this life July 27, 1919:

No more her kind and Loving face shall light
The gloom of our home;
Yet sweet the thought that
We shall meet when
We shall cease to roam.

Sadly missed by HER CHILDREN.

In loving memory of my darling husband, Ralph E. Klute, who was suddenly called to his heavenly home one year ago, July 29, 1919.

Surrounded by friends, I am lonesome;
In the midst of pleasure I am blue.
A smile on my face, still a heartache,
Aching and longing for you.

Sadly missed by wife and all who loved him. MRS. RALPH E. KLUTE.

In memory of Elizabeth Beckerle (nee Schellert), who died a year ago, July 22, 1919:

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled
Which never can be filled.
A loving sister, true and kind,
No friend like her on earth we'll find.
God called her home it was his will,
But in our hearts she lingers still.
May God grant her eternal rest.

SISTER ANNA MOHR, 1418 Burd av.

In memory of our darling boy, Herbert Armstrong, who was taken from us, July 20, 1919:

Our great sorrow came to us one year ago today. Why hast thou done this, Lord; Yes, why? We are at a loss to see to know. We do not understand, since one long year has passed away. But this we know in this we rest, T'was God who called and he knows best. A little life so full of sweetness and of love has found reward with God, above.
Missed by MAMA, DAD AND LITTLE BROTHER EARL, and all who loved him.

In loving remembrance of our dearly beloved husband and father, Wm. B. Smith, who departed from us July 25, 1919:

Surrounded by friends we are lonesome,
In the midst of pleasuers we are blue.
Smiles on our face still a heartache
Aching and longing for you.

There are griefs that cannot find comfort and wounds that cannot be healed. There are sorrows so deep in the human heart that cannot be had revealed. Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In loving memory of Anthony Mueller, who departed this life a year ago, July 23, 1919:

One year has passed away,
Sad and sudden was the call.
Loving Anthony, true and kind,
No friend on earth like him we'll find.
We could not realize when the message said
That he was low, but found him dead.
Do not ask us if we miss him—
O, there's such a vacant place.
Oft we think we hear his footsteps
Or see his smiling face.
By all of us he did his best.
May God grant him eternal rest.

Sadly missed by
WIFE, MOTHER, FATHER, SISTER, BROTHER, AUNTS AND UNCLES and all who loved him.

When seeking a position you should carefully consider the kind of work that will be required of you, your associates, working conditions, the possibilities of the future as to salary and advancement and the general atmosphere of the place in which you are to be employed. Operating Central Office Telephone Switchboards is a pleasant work, easy to learn, supervised by capable and considerate persons, and so many other features more attractive than many other kinds of work, that every young lady, either seeking a position or anticipating a change from her present employment, should talk this over with someone who is well informed on the subject before accepting a position in any other line of work. Our offices are located very convenient to all parts of the city, and we will be pleased to have you call at any of the places mentioned below and talk over this interesting work. Experience is not necessary. A liberal salary is paid from the day you enter the training school and increases are given frequently for length of service and ability. You may call any week day between 8:30 a. m. and 5:30 p. m., or, if employed at present, telephone Delmar 578 and make an appointment for a more convenient time. Kansas City Gets Only Da Vinci in United States

THANKS to the generosity of a Frenchwoman who married an American aviator, the Kansas City Art Museum has been enabled to add to its exhibits a painting generally credited to Leonardo da Vinci, creator of "Mona Lisa" and "The Last Supper." It is valued at 3,000,000 francs.

The painting is supposed to be a portrait of Lucrezia Crivelli, mistress of Lodovico de' Medici, ruler of Milan. The title is "La Belle Feronniere," or "The Beautiful Iron-Worker." This is the first Da Vinci painting to cross the Atlantic. The donor is Mrs. Harry J. Kahn, now a resident of Junction City, Kan. She is the daughter of Capt. Lardoux, who was chief of aerial defense at Paris during the war. The art treasure was the property of his family for several generations, and was kept on exhibition at the Louvre.

night life in Rangoon (Burma)

Night life in Rangoon (Burma).

DEAR READERS:

We sailed from Penang on the British India ship, Ekma, a top-heavy tub full of bum food, white ants and cockroaches. These cockroaches are the biggest I ever saw. Two or three of them would get together and shove your suitcase 'round the compartment, and they would crawl inside a shirt and carry it right up the wall; and the while a procession of white ants would be parading around, seeking silk shirts, socks and expensive neckties to devour.

And hot! Oh, boy! Hot and sticky. The sea lay smooth, and oily and flat, as though the sun had pressed it down by sheer weight of heat rays. But the color made up for it. Sunrise and sunset, day after day, held all the crude color of a new palette—the most wonderful combinations. And at night we plowed up a phosphorescent wake of bright glowing emerald, so bright that one could read by it.

Up forward we scared hundreds of flying fish, that fled with glittering trails of watery sparks, like green rockets.

The first day in Rangoon we met a chap who was a Persian importer and who showed us about the Shwe Dagon. The Shwe Dagon is the most famous pagoda in all India. It has relics of four different Buddhas, and is much venerated. We wandered up there very late one starry night.

The entrance was guarded by two stone lions 20 feet in height, and led into a long, mysterious passage, straight up, with an occasional dim light showing the way.

Up long flights of stairs, with beggars and lepers and flower venders, and lots of small booths. The stone was all carved into likenesses of mythical animals, and was rotting with age and misuse. It was a scary place, and we didn't do much talking.

At last, after what seemed miles and miles of stairs, we came out onto the great marble platform which holds the pagoda, and were in the presence of the twelfth century.

We stood on a curving walk of marble, a block wide, and almost a mile around. All about us were innumerable shrines, and small pagodas crowded together, and stretched along the marble way until lost in the dusky distance.

Queer guardian spirits carved in stone and brass grinned down at us, and huge stone elephants, and thousands and thousands of Buddhas squatting in their shrines, the flaring candles lighting up their calm features, and glittering on jewels and polished brass and marble.

Palm trees wavered up and were lost in the black sky; and towering above it all stood the great Shwe Dagon, 300 feet of graceful spire, and solid gold leaf, a temple beyond price, for Burmese Kings have lavished their fortunes on it since eleven hundred and something. We walked silently around, passing a yellow-robed monk or a belated worshiper—sniffed at by mangy dogs. Between us and the temple pagoda stood a maze of tombs and shrines, elephants and angels, and we decided to see what lay beyond. No one was about, so we tiptoed in past the first elephant.

In an instant the place was in an uproar! Priests, watchers, beggars, were all about us, yelling, swinging their arms and crowding us toward the walk. I expected to feel a knife in my ribs at any moment.

We tried hard to appear nonchalant, and finally when a priest had quelled the tumult we asked what it was all about. He led us quickly to the long exit and told us to go. It seems we had gone into a sacred spot with our heathen shoes on, and profaned a holy of holies. We got. That leper-infested staircase seemed to descend for miles, but we finally emerged into pure air and starlight.

We sailed down to Singapore, the busiest port in Asia. We spent all of our first day here traveling from one hotel to another. We ran into an acquaintance who knew a man who knew the manager of the Raffles, and by 8 p. m. we were installed in a fine room right across from the harbor.

It was hot here, but a breeze always blows, and in the afternoon it comes on to rain. It pours and settles the dust and clears the air, and by evening the atmosphere is just right.

They have an opera company in Singapore—all Malay—who produce Shakspeare. We saw "Othello" the other night in a big tent, with Elizabethan scenery. The dialogue was Malay. Othello wore a full-dress shirt with frilled edges, silk stockings and Venus garters. Desdemona had on a lady's lounging robe. Iago had a General's uniform with epaulets, and pompons on his slippers. It was a scream.

The rains have stopped and it is as hot as blazes. I've picked up some queer Chinese paintings, on linen or something. Very decorative. We had a juggler call on us in our room the other day, and do a lot of sleight-of-hand stuff. He had a mongoose with him, which animal looks like a nice kind of rat, and he also had a basket full of snakes, which he calmly let loose on the floor. George and I were interested, I'll say that, but we didn't crave the performance. There is a fortune teller scheduled for tomorrow. This p. m. we are going to ramble over a rubber plantation.

We leave for Saigon day after tomorrow, and then Hongkong and home.

Yours slightly different,

HERB.

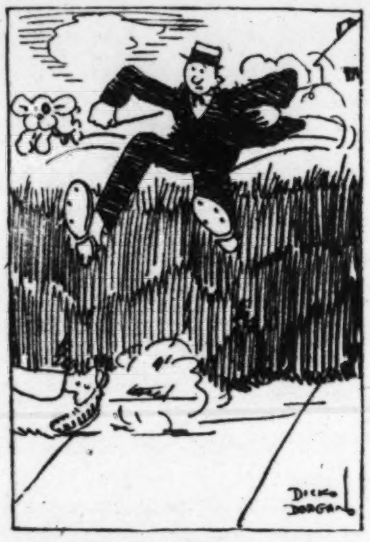
OUR OWN UPSETTING EXERCISES

By RING W. LARDNER.

TO THE EDITOR:

F. M. A. has just wrote into me again saying that he has got a sedentary position as a floor walker and he wants to know a few upsetting exercises that will keep him in shape as he can't afford to belong to no golf clubs and etc. Between you and I, F. M. A. is beginning to be somewhats of a pest with his letters but I am here to serve the public of which he must be one the way he writes, so I want to say to this bird that I have got a whole lot similar position to him as I do literary work for a liveing and always lay down wile I write my stuff and here is a few rules to go by which keeps me in the present condition I am than which there couldn't be no nearer perfection.



"Hurdle the hedge and run for the subway.

1. First thing you do when you get up at noon is try and get out of bed without help. Then run around the bed from left to right till you find where you laid the cigarettes. Then run around the bed from right to left and unwrangle yourself till you find where your left arm matches at. Lift a cigarette into your mouth with your left arm slightly crooked at the elbow. Then scratch a match with the left arm silent and the right arm stiff, and lift the match to the cigarette with both arms akimbo.

2. Run from left to right to wherever the shaveing materials is at and shave, useing both arms with a free motion and breathing heavily. Use the lather freely with both arms on the brush bent slightly at the elbow and takeing long breaths.

3. Remove the pajamas with both arms and put on the intimate garments with the same, useing both neutrally. Breathe.

4. Wear button shoes and put them on first. Set down whilst putting on the shoes and stop between every two buttons and set up and lean over again for the next button and keep breathing from left to right.

5. Try and get the stockings on over the shoes. This is one of the most intensive of the upsetting exercises. When accomplished, try and get the garters on which is the nearest approach to a Whitley exerciser we have had in yrs., but twice as intense if the elastic is the kind you can place any confidence in. But don't pull them too hard, and keep breathing all the while.

6. Put on your other suit and come down to breakfast and ask your stepwife what she looks so grouchy about. Four rounds of sparring.

7. On acct, of the shoe exercise, they's no more use of you leaning over to eat the oatmeal so try and get it up to the lips with some implement like a spoon or a niblick.

8. Wait till just before train time and if you live on a upper story jump out and hurdle the hedge and run for the subway and grab a strap and keep chinning yourself from left to right.

9. Either stand up or lay down the rest of the day and that is my best advice to you and please don't waste no more time or sedentary energy writeing to me for advice.

GETTING A GOOD NIGHT'S SLEEP

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE.

WHEN Mr. William Butler Yeats wrote that poem about wanting to arise and go to the Innersley or some such village and grow nine rows of beans in the bee loud glade, I know what was the matter with him. He had just been to a national convention.

I have been to a national convention, too, and if I can find a bee loud glade, sufficiently remote from Writers, and amateur quartettes, I'm going there on the first train.

The unique thing about a national convention is when attending one you get plenty of a number of politicians, newspaper boys and Distinguished things of which you are fond.

I, for example, am fond of music. I have had enough music.

I am also fond of society. I have had an bundance of society.

I like conversation, and I am fed up on conversation. Bar the one matter of sleep, I have had about enough of everything. One crowded week of human experience has left me rather dull to the excitements the world has to offer. And it wasn't a particularly stirring convention at that.

Thursday night I sought my couch and composed myself to slumber. I was just sinking into a pleasant lethargy when four of my friends, followed by eight of their friends, came into the room, and lining up like circus horses at the foot of my bed began to sing.

They sang "Tammany," "The Long, Long Trail," "Sweet Rosy O'Grady," "I'll Be Your Once in a While," and were about to sing "Over There," when I begged them not to tax their voices any further.

They insisted that it was all right; that they loved to sing; and particularly to sing to me.

When I replied that I couldn't think of keeping them up any longer, they became offended, and intimated that I was criticising their music.

That led to a quarrel among them about who was to blame for a number of sour notes which they thought must have aroused my displeasure.

One hard word led to another, and it began to look squally for all concerned, when somebody remembered that Irvin Cobb was on the same floor, so they all went in to sing to him.

I arose, carefully locked the door and returned to bed again, as I supposed, to resume my slumber.

There was a knock at the door. I pretended my best that I was out, but it wasn't any good. The knock got stronger and stronger.

Opening the door I found a friend who said that inasmuch as he had nothing else to do he thought he would drop in, call up a few friends and spend a few hours in a quiet game of poker.

I don't object to poker on moral grounds, but 3 o'clock in the morning is not the hour I prefer to begin a game. I explained this to him as kindly as I could, but his feelings were hurt. He went away with bitter words on his lips.

Again I sought worn nature's soft restorer, but it wasn't any use.

A voice over the telephone, which I answered after it had rung just 20 minutes, besought me to come downstairs and go for an automobile ride.

"We'll go out to the Cliff House and see the seals and watch the sun set," said the voice, seductively.

I was foolish enough to object on the ground that the sun didn't set at 4 o'clock in the morning.

"All right, if you want to be fussy," said the voice. "We'll see it rise. See it rise right out of the west. Very unusual sight. Only seen in San Francisco and vicinity."

I didn't go, but rather wish I had.

At 6 o'clock the gentlemen who occasionally occupy the next room, three in number, came home and canvassed the convention situation in voices that penetrated a two-inch door like an armor-piercing shell.

They nominated Cox, Palmer and D. Davis, passed a platform, and were beginning to ballot for Vice President when I gave it up, took a cold bath as a substitute for a night's sleep and went down to breakfast.

Conventions are fine, interesting situations, but, if they occurred oftener than once in four years, those whose business it is to attend them wouldn't be able to get any life or insanity insurance.

WHOM DO YOU ADMIRE MOST?

DR. A. A. BRILL of New York, the famous alienist, has for 10 years been in the habit of asking his patients at the first interview: "What personage from history or legend do you admire most, or whom would you consider your ideal?" He has collected answers also from friends, acquaintances, college students and school children, and he gives in the Medical Record an interesting resume of the answers:

"In putting the question," he writes, "I assumed that the person we admire most, who is our ideal, expresses in his life our conscious and unconscious strivings. That is to say, we admire this personage so much because we would wish to be like him and are always endeavoring to emulate his mode of reaction to the world.

"It will perhaps be surprising to hear that over 90 per cent of my male answers confined themselves to only five historical persons. Of 586 male adults, 396 answered "Napoleon," 101 answered Lincoln," 38 answered "Caeasar," 26 answered "Washington," 16 answered "Frederick the Great," and the rest, 9, had various other ideals. Perhaps the most significant part is that over 70 per cent had Napoleon as their ideal, and that of the 586 men only two answered "Jesus." And, considering that 80 of the 586 gave Caesar, Washington and Frederick the Great as the persons whom they admired most, and that Lincoln, who among American-born men stood next to Napoleon, although not a soldier, was not a weakling in any sense, one can readily see what the average intelligent person's ideals are. He evidently admires most a man of action who can put in operation those impulses which he himself would wish to live through but dares not or cannot do so.

"This also demonstrates that we are not as ideal in our unconscious strivings as some make us believe, that the good book is correct in asserting, 'For the imagination of the human heart is evil from the beginning.' Only two Christians out of over 60 per cent of Christians took Jesus as their ideal. One was a physician who had given up the practice of medicine and lived on a ranch, and the other was a literary gentleman who lived on his income. These answers also explain why things primitive fascinate us, why plays dealing with crime are popular and why most of the news items in our daily press are not exactly about the cardinal virtues in men.

"I asked a teacher to explain to the children the meaning of a hero and give them examples. A few days later every boy was asked who was the greatest hero and the answer was invariably, 'Father.'

Cross-Bearings

aware that he had no authority whatever to place her under arrest, and that to do so might result in no more than to get himself and Berdou into a broth of trouble. He had been told that Zarina undoubtedly enjoyed high official protection in some quarter, and Durfee knew quite well what this entailed. He was ignorant of Kalounek's fate, and although convinced in his own mind that Zarina had gone down to the shore to signal and had been cut off from retreat by the tide, he had no actual proof of this. The singer's papers were perfectly en regle, she was well known all along the coast as a popular concert-hall artiste, and artistes were proverbially eccentric in their habits. If she were to stick to her story that she had gone down to the beach in the early morning to bathe before anybody was about and been caught by the tide, he could prove nothing to the contrary. The mere fact of her having been so trapped would appear to argue an ignorance of the shore and its dangers. His charge might easily lay him open to a big counter suit for defamation of character, and Durfee had lived enough in France to be quite aware of the wide scope of the French libel law. And it would probably mean the ruin of poor Berdou.

Taking the situation full and by, it seemed to Durfee that but one course lay open by which he might hope to suppress the girl's dangerous espionage, and that this was to bluff her into thinking that her fate lay absolutely in his hands and to frighten her into leaving the country and remaining in exile until the end of the war, and knowing as much as he did of her character, he realized that to accomplish this he must give her a desperate scare. He must manage it quickly, also, as the pilot might return at any moment and spoil everything. So he set down his empty cup and said gravely:

"And now, mademoiselle, it is my painful duty to ask you to dress as quickly as possible and go with me to the police station at St. Sauveur. Of course, you must appreciate the gravity of your position. You are a suspected German agent who has been for some time under surveillance and now you have been taken in flagrante delicto. You are, of course, well aware that penalty for your offense is a capital one in time of war, and that even with the utmost clemency of a military tribunal, you cannot possibly hope to escape with less than a life sentence of imprisonment."

Zarina looked at his set, rigid face and suppressed a shudder. She saw in him a sort of American Javert, merciless, inflexible, adamantine. She appreciated the utter futility of tears or argument directed at this American jaw trap. She already possessed an wholesome awe of the American military police, having frequently observed their peremptory methods in the coast towns. And yet it seemed outrageous that this man who had so frequently been her indulgent host and whom she had so contemptuously assayed as a fatuous, good-humored individual should now be sending her to face a firing squad or lifelong incarceration. She felt that she was fighting for her life and kept her wits about her.

"Monsieur," said she, leaning forward, with a very white face and blue eyes which at the moment were nearly black, "I know that appearances are very strongly against me, but I assure you that you have made a mistake. I have been suffering from nervous fatigue and insomnia. Waking early this morning and being unable to sleep, I got up and dressed and went for a walk, and then, being a good swimmer and enjoying the exercise, I thought a sea bath might relax the high tension of my nerves. I had not counted on the tide."

"Rather a chilly morning for a swim, was it not?" said Durfee.

"I never feel the cold. Now, let me tell you something else which may convince you that I am no spy. A fortnight ago I spent a few days on the Quiberon Peninsula and while there I went out one morning to watch the sunrise, just as I did today. While walking on the shore I saw lights being flashed from a point some distance away. It was then still dark. I was so sure that somebody was signaling to an enemy submarine that I immediately wrote to the commandant of the French patrol fleet telling of my suspicions, and the next day he sent the American mine sweepers to drag the place. They destroyed several mines, as I saw the explosions from the beach. I did not sign my communication, but if you will give me pen and paper I can write you the message word for word and in the same hand, when the commandant may verify it."

Durfee managed to conceal the astonishment caused by this unexpected information. He looked keenly at the girl's face and was convinced that she was telling the truth. So he nodded and said:

"Yes, we know all about that. Your object was, of course, to have a shield in case of just such an accident as this. I am afraid, mademoiselle, that it will not avail you. Such actions are a part of the German espionage system. They are by no means unusual. German agents have been known to denounce other and less important agents. They have even led successful attacks against German troops. In fact, this only goes to prove that your operations must have been on a very large scale. But you can tell all of that to the courtmartial. Just now I must ask you to dress and come with me. Here are your clothes."

He went out of the little cabin, closing the hatch behind him. It was now plainly evident that the girl was mortally afraid, and Durfee was convinced that if only he could get her away before being interrupted by the pilot, his monumental bluff would succeed. He was studying the shore through his glasses and wondering what had become of Berdou when the hatch was slid back and Zarina came out. Durfee observed with satisfaction that her face was very white and there were dark shadows under her eyes.

"I am ready, monsieur," said she.

Durfee hauled the boat alongside, put her aboard, then took the oars and started to pull up against the tide for the head of the bay. Neither of them spoke, and under Durfee's strong strokes they soon rounded the little promontory and grounded on the stretch of beach. There was nobody about and Durfee carried the grapnel above high-water mark and made it fast when they started to walk across the moor. They were about halfway to the village when Zarina paused.

"Pardon, monsieur, but I feel a little faint," said she. "Do you mind if I rest for a moment?"

"As long as you like," Durfee answered. "There is no hurry."

Zarina sank down on a flat stone. Durfee seated himself beside her and lighted a cigarette. Zarina leaned forward and covered her face with her hands. Durfee could see that she was struggling hard, fighting with all her strength to keep from breaking down. He threw away his cigarette and laid his hand gently on her shoulder.

"There is one way, mademoiselle," said he, "by which you may still be able to save yourself."

Zarina turned slowly, dropped her hands to her sides and stared at him with a gleam in her blue eyes. She had been waiting for something of this sort.

"And how is that, monsieur?" she murmured.

"First, tell me," said Durfee, "have you any hatred for France or the allies?"

"No, monsieur—nor any love, for that matter."

"And how about Germany?"

"It is just the same," Zarina answered. "Although I happened to be born in France, I am actually Spanish and my feelings are purely neutral. I do not care who wins the war."

"Then you have been serving Germany purely and solely for money?" asked Durfee.

"Pardon, monsieur," said Zarina, "but I have not been serving anybody. I have had nothing whatever to do with the war."

Durfee shrugged, "What is the use of telling me that when I know better?" he asked. "It is not going to help you to be obstinate. Now, listen. If you will make a full confession to the military authorities of all that you have done and all that you know, with information which may lead to breaking up the enemy spy system here on the coast"——

"Monsieur," Zarina interrupted, "you are wasting your breath. I tell you that I am not a spy. But even if I were, I would far sooner die or spend the rest of my life in prison at hard labor than become a double traitor." She gave him a steady look from her clear blue eyes. "You are mistaken in me," said she. "I am not a traitor at all—and, far more than that, I am not a coward. I wish you to know, monsieur, that on the side of my father, my blood is the best that flows in Spain."

Durfee nodded. "In that case," said he, "there seems nothing to do but let the martial law take its course. It is very painful to me to do this, but I do not see how it can be helped."

Zarina stared at him eagerly. She thought she detected a shade of softening in his voice and felt her strong will slipping from her control. She leaned toward him and her hand gripped the back of his. The rich color rushed into her face.

"Then give me a chance," she pleaded. "Be merciful. Let me go—as you did Arsene Ducros. I will leave the country. I will go to Spain and stay there until the war is over. I will do anything you say—only let me go. Let me go"—— She choked back a strangled sob. "Oh, let me go, monsieur," she panted.

Durfee stood up suddenly, then looked down at her, crouching at his feet. "Very well," said he curtly. "I shall let you go. Now, listen to me. You will proceed immediately to get your passport vised for Spain and as soon as this may be managed you wil leave France, not to return until after the war. Unti you go you will be under surveillance, and if you linge beyond the required time you will be placed und arrest. You will likewise be arrested if you attemp to set foot in France before peace is declared. Do you understand?"

Zarina nodded. Depth of emotion stifled her speech. And it was not entirely the emotion of relief. As she saw it, the Amerfcan, through pure compassion, was making a tremendous personal sacrifice. Her intimate knowledge of the game told her that it would be no small feather in the cap of an intelligence officer to capture redhanded as important an enemy agent as herself. Wherefore, to her reasoning, Durfee was not only acting according to his duty in suppressing an inimical factor, but with merciful greatness of heart in sacrificing all personal credit for it.

She saw him suddenly in a new and wonderful light, and reaching for his hand she drew it to her lips and covered it with tears and kisses. So much for Yankee bluff.

The pilot Berdou, his stern soul filled with grim satisfaction for what he had accomplished, was halfway back to where Durfee had landed him before it occurred to his mind that possibly his business was but half done.

One bearing, he reflected, would not be of much use to a ship for determining her precise position, which was the prime essential in the laying of mines. Therefore, it was probable that another was being flashed from some point along the shore. If this had been south of Kalounek's position, they would have seen it from the boat. Since they had not, it must be to the northward, possibly on the extreme northern end of the island. But wherever located, it would not be visible from the land, so Berdou decided that his best plan would be to occupy some position which commanded an extended view of the moor and there wait in the hope of detecting the spy's return at dawn.

The place par excellence for this was the ruin of the old chateau, or fortress, located at about the middle of the island, so he made his way thither and clambering to the top of one of the crumbling towers, waited for the day to break. It was this which had caused his delay, with the result that he was in total ignorance of Zarina's early visit to the ketch. Nor did the pilot discover her and Durfee on the moor, as the two were hid by a deep swale.

So, when the sun had been up some little time with no sign of life on the moor except a few wild-eyed cattle, Berdou came down from his perch and started back aboard. Then as the ketch came in sight over the rim of the cliffs and he saw that the dinghy was not astern, Berdou concluded that he must have gone ashore at the head of the cove, and continued his way.

As the pilot turned a knob of rock and strode down to the beach he saw Durfee sitting on the edge of the boat placidly smoking a cigerette. He looked around at the pilot's approach.

"Hello," said he, "anything to report?"

"No, monsieur," Berdou answered, "there is nothing to report. And you?"

Durfee grinned. "I saw a pretty girl in swimming," said he, "but she got away."

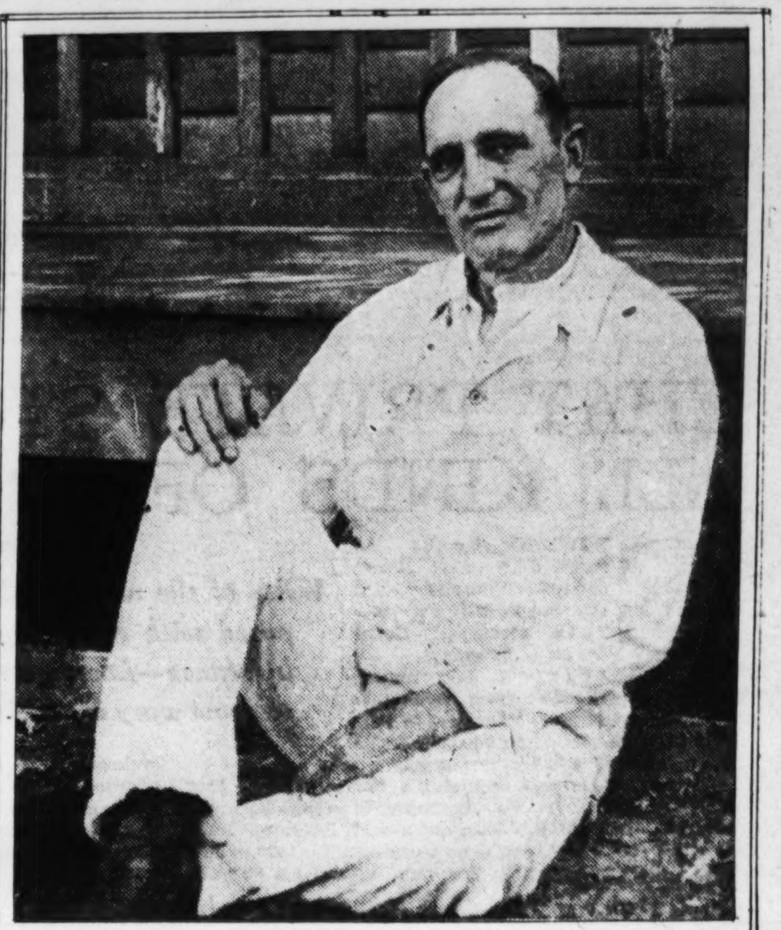
La-may Face Powder is Guaranteed Pure and Harmless.

Pure face powder cannot injure the most delicate baby skin. The trouble is, too many powders are made in the old-fashioned way, with rice powder. Rice powder is starchy, and, like bread flour, it is quickly turned into a gluey paste by the moisture of the skin. This paste clogs the cuticle, swells in the pores, causing enlarged pores, blackheads and pimples. A specialist makes a harmless powder by using an ingredient doctors prescribe to heal the skin. Every time you apply this improved powder you give your complexion a real beauty treatment. There is a thousand-dollar guarantee of purity printed on the box, certifying it does not contain white lead, rice powder or any harmful substance. This guaranteed pure powder is called La-may (French, Poudre L'Ame). Because it is pure and harmless La-may is now used by over a million American women; it is now the most popular complexion powder sold in New York. Women who have used even the most expensive face powders say they can not buy a better powder than La-may anywhere at any price. There is also a La-may Talcum that prevents the souring of perspiration.

Meet Mr. Cox of St. Louis, Candidate for President

Standard bearer of Socialist-Labor ticket has same name as Ohio's Governor — Born over in Illinois and has been farmer, miner, hod-carrier and now paperhanger — Explains party's program and what it would like to accomplish



Mr. Cox, outside his St. Louis home, in favorite attitude learned in coal-mining days.

NOT all of the Presidential candidates live either in Ohio or in the penitentiary. There is a man in St. Louis who has received the nomination of a party organized more than 30 years ago. He is proud of the honor, and will make an energetic campaign, although he says frankly that he hasn't a chance of being elected.

This man is William W. Cox, paperhanger and former coal miner, of 425 Bates street, who was chosen to head the ticket of the Socialist-Labor party at the convention held in New York City from May 5 to 11 inclusive.

This party has for its avowed object the substitution of an industrial form of government for the existing political form, but denies very emphatically that it is the party of "American Bolshevism." The plan is to use only constitutional methods in bringing about the change, say members.

Cox, who had the nomination for Vice President on the same party's ticket in 1904, is a man of more than medium height, strongly built, with steady blue eyes, a firm chin and scanty hair, inclined to be red. His manner is agreeable. He speaks easily and well, though occasionally mispronouncing a word.

Despite the handicap of the "capitalistic" system which the Socialist-Labor party would abolish, Cox has managed to raise a family of six children, and he did it by the sweat of his brow. He has been a farm laborer, a brickyard workman, a coal miner and a paperhanger. Only a year ago he laid aside his workman's garb to serve as an organizer for the Workers' International Industrial Union.

"We don't expect to elect any of our ticket," said Cox, who apparently is far removed from the "fanatic" or even the "crank" type of persons. "The campaign which we are carry on is purely educational and preparatory. That is what we rely upon for our success in the end—educating the public tc know just what our movement stands for and what an industrial organization of the State will accomplish for everybody."

Cox was born in 1864, upon a farm near the town of Effingham, in the county of the same name, Illinois. He relates with pride that he was born in a log cabin, that as a boy he helped his father to split rails and that his father had a yoke of oxen for the farm work.

The future candidate upon the ticket of the Socialist-Labor party was only a few months old when his father was drafted into the Union army and served until the end of the war. When the father returned from the war, the family removed to Madison County and continued as farmers for the next dozen years.

The only education which Cox received, except by his own efforts, he got at this time in little country schoolhouses. He attended school from 5 to 12 years of age, and thus obtained about what the grammar school graduate receives today.

"When I was 5 years old," he said, "I was anxious to attend the school, which was only a few hundred feet from our house. I was thought to be too young for it, but I insisted, probably as much for the sake of being with the other children as for any other reason.

"Finally my mother, who, I suppose, was tired of going down to the school yard and bringing me home, went to talk with the teacher about it. The teacher advised that I be allowed to come, remarking that I would undoubtedly get tired of it in a few days and be glad to stay away. So the next morning my mother fixed me up a little lunch, although the schoolhouse was only next door, you might say, and started me off to school. I can remember yet how happy I was and how grownup I felt. But instead of getting tired of school I stuck to it in such a way that the matter was finally brought before the school trustees and they decided that, in spite of being below the legal age, I could stay in the school."

August Gillhaus of New York, candidate for Vice President. Twelve years ago he was at the head of the ticket.

When Cox was 12 years old the family removed to Collinsville and the boy got employment with farmers in the vicinity. Forty-odd years ago the work on a farm was much more laborious than in this era of agricultural machinery, and there was more of it per hired "hand."

Yet, notwithstanding the montonous toil which has decided thousands of lads to abandon the old (or comparatively young) homestead for the shorter hours and more varied amusements of town life, Cox says now that he always has had a "hankering" for the farm during all his subsequent life, and that, if he should cease to be active in the Socialistic work, he would not consider any other life than that of a farmer.

One result of this farming background in his life has been to convince Cox that life on the farm must be made more agreeable for the young people who are raised in the country and who are only too apt to depart cityward at the first opportunity. More amusements, such as young people enjoy, is one of the prime necessities for keeping the young people on the farms, he says.

The winter that he was 16 years old Cox went to work in the coal mines, and thus entered upon what became his principle line of work afterwards. Until he was 20 years old he worked summers on farms and winters in the mines.

It was at this time that he began to revolve certain ideas and to form certain opinions which eventually caused him to become active in the work of Socialistic propaganda. For one thing, he decided that in the case of practically all the mines, the management was not paying the attention to safety conditions and to accident prevention that it should.

"I decided that the biggest curse of the whole system was that of profits," said Cox. "The management was always thinking about its profits. To keep down expenses, and thus increase those profits, the management would neglect attending to things of such importance as sprinkling the dust or cleaning out the gas, either of which is liable to cause an explosion. There was nothing wrong with the law, but the proprietors of the coal mines were quite apt not to comply with the law, because of the expense.

"The next idea, that if the mines belonged to the public and hence did not have to be worked at a profit, every precaution and safeguard for health as well as for life could be provided for the workers, came to me readily. I felt sure that it would have just that result, and that it would be much to the satisfaction of the general public.

"Further reflection convinced me that what seemed to be such a desirable reorganization of the coal industry would apply equally well to the other industries which support life and make it comfortable. In short, I became a Socialist, and ever since then I have been studying economics and the literature of the Socialist-Labor party, and in later years helping to spread the doctrines."

When 20 years old Cox came to St. Louis, and next year was married, being then employed in a brickyard. During the next 20 years the Cox family lived variously, according to employment conditions, in Edwardsville, Collinsville and Belleville. In the winter time Cox worked in the mines, in the summer time he "carried the hod" or got some kind of farm employment.

A few years later the summer employment became that of a paperhanger. Without previous experience, and just to save expense, Cox papered a room in his own house. The job looked like such a good one, when completed, that the neighbors wanted Cox to paper rooms for them, and in this way he gradually established a line of work which dovetailed very well with the coal mining. The mines were busy in the fall and winter months, the paperhanging filled up the late spring and summer months. Thus, two kinds of work, and steady work at either one which was available, enabled Cox to shoo the wolf from the door.

In 1905 the family moved to St. Louis, because, as Cox says, "a coal camp is no place for girls," and by this time he had five daughters, as well as a son. For the next six years Cox continued to hang paper in the warm months and board the rest of the year in mining towns, leaving his family in St. Louis. Then, nine years ago, with some of his children grown and himself on the wrong side of 45 years, Cox decided to give up the coal mining permanently. Since then he has worked as a paperhanger and painter.

"I never was able to buy a home," he said regretfully. "It took all that I made for our expenses, so I never have accumulated anything. Sometimes it was pretty tough, and I have wondered how we got through as comfortably as we did."

Of Cox's six children, one is married and the other five still are living at home. The ages of the children range from 15 to 31 years.

A committee of several members from Illinois, the day this interview was obtained, were conferring with Cox about the party's prospects in Illinois, and it was evident the men behind this movement do something more strenuous than write booklets denouncing the capitalist system. Speaking tours are carefully mapped out, speakers assigned and other arrangements completed for an energetic campaign among what is styled "'he working class."

One of the men present on the Cox front porch was August Gillhaus, a stationary engineer of New York City, who is the nominee of the Socialist-Labor party or Vice President. In 1908 Gillhaus was the nominee or President. During the last presidential campaign he party cast a total of more than 34,000 votes. The argest number of votes ever cast by the party was in the "off year" of 1898, when the total was above 80,000 his year, however, they are expecting a fat increase n the party vote.

"Aside from natural growth in the party, we look 'or a big sentimental vote," said Cox. "I believe that many people who care nothing about the Socialist-Labor party, and perhaps know nothing about it, will vote our ticket this year just to register their discontent, and their disgust with the big parties.

"We are not the party of 'American Bolshevism,' which we have been called. Bolshevism doesn't fit this country. We sympathize with the soviets in Russia and believe that their methods were necessary, but such methods don't fit in this country. We are positively opposed to those groups in America which lean toward physical force.

"Our methods are strictly constitutional. We carry on a campaign of education, under the protection of the Constitution, and the freedom of speech and of the press which the Constitution secures to all the citizens. This campaign of education is to prepare the working class for organization along both political and industrial directions.

"As the soviets have done, we demand the unconditional surrender by the capitalist class of the land, the tools and all the means of production, to be made the property of society as a whole. Because of the difference in conditions as between Russia and the United States, different methods will be used in this country. And we contend that this work of reorganizing the country into an industrial democracy must be done by the working class exclusively."

Cox declares they will have none of the bourgeois, or "middle class," remarking that such are only a lower stratum of the capitalist class. In his view, there are only two classes: the capitalist class and the working class.

Members of the Socialist-Labor party declare that it is the original organization from which all other Socialist parties in America have "sloughed off." The party was established in 1888.

Both Cox and Gillhaus spoke of Boris Reinstein, who is in charge of the Bureau of Education and Literature in soviet Russia. He lived in this country for many years before going back to Russia, and has frequently visited in St. Louis, and has slept at the Cox home on Bates street. Reinstein and his post were mentioned as an argument against the proposition that government of a country by a general executive committee chosen by the various crafts (working as groups) would mean the death or decay of literature, the drama, the fine arts and the artistic side of life, generally, as contrasted with the material.

Cox and Gillhaus said that nothing could be more untrue of the soviet plan, as shown in Russia itself. They declared that the artist, the writer and similar workers would be cared for more generously under an industrial regime in this country than they are at present.

Immense Energy We Receive From the Sun

THE source of the radiant energy of the sun is one of the unexplainable mysteries of the universe, writes Isabel M. Lewis of the United States Naval Observatory in the Electrical Experimenter. For millions of years the sun has been pouring forth its light and heat giving rays at a most prodigal rate, without the slightest sign of decreasing strength.

As seen from the sun, the earth is not much more than a point on the celestial sphere, appearing very much as one of the nearer planets, Venus or Mars, does to us.

The amount of the solar energy that is intercepted by the earth must be, therefore, almost infinitesimal compared with the total amount poured forth from the surface of the sun. It has been estimated, in fact, that all the planets together receive less than one hundred-millionth (1-1000,000,000) of the total radiant energy of the sun in the form of light and heat, the remainder passing on to the stars beyond at the rate of 186,000 miles per second.

Yet the almost inappreciable amount of energy that our own little planet earth receives from the sun as compared with the total output is, in reality, one and one-half horsepower per square yard, or 230,000,000,000,000 horsepower for the whole earth!

It is this seemingly inexhaustible supply of energy that is behind all forms of terrestrial life and activity and if it should fail us the earth would become a barren and lifeless planet in less than one year.

The surface temperature of the sun is, according to Abbot, at least 6000 degrees, and may be as high as 7000 degrees, absolute centigrade, which is 3000 degrees hotter than the hottest terrestrial source, the electric arc, which is considered to be at a temperature of 4000 degrees centigrade.

Why the Circle Cannot Be Squared

TO a correspondent who suggests an experimental method of squaring the circle, the editor of the Scientific American replies that the method seems correct, but adds:

"Your results will, however, be no more accurate than your ability to construct squares and circles and to measure lines and angles. This does not go much beyond a ten-thousandth of an inch. This may be quite sufficient for the engineer, but it is not for the mathematician. He demands absolute accuracy. In 1882 it was proved by Lindemann that it was impossible to find the side of a square which was equal to a given circle. If this is so, all the other figures which you construct are equally impossible of exact determination. You cannot make a perfect square nor a perfect circle with wood or metals. In everything we make we have to say, 'exact within the limits of measurement.'"

Missouri Now Has 150 Women Lawyers

I know of," says Miss Frank. "While probably 90 per cent of the women in the law are doing office work, I prefer the courtroom battle for my part." Miss Frank had just returned from United States District Court at the time of speaking. "It appeals to me because of the action. I sat inside long enough in preparing cases. I like to take my turn now with the men.

"I want to say that if women in all professions were extended as much help as the men lawyers of St. Louis have given the women lawyers, then this would be a splendid world to live in. The men have been wondrful. And the Judges of the court! Always ready to help make things easier.

"What are the chances for success for women at the bar? Well, I should say that it's no harder for women than for men. For the young woman, however, I would give this advice: Try to get into some law office and gradually come to the attention of the firm. I don't believe it's advisable for women to open their own law offices and start on their own hook yet.

"There's lots of cases that men will gladly turn over to a woman in their firm. Again, success for women in the law is largely the same as with men. It depends upon the woman."

broken through some other part of the window, will at once interrupt the current and evoke the alarm signals in the office. These tapes vary in width from three-eighths to one and one-half inch.

So serious have been the losses of the insurance companies from real or alleged whisky thefts that stringent regulations now govern this class of business and small effort is made by some of the largest companies to get it.

Inquiry from several agents showed that where insurance is granted to whisky on a "specific" policy, that first of all the liquor must be kept in a strong room, with brick or stone walls, windowless or having heavy iron bars and equipped with a heavy door which can be securely fastened. If these details are satisfactory, the company will then write insurance as follows (values of the liquor to stand as on July 1, 1919): On policies for burglary only, the rate is 3 per cent, or $30 per thousand dollars of insurance; policies for burglary, theft and larceny, 3 1-2 per cent, or $35 per thousand of insurance. These figures apply to liquor only.

On ordinary residence burglary insurance, the policy is $19.80 per thousand dollars of policy, which includes the liquor in the house under the following conditions: That not more than one-fifth of the amount of the policy shall be paid out for liquor claims. In other words, if a man carries $1000 residence burglary insurance, he cannot put in a claim for more than $200 based upon the theft of liquor. If he has a quantity of liquor which he wishes to insure in such a way that he can get $1000 reimbursement in case of theft, then the companies will permit him to take out a policy for $5000, and under the 20 per cent regulation he would then be able to claim $1000 compensation for the loss of his liquor.

Some of the companies are limiting whisky claims to the basis of $1.50 per gallon, or $73.50 for the ordinary barrel of 49 gallons.

THAT PRIVATE STOCK OF LIQUOR NEEDS ALL KINDS OF PROTECTION THESE DAYS

Wiles of the whisky thief, and his strange persistence, are opposed with steel doors, burglar alarm systems and theft insurance—Losses on liquor policies cause the companies to grow wary in writing new ones -o- -o- -o-

CROWNED heads of yore did not rest more uneasily than the man with a private stock of liquor does nowadays, according to reports from the police and from such other competent witnesses as dealers in steel vaults, managers of automatic burglar alarms and agents for burglary insurance.

Liquor thieves are acquiring a name for their persistence, their ingenuity, their rapidly increasing number and their already long chapter of successes. Most of their work has been done since Jan. 16, 1920, when the Federal prohibition law went into effect at midnight.

Police officials of St. Louis declare it is a conservative estimate to name $50,000 as the total of robberies reported within that period (and the police put a cynical emphasis on that word "reported") by local owners of liquor. These robberies vary in size from the quart or two, stored away in the trunk by a man who will never forgive himself for his self-denial, to the piratical expeditions in which several men and an auto truck participate.

They have occurred in all parts of town. Robin Hood and other bold marauders would not rob the poor, but the liquor thief will take it wherever found. Occasionally an incident is reported which shows some sporting blood in the thief, like the one who entered a doctor's house recently, found a case of whisky and took only nine of the quart bottles, leaving three bottles for the previous owner. Such cases are quite exceptional, however.

One thing which has impressed persons in touch with local liquor robberies is the amount of preliminary thought and planning which the thieves apparently are willing to give. For one thing, it is not everybody who has a stock of the beverages denounced by the reformers, and to ascertain which houses do and which do not contain a private stock is in itself no slight achievement.

Cases are known in which this information has been gotten from the children of a household, or even from the servants when cleverly questioned. Thus, posing as a chauffeur or merely as a "good fellow," the robber will get into conversation with one of the servants and begin to brag of the amount of liquor which his own employer has stored away.

The dupe stands as much of this as he or she can, then says:

"Well, you ought to see what is stored away in OUR cellar. Don't talk about your measly case of whisky. Why, we've got six barrels of whisky, 20 cases of French champagne, half a dozen cases of gin, brandy, cognac and liqueurs, and so much port wine that I don't believe the old man himself knows how much there is."

The next thing for the thief to do is to get some hint of where it is stored away (though he usually can count upon its being in the cellar) and then keep the house under espionage until the temporary absence of all the household offers a good chance to "prowl" the premises and carry off the liquor.

In one case cited by a local dealer in steel vaults, a man tried to provide himself with a private stock in a way which would be safe from theft. Firstly, he bought a barrel of the stuff, which cannot be moved save with the aid of a truck. Then he made it a point, during three months continuously, that the whisky never should be left alone in the house. Either the man, his wife or his sister-in-law was in the house during that time.

Not an attempt had been made during all that time, so they finally relaxed a little in their vigilance, and one evening the three went out together in their car. They were gone but a brief time, about half an hour, but when they returned they found that somebody had broken into the basement, rolled out the barrel, loaded it onto a truck and departed for the unknown. Without much question this house had been watched by persons who knew it contained a barrel of whisky, and who, as soon as the coast was clear, summoned help and turned the trick.

Curiously, the robbed man in this case suspected the agent through whom he had insured the barrel of whisky, and who certainly could have made an unholy profit by paying the full amount of the insurance policy without demur and then selling the whisky at the feverish prices which came with prohibition. The agent lived in the next block to that where the robbery occurred, while another man who had been concerned in the matter sufficiently to know about the presence of the barrel lived in the adjoining block on the other side.

Some indication of the quiet but very earnest struggle going on between the owners of private stocks, and the liquor thieves, is found in the fact that one firm alone has sold nearly 150 steel double-doors for liquor vaults in St. Louis within the last five months. These doors have been selling at $125 each, but the price will be raised to $135. They are exactly the same as used on the vaults of many small country banks, and can withstand the arguments of any ordinary burglar.

Some comment has been caused by the fact that practically all these doors have been sold to persons in exclusive residential sections of the West End, while the South Side, with its supposedly large percentage of German extraction, has scarcely troubled itself to buy any.

Steel doors like these guard the liquor in 150 St. Louis homes.

The one requirement upon which purchasers of steel doors have insisted is that the door be wide enough to admit the ordinary-sized whisky barrel. Then it is an easy matter to carry through a door of that size the cases of whisky, champagne and other liquids obnoxious to reformers.

"Thieves would rather steal whisky than they would money," declared G. R. Baumann of the John Baumann Safe Co., who has heard the tragic details of several "thief-in-the-night" tragedies. "They can always and very quickly turn their whisky into money, while it is not nearly so easy to turn money into whisky."

Besides the stocks yet remaining in some wholesale liquor houses, being sold for "medicinal purposes only," the burglar alarm system of the Missouri District Telegraph Co. is being used to safeguard the private stocks in more than 40 private residences, according to J. M. Sweeny, manager. These stocks range in size from one of 300 quarts of whisky to another where there is a whole room of unusual size piled high with whisky, brandy, gin and wines of every description and champagne in the lead.

When a private stock is put under the protection of the electric burglar alarm system, the first step is to line the vault, room or whatever enclosed space has been set apart for the liquor with what is called "compo," the same being a kind of fiber-board. The "compo" is coated with shellac dissolved in alcohol, and then paneled with "half round" strips of wood. These strips bear a tiny slot, into which the fine copper wire is drawn and thus becomes fairly safe from injury.

The simple but effective system of the burglar alarm works as follows: During the hours when protection has been arranged for, a current of electricity flows steadily through that fine copper wire mentioned above. The amount of resistance which the current meets on its circuit is balanced on instruments in the downtown office of the system. Now anyone who tampers with the wire, either directly or by trying to get access to the reserve stock, or who tries to "cut in" or to "cut out" will unbalance the former equilibrium, giving the same alarm to the office as if a door or window had been forced.

A shutter drops, a light flashes on, a bell begins to ring—there isn't a chance but what the attendants will get the signal and will send at once an auto with armed men to investigate.

The company, so that it will not have to run any risks of being without electricity, uses its own current all night, having large storage batteries and also two emergency sets. The system is also used in guarding the "narcotic rooms" at some of the wholesale drug houses and manufacturers, which have been the victims of numerous robberies in the past. Strangely enough, persons connected with the burglar alarm system declare that they never have caught a "dope fiend" in such a robbery.

The robberies are carried out, or attempted, by persons who plan to sell the drugs to the "dope fiends," and it is believed that the latter haven't the nerve to commit so serious a crime. The line of the "coke head" or "snow bird" is more in the way of petty pilfering or sneak thieving. Thus, if a "dope fiend" should see a man lying asleep with his shoes off, he wouldn't hesitate a moment to steal the shoes, provided he felt sure nobody was watching. Or to pick up an apple at a fruit stand or a piece of pie at a lunch counter, would be quite in his line.

An important part is played in the burglar alarm system by silver tape, which is commonly pasted across glass and which instead of being put there for purely decorative purposes is just as effective in carrying the current as is the copper wire. Even a fracture in the glass, such as might lead out from a hole

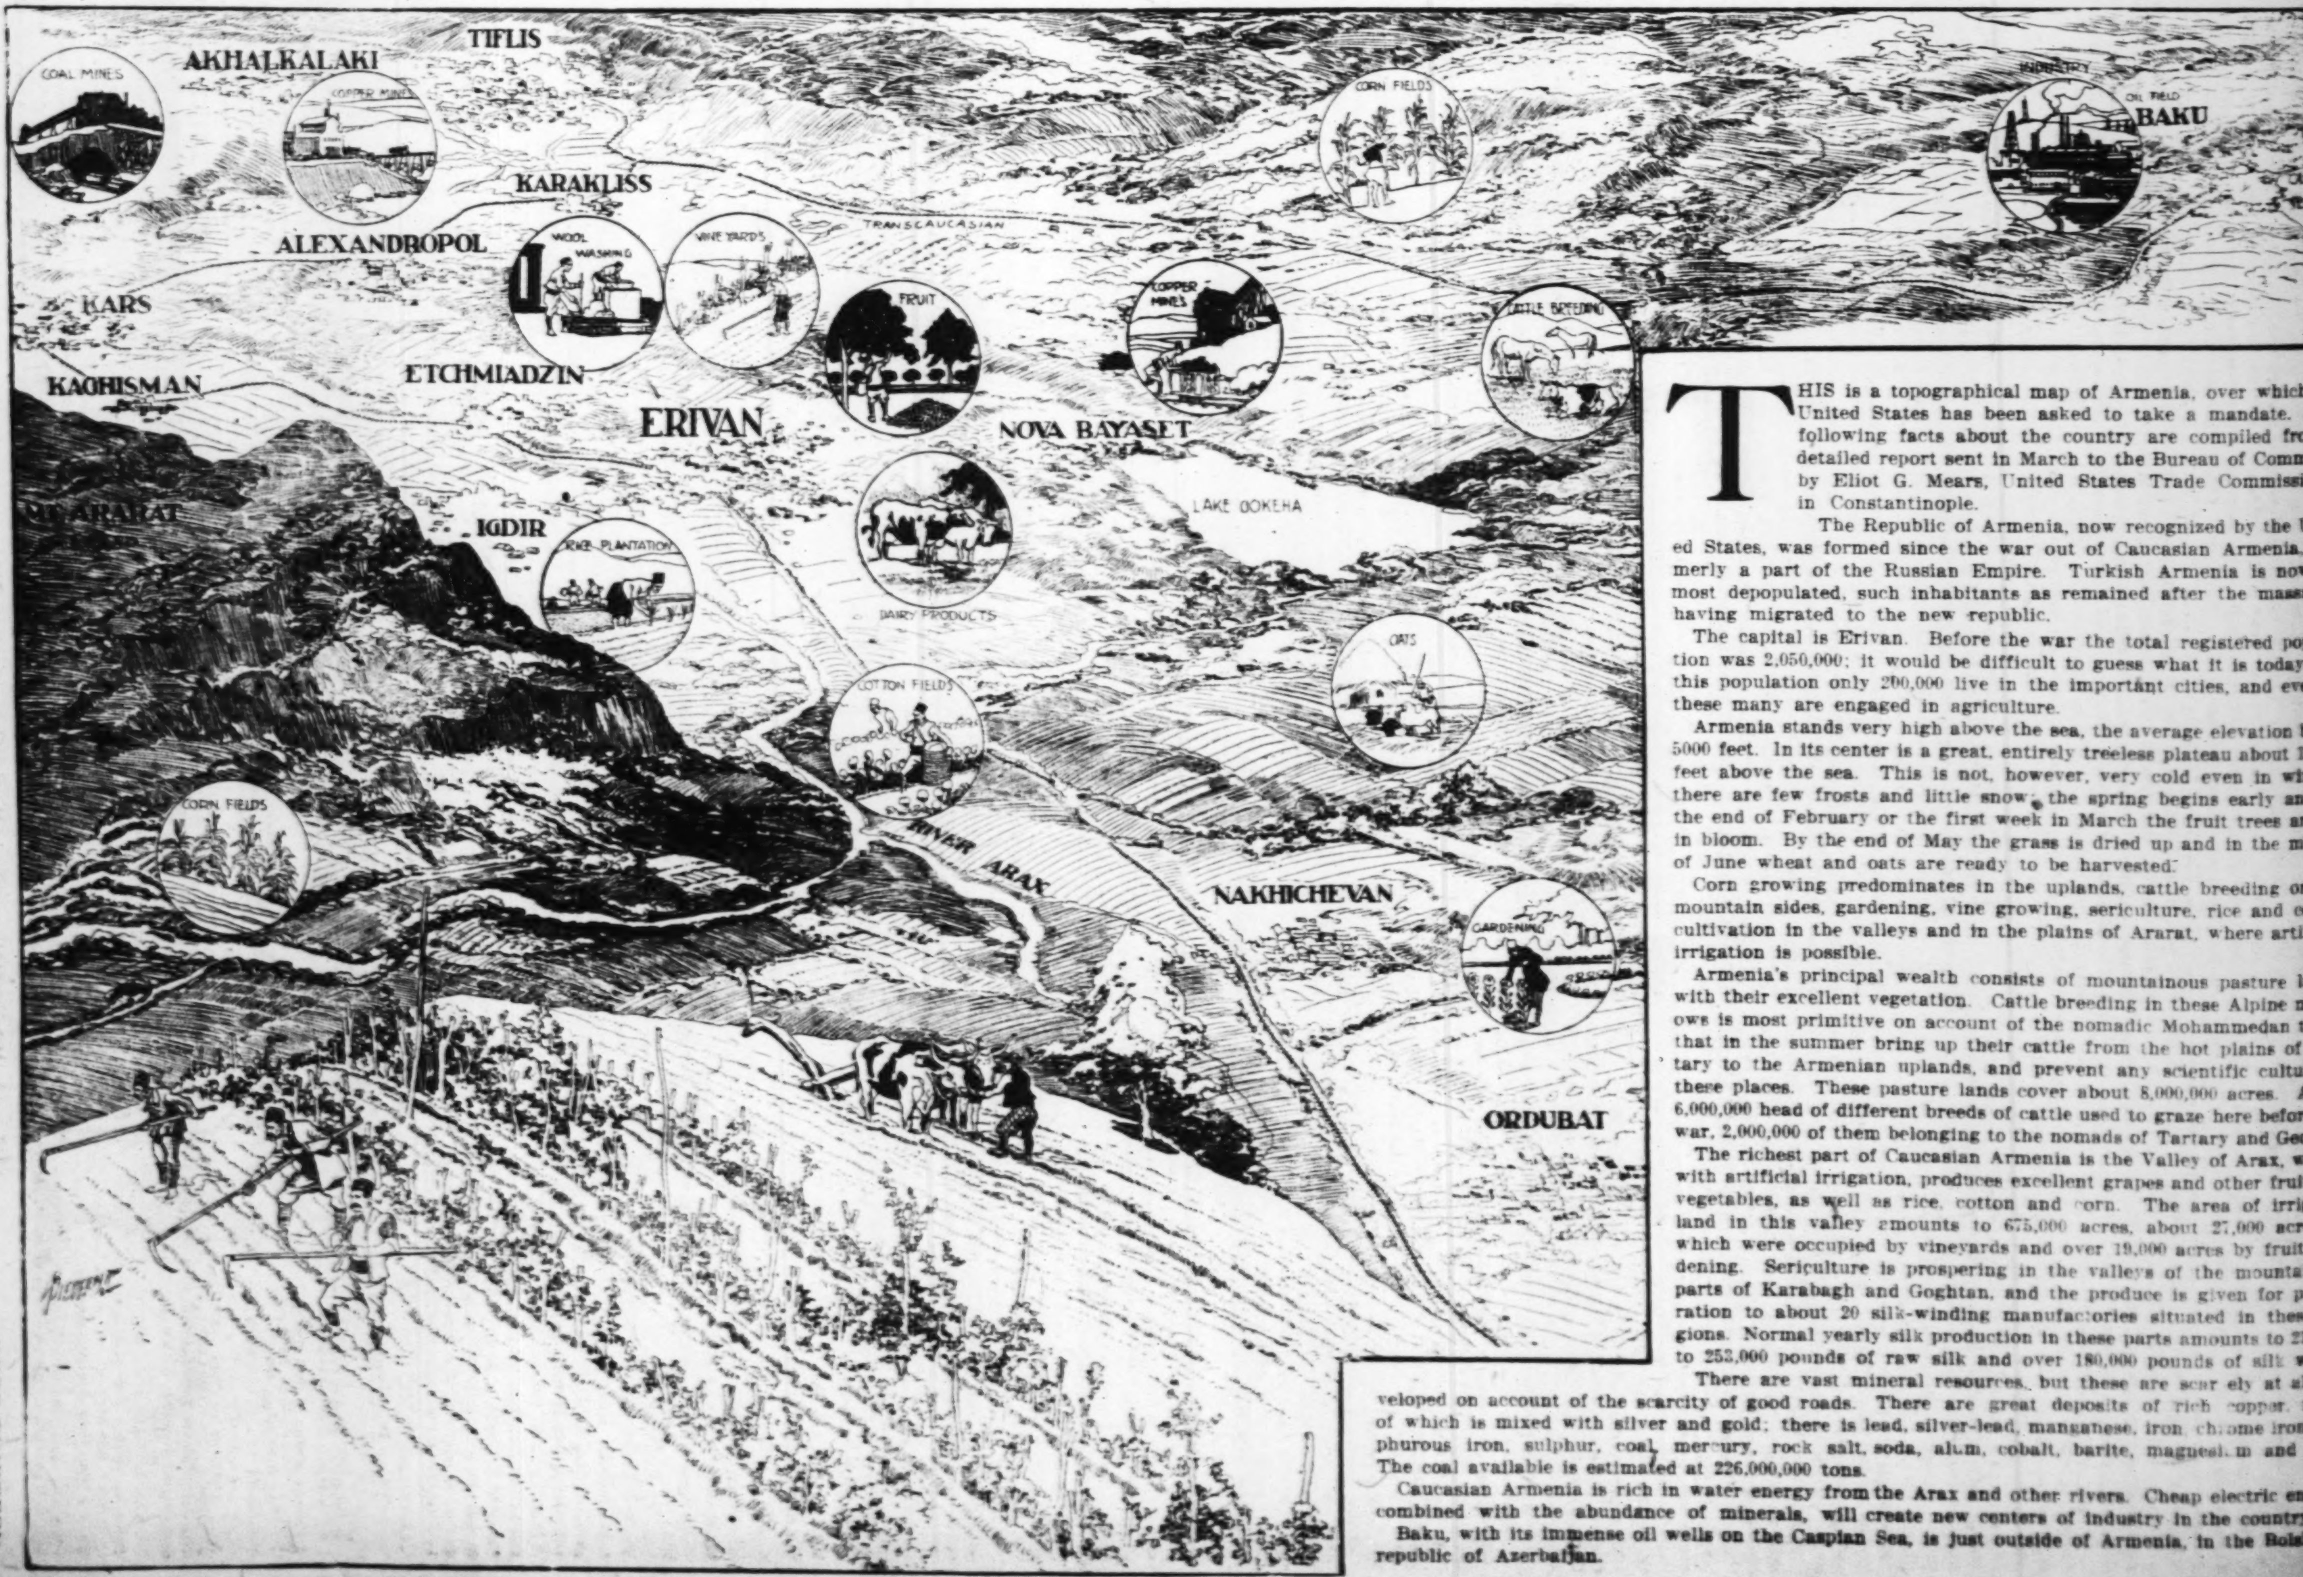
NEWEST REPUBLIC AND OLDEST CHRISTIAN NATION



THIS is a topographical map of Armenia, over which the United States has been asked to take a mandate. The following facts about the country are compiled from a detailed report sent in March to the Bureau of Commerce by Eliot G. Mears, United States Trade Commissioner in Constantinople.

The Republic of Armenia, now recognized by the United States, was formed since the war out of Caucasian Armenia, formerly a part of the Russian Empire. Turkish Armenia is now almost depopulated, such inhabitants as remained after the massacres having migrated to the new republic.

The capital is Erivan. Before the war the total registered population was 2,050,000; it would be difficult to guess what it is today. Of this population only 200,000 live in the important cities, and even of these many are engaged in agriculture.

Armenia stands very high above the sea, the average elevation being 5000 feet. In its center is a great, entirely treeless plateau about 11,000 feet above the sea. This is not, however, very cold even in winter; there are few frosts and little snow; the spring begins early and by the end of February or the first week in March the fruit trees are all in bloom. By the end of May the grass is dried up and in the middle of June wheat and oats are ready to be harvested.

Corn growing predominates in the uplands, cattle breeding on the mountain sides, gardening, vine growing, sericulture, rice and cotton cultivation in the valleys and in the plains of Ararat, where artificial irrigation is possible.

Armenia's principal wealth consists of mountainous pasture lands, with their excellent vegetation. Cattle breeding in these Alpine meadows is most primitive on account of the nomadic Mohammedan tribes that in the summer bring up their cattle from the hot plains of Tartary to the Armenian uplands, and prevent any scientific culture in these places. These pasture lands cover about 8,000,000 acres. About 6,000,000 head of different breeds of cattle used to graze here before the war, 2,000,000 of them belonging to the nomads of Tartary and Georgia.

The richest part of Caucasian Armenia is the Valley of Arax, which, with artificial irrigation, produces excellent grapes and other fruit and vegetables, as well as rice, cotton and corn. The area of irrigated land in this valley amounts to 675,000 acres, about 27,000 acres of which were occupied by vineyards and over 19,000 acres by fruit gardening. Sericulture is prospering in the valleys of the mountainous parts of Karabagh and Goghtan, and the produce is given for preparation to about 20 silk-winding manufactories situated in these regions. Normal yearly silk production in these parts amounts to 217,000 to 253,000 pounds of raw silk and over 180,000 pounds of silk waste.

There are vast mineral resources, but these are scarcely at all developed on account of the scarcity of good roads. There are great deposits of rich copper, much of which is mixed with silver and gold; there is lead, silver-lead, manganese, iron, chrome iron sulphurous iron, sulphur, coal, mercury, rock salt, soda, alum, cobalt, barite, magnesium and gold. The coal available is estimated at 226,000,000 tons.

Caucasian Armenia is rich in water energy from the Arax and other rivers. Cheap electric energy, combined with the abundance of minerals, will create new centers of industry in the country.

Baku, with its immense oil wells on the Caspian Sea, is just outside of Armenia, in the Bolshevik republic of Azerbaijan.

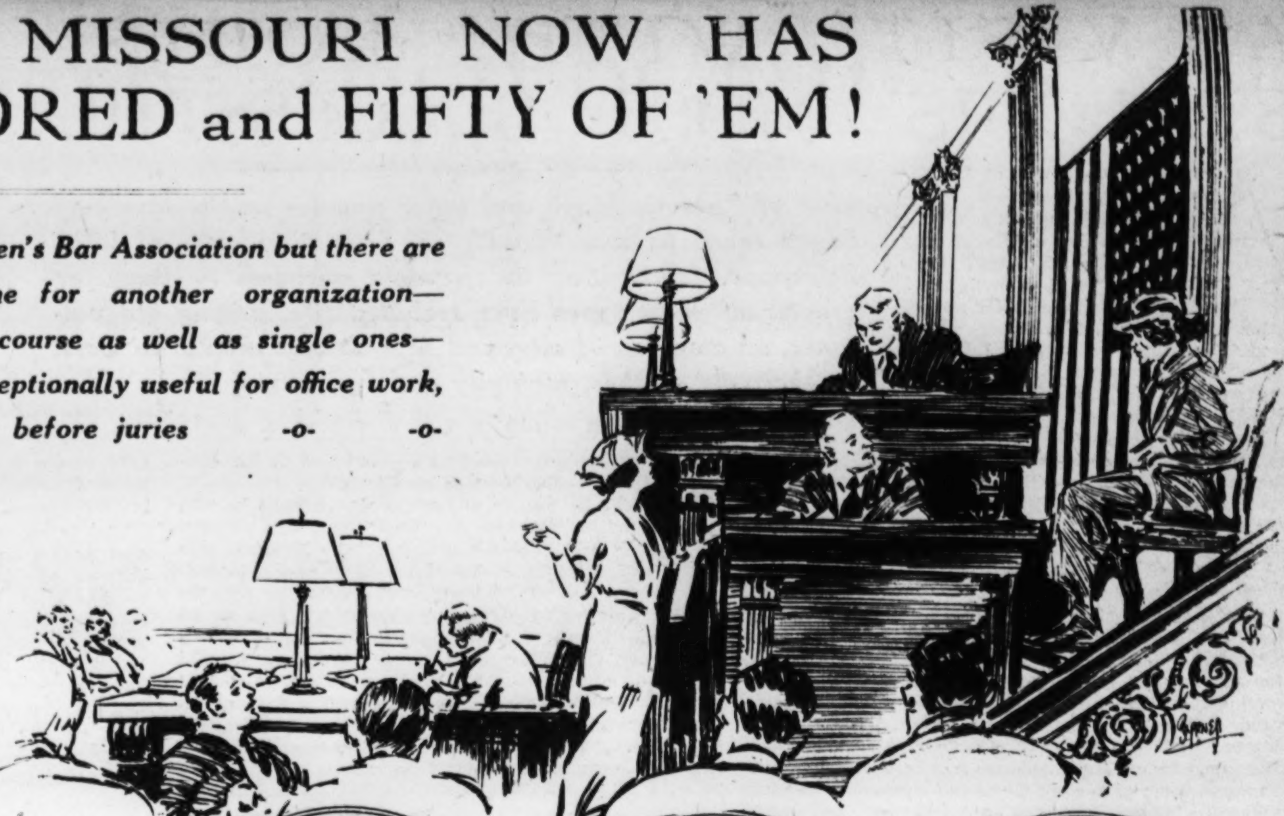
PORTIAS? MISSOURI NOW HAS ONE HUNDRED and FIFTY OF 'EM!

Not only has the State a Women's Bar Association but there are enough in St. Louis alone for another organization—Married women take law course as well as single ones—Men lawyers find them exceptionally useful for office work, but some prefer to appear before juries -o- -o-



A DECADE ago the first woman licensed to practice law in Missouri died in the poor house here.

Two weeks ago 15 young women took the bar examination at Jefferson City, passed with flying colors, and were admitted to practice in all the courts in the State.

At present there are about 150 women lawyers in Missouri. About 50 of these are in St. Louis, 35 are in Kansas City and the remainder are in various places throughout the State.

The first woman licensed was Miss Phoebe Couzins, known for years as the first woman prohibitionist in St. Louis. She was admitted in 1860. In her later years she was an attorney for the brewing interests. No one ever seemed to know the inside story of her change of heart. There are some who charge that she permitted the prospects of a steady retainer to overbalance her natural moral prejudice against liquor. In this, women say, she exhibited a trait quite noticeable in some successful men lawyers.

However, the women who took the last bar examination probably never heard of Miss Couzins, who was 85 when she died, and they would not have allowed knowledge of her pauper fate to deter them. For there is an ever-increasing number of women in the law schools, and there is a tradition at Jefferson City that "no woman has ever failed." George L. Corliss, dean of the Benton College of Law, says that their average is as high as that of the men in their class work.

They come from all walks of life. That is, from the various paths that women pursue. Mainly, they are from the law offices where they have had several years' experience in preparation of petitions, briefs and other papers that lawyers manage to clutter up their desks with. They find themselves at the end of their rope financially as mere stenographers. About the time they perfect themselves to become secretaries to their chief they also get the view that they might just as well make a life work of it and be lawyers, too. Then into the night school classes, mainly, and a diploma and a license follow quickly.

But they are not all from law offices. In the 1920 class there were two women of a different type. First, there was Mrs. Hiram W. Holliday, 5138 Washington boulevard, widow of a Southeast Missouri lumberman, whose fortune at his death was estimated at a million and a half dollars. Mrs. Holliday took up the study of law at Benton College to encourage her son, Hiram F. Jr., a student at Washington University. Mrs. Holliday passed but her son did not. However, in justice to the son, Mrs. Holliday declares two years of his last three years were spent in the navy, in the aviation section, where he had no opportunity to study law books.

Then there was Mrs. Grace E. Roberts, 5508 Vernon avenue. Mrs. Roberts' husband, Frank E. Roberts, was drowned three years ago this month in the Meramec River. He was the president of the Roberts Manufacturing Co. Mrs. Roberts has two children, Ray Dawson Roberts, 10 years old, and Frank E. Roberts Jr., 5 years old. Mrs. Roberts never had had any business experience and it was because of the necessity of knowing enough to protect her own interests that she took up the study of law. She also, in her first year in law school, learned stenography. Since that time she has worked in several lawyers' offices and in the office of the Circuit Clerk of St. Louis. Besides, she has had to manage her home, and that, she says, is the biggest job, her two children. Mrs. Roberts is a member of the Town Club and of the Missouri Equal Suffrage League She is interested mainly in child welfare.

Preachers' sons often are found in the law, and we next introduce a preacher's daughter. Miss Frances McCann, Westgate Hotel, was among the successful at Jefferson City this year. Miss McCann is the daughter of the Rev. Z. T. McCann, former Methodist clergyman, who was transferred last year to Florida. Miss McCann got up from a sick bed at one of the local hospitals, where she had been operated upon six weeks ago, and went to Jefferson City for examinations, despite her physician's protest. She is spending the summer in Colorado Springs, recuperating. She will go into the practice of law upon her return here. She intends to specialize in patent law.

The 50 or more women lawyers in St. Louis have been instrumental in organizing the Missouri State Women's Bar Association. After that was formed they organized the St. Louis Women's Bar Association. Miss Lena Frank, 1208 Aubert avenue, is president of both these associations. Miss Frank has been practicing law four years. She entered the profession via the stenographic route. After she passed her bar examinations her employer, Judge John P. Leahy, made her his partner. She has been in several notable cases recently, appearing as an attorney for the strikers in the case of the Kinloch telephone linemen and for the employes in the trunk factory workers' strike. Mrs. Nellie Allen Neff, who is on her honeymoon and whose husband is an architect here, is secretary of both organizations. Despite her very new wedding certificate, Mrs. Neff intends to keep up her law practice.

Another well known woman lawyer here is Miss Myrtle Wood, whose office is in the Wainwright Building. Miss Wood has specialized on women's laws and has been named chairman of the Committee on Uniformity of Laws for Women by the League of American Women Voters. This committee will codify laws relating to marriage, divorce, property rights of women and children's laws.

According to the men attorneys, the women make excellent office lawyers. There is many an attorney here who relies, absolutely, in the preparation of his cases, upon his women assistants. Men say women are more painstaking, more thorough and less susceptible to outside influences in their law work than young men assistants would be in the same class of work.

"It's attractive work and more enjoyable than any the business as quickly as he might. The slaughter of this gross animal disgusted his finer sensibilities as might have done that of a hog. There was less hatred than a sense of duty in his attack. Aside from his personal feud here was one of the dangerous animals who was making possible the laying of mines, and quite apart from the loss these might cost the allies, making it necessary for honest men to risk their lives daily in sweeping them up.

So he circled, the Bigouden watching him warily, impatient to be finished with it while yet filled with a sort of loathing of the job. Oddly enough, the Bigouden asked no further mercy nor showed any feeling of panic. He merely backed away from Berdou's swift rushes, striking slow, futile blows in return. Step by step he retreated, nearer and nearer the brink of the cliffs. He must have realized that he had scant margin for giving way, but he dared not look behind him. Perhaps he could not. The pilot appeared to have him hypnotized; to hold his dull stare. His big head lolled forward between his huge shoulders, and his glaring eyes had a dazed, almost stricken, look.

Closer and closer he backed to the edge of the cliffs, and Berdou, observing the scant limit which remained, suddenly changed his tactics. Perhaps he had a fastidious repugnance for sinking his blade in that heavy flesh. He plied Kalounek more vigorously, but his apparently vicious lunges were mostly feints. Time and again he exposed himself to a riposte, but the Bigouden was too sluggish to profit by his opportunity. He merely gave ground, slashing awkwardly after each of the pilot's thrusts. At almost any moment Berdou might have sprung in, struck him to the heart, and escaped unhurt, but he did not.

The end came suddenly. The pilot sprang forward with a savage snarl. This, rather than the danger of the knife, seemed to startle the Bigouden. "Gaste!" he cried, and sprang heavily backward. The heel of his sabot struck a stone. He staggered to recover himself and as he did so the overhanging turf gave way beneath him. Without a sound he disappeared from view and the leaping breakers took him.

Berdou stepped back, sheathed his unsullied knife, drew out his handkerchief and wiped his dripping forehead. He approached the brink as closely as he dared and looked down at the swirling water below.

"Eh bien, mon vieux," he muttered. "You have only gone whither you have sent many better men."

* * * * * * * *

Bella Zarina had not yet started to signal from her post on the extreme end of the little promontory when, as her eyes rested unfocused against the murk to the northward, there took form and substance at no great distance what appeared to be a rectangular opacity against the scarcely lighter sky.

Intent examination of this brought out other and smaller patches, one in front of and the other behind the first, and as these took form the girl discovered them to be the sails of a small fishing boat which appeared to be drifting down the shore becalmed and borne on the last ebb tide. But as she watched, its progress appeared to be arrested and she came to the annoying conclusion that, finding itself becalmed, the boat had anchored to wait for a breeze or the turn of the tide.

As long as the boat remained there Zarina dared not signal. The tide would not turn until about 1 o'clock, and it was probable that the breeze would spring up with the first of the flood, and as it was not yet 11 Zarina decided that she might as well find a cozy corner in which to take a nap and wait. The narrow ledge on which she was perched offering neither comfort nor safety for this purpose, she crawled down through a fissure in the rocks and scrambled out onto a huge, flat boulder with a depression in its top which was above high-water mark and seemed to be a good place for repose. In this she curled up like a cat and was soon dozing peacefully.

True to her feline instincts, she awoke at a little before 1, as her wrist watch showed. The night had grown brighter and the tide had already turned, but the fishing boat was still there, now heading nearly in her direction. Although nearly half a mile away, she could now distinguish it quite plainly in the pale moonlight. Her instructions were to send the final flash at precisely 3 o'clock, Kalounek doing the same, when, if there happened to be a submarine in the offing, it would be able to catch a cross-bearing.

There being still two hours in which the fishing boat might weigh anchor and drift on up the coast with the swift tide and faint breeze now stirring from the west, there seemed nothing to be done but wait. Her boulder was getting rather hard, so Zarina decided she would be more comfortable on a thin strip of sandy beach under the overhanging cliffs. The sand might be damp, but the night was warm and she was wearing a waterproof.

Alternately dozing and watching, the two hours passed quickly, though the fishing boat gave no sign of getting under way. Zarina, greatly disgusted with her fruitless vigil, first on a hard rock and then in the wet sand, got up and stretched her supple limbs to go, and at the same moment made a startling discovery. For the 15-foot tide, never running true to schedule time in these broken waters, was more than halfway to the flood and her tiny strip of beach was already on the point of being flooded.

But this was not the worst. She now found herself in a little V-shaped niche of the cliffs, with overhanging brows and vertical walls which jutted out far enough to cut off her retreat on either side. Zarina knew perfectly well that there were numberless such traps along the shore, but in her preoccupation the danger of being caught in one had not occurred to her.

A swift investigation now showed her that she was fairly cornered. Worse than that, she could see by the way the water swirled around the jutting buttress that it would be impossible for even as good a swimmer as herself to hope to stem the current, while in the other direction the cliffs were sheer for a long distance, with the big swells crashing against their base. Where she stood the water would be to her waist in another hour. It was possible that Kalounek, on not finding her at the cottage, might go in search of her, but it was equally probable that he would have seen the fishing boat and decided that she had already returned in disgust and gone to bed.

She was, however, in no danger, for there was always the fishing boat directly downstream from her and not over half a mile away, a short swim in that swift current. This was, indeed, her only choice, but good swimmer as she was, she did not care to trust herself in those swirling eddies hampered by all of her clothes. So far as the fishermen were concerned, her deshabille was the very least of her vexation. These were simple, honest folk, whom she regarded almost as animals. Besides, since the war, there remained but the old men and boys. One of them could jump into the small boat and retrieve her clothes, then pull her around to the cove and set her ashore, very pleased at the chance of earning a few sous or even a few francs, for Zarina was not stingy.

She threw the electric bulb into the sea, took off her outer clothes, and jammed the bundle into a fissure of the rocks. Then, in the first glow of rosy dawn, she slipped into the clear, swirling brine, swimming easily and letting herself be borne along by the swift tide.

She was quickly carried down to the fishing boat. Within 50 yards she was about to give it a hail, when a man came out of the cabin and stood for a moment staring toward the cliffs. The sun had risen behind the island or was perhaps about to rise, for the sky overhead was shot with crimson bands, and as the rays struck down on the man's face Zarina thought for the moment that she was the victim of glamor or hallucination. For here in this remote spot, aboard a battered little fishing boat, was the American war correspondent who had made such a fool of her about six weeks before at La Rochelle.

Zarina's heart sank. She was now confirmed in her opinion that his role of war correspondent was merely camouflage for his actual quality, which was that of an officer of the intelligence department. She swam straight for the boat, and as she drifted alongside her wrists were gripped by a pair of powerful hands and she found herself sprung aboard with astonishing ease, considering the solidity of her pretty person.

But to her astonishment her captor did not appear a bit surprised at what the tide had brought him. Rather, he seemed amused, for he leaned back against the cabin house and laughed.

"Bon jour, Mamzelle Zarina," said he. "It is uncommonly nice of you to call upon a newcomer so promptly."

For one of the very few times in her eventful life, Zarina found herself completely at a loss. She had never in all her experience felt such a helpless fool but once before, and then, as now, it was because of this American. But she kept her head sufficiently to say sullenly:

"I went down to bathe and got carried out by the current."

"Indeed?" Durfee answered. "I must say you chose a nice, cool morning for it. I would never have taken you for such a strenuous, athletic girl. But you mustn't get chilled." He ducked into the little cabin, then handed her a dressing gown of light, fine wool. "Slip this on," said he.

Zarina did so and, her partial nudity enveloped in the warm, voluminous folds, felt her self-possession returning. "Will you be so kind as to take me ashore?" she asked.

"Where did you leave your clothes?" Durfee asked.

"Over in that niche in the rocks," she answered, indicating the spot. Durfee reached for his glasses and examined it carefully.

"But you can't land there," said he. "Ah, I understand. You were sitting there waiting to admire the sunrise and the tide cut you off, so you had to swim for it. How fortunate that I happened to be here. Now let me get your clothes before the water reaches them and then you can dress and we will have some breakfast. You will find a clean towel in the locker, a tribord, and you had better give yourself a good rub."

"Thank you," said Zarina, "but I would rather you landed me and let me dress ashore."

"Couldn't think of it," Durfee answered. "Now that the tide has brought you here, I must insist on having a little visit. Besides, I have such a lot to talk to you about. Then, I am something of a fatalist, and do not believe that such accidents as this happen for nothing; do you? And it is beginning to rain. You had better go below"—he pushed her gently toward the cabin. "I'll be right back. Make yourself entirely at home, and don't let the coffee boil over."

He stepped to the stern, hauled the boat alongside, got aboard and shoved off. Seeing that there was no help for it, Zarina went below, slipped off the chemise, rubbed herself dry and, putting on the dressing gown, which was deliciously soft and warm, she picked up a heavy fishline and secured it around her waist. While realizing the gravity of her predicament, she was not as frightened as one might have expected. She found it impossible to believe that this gentle, kindly American would hale her before the military authorities to be convicted of a charge which might result in her being shot or condemned to a long term of imprisonment. The coffee, which was filling the little cabin with an appetizing odor, began to boil over, and remembering her instructions, she took it off the stove, smiling a little to herself at the oddity of the situation. Then her eyes fell on a brown canvass sack which was lying on the starboard bunk and her heart missed a beat or two. For stenciled on the stained canvas was the name: "F. Berdou."

Zarina sank back weakly. So Durfee was working with the pilot of whom De Roncal had warned her, and of whose virulent hatred for Fritz of the U-boat she had already heard in several ports. She was trapped at last. She had thrust her head once too often into the lion's mouth. The pilot was then ashore, and no doubt by this time Kalounek was in the toils. Perhaps in the hope of saving himself he might make a full confession, which would include their part in the torpedoing of the British collier off Belle Ile.

Whatever mercy she might hope to receive from Durfee would be powerless to save her from the stern denunciation of the French naval pilot. There would be a brief trial, Kalounek testifying as state's evidence; then condemnation, a firing squad or iron door of a prison closing upon her for a life sentence. Sex would be of no avail in such a case as this. Zarina's heart turned cold in her bosom. Her imagination had never carried her as far as this. She realized that in time of war martial law and martial justice must obtain, and she also realized that she was as guilty as it is possible for one to be. But she was a courageous girl, so she pulled herself together and summoned all her power of self-control, determined to face the situation as gamely as she could.

Durfee's bantering voice acted as a stimulant. "That coffee smells awfully good to people like ourselves who have been up all night," said he. "Let's have that and some bacon and biscuits first, and make our toilet and Trappist reflections afterward."

"Trappist reflections?" Zarina interrupted.

"Yes. Memento mori. But that can wait." He reached in a locker and produced some comestibles. "Here is food such as you seldom see in France these days. Courtesy of the United States Depot Quartermaster. American bacon, army biscuits, and good, real butter and real sugar, also some preserved milk. Aren't you glad you came?"

"I can tell you better when it is time for me to go, monsieur," said Zarina. In spite of her wide experience of men, this American bewildered her. She had not the slightest doubt but that he had come to Ile d'Yeu with the express purpose of trapping her, and, now that he had succeeded and taken her red-handed, he appeared to be treating the matter as a joke; a grim joke, perhaps, as his remark on the greeting of the Trappist brotherhood might indicate, but nevertheless a joke. A cold chill struck through the singer. She had heard that Americans were like that; of steel construction with a camouflage of mockery, resembling deadly destroyers with their harlequin paintwork.

But she decided to play the game and met his flippancy halfway with as much nerve and wit as she could muster. Some instinct told her that to play the baby with Durfee would not advance her interests. Something about the lines of his mouth and eyes warned her that a tearful avowal of past misdeeds and an appeal for mercy would glide from his smiling exterior as a patter of rapid-fire bullets from a machine gun would glance from the steel plates of a cruiser. She felt that her chance would have been much better with a ferocious Frenchman who might abuse her violently and then be moved by her youth and beauty to show a gruff compassion, than with the polite, inflexible captor who now held her fate in his unyielding hands.

If Zarina could have known what was actually passing in Durfee's mind it is possible that she might have done herself more harm than good. The truth of the matter is that the American was playing his hand purely from bluff. In the first place, he was quite

A VISIT WITH LOUIS DODGE, ST. LOUIS' MOST SUCCESSFUL NOVELIST

Author of "Bonnie May" and other popular works says career began when he was "fired" as drama reviewer of local newspaper for writing independent criticism — Bachelor creator of child types lives secluded life, among old volumes, on outskirts of city, and says writers should do work in their old clothes, mentally and figuratively :: ::

By MARGUERITE MARTYN.

A VISIT to the home of Louis Dodge, the most successful novelist St. Louis has produced in five years, and the story of his first success, are another revelation of the truth of the adage that a man may live ever so secludedly, yet let him do something really distinctive and the world will make a path to his door.

Mr. Dodge lives in an obscure neighborhood at the northwest edge of the city, where the streets dwindle and disappear until they emerge again over the hill into village lanes to be dignified by the name of Jennings. His house was built by a too-daring speculator and for years remained isolated, until recent real estate booms caused flocks of bungalows to spring up about it.

Inside, a studied agedness pervades. There are old furniture, old pictures, old silver. The other living creatures beside the bachelor owner are an old dog—which, though a mongrel, has not been supplanted by a skye terrier of ancient lineage but of later arrival—still another dog and an ancient retired camp cook in the kitchen.' Indeed, the whole interior is keyed to match the contents of some bookcases wherein repose, for example, a set of bound volumes of Harper's Magazine, complete, dating from the first issue in 1850; some ancient romances, the works of Thackeray, the essays of Charles Lamb and George Eliot's "Theophrastus." There are newer volumes, but they, like the little skye terrier, seem to know their place and give way to the dominance of aged wisdom and authority.

In this musty atmosphere lives the author whose works are known to be anything but musty, dealing with virile young love or most knowingly and appreciatively with children. Two of his books are written especially for children and many have delighted many thousands of them.

Seven books have been produced in these surroundings since 1915—"Bonnie May," "A Runaway Woman," "Rosy," "Children of the Desert," "The Sandman's Forest," "The Sandman's Mountain" and "Whispers," his latest book. All have been successful. The first two were published serially in a first-class magazine before they appeared in book form, and "Bonnie May" immediately jumped into the best-seller class. "Bonnie May" has been made into a motion picture film, about to be released, with Bessie Love in the title role. An entire edition of "Whispers" has been ordered by a Melbourne (Australia) firm, in response to popular demand in that far country. A reprint publishing house is bringing out "Children of the Desert" and the McClure Syndicate has bought the newspaper rights to "Whispers."

Personally, too, the author is to be described as anything but musty. He is a tall man with a ruddy, sun-burned face and small Vandyke beard, and though middle-aged, his most striking characteristic is an enthusiasm almost boyish about everything.

Outside, the house had time to become weathered and mossy and to acquire a deep-rooted, hardy garden before the new neighbors came, and it is bigger than the rest, so that it takes on a patriarchal aspect which is fostered by the oldest resident. Many of the newer gardens of the neighborhood have sprung from slips and seeds and plants generously distributed from this original garden, and many of the fowls trace their lineage to this older poultry yard. The extraordinary variety of wild birds noticeable no doubt owes its origin to attractive nesting quarters provided before the real estate exploitation.

And the neighbors have come to look to the first citizen for other community blessings, as when he calls them up to his front porch to listen to his really good phonograph records. But these neighbors do not know that the postman brings letters from distinguished personages out in the literary world who are hailing their neighbor as a kindred spirit. They are kept unaware that a celebrity is living in their midst—except when Jack Rand, employed as housekeeper and cook, but self-constituted major domo and high factotum, seeks to impress humbler folk with the greatness, not of his master, but of his charge. And even this effect is somewhat discounted when he claims the great one as his son or nephew, according to his mood or his estimate of the receptiveness of his listener.

Mr. Dodge retired to this secludedness when he was happily, as he expresses it, "fired" from the position of literary and dramatic editor of the Republic five years ago. He wrote something frank and independent in the way of criticism, and conflicting opinion among authorities higher up caused his desk to be declared vacant. So he joined a caravan of others who have graduated into greater things by way of the same route. His exile was not voluntary just at first, but has become a matter of choice and a part of the philosophy of his success. The story of his sudden invasion of the best-seller class of fiction writers is also the story of his making the choice.

As a final effort to retain contact with the literary world for his work's sake, he went East with the manuscript of "Bonnie May," which he had written and rewritten at odd times and which he asserts never under those circumstances became what he desired it to be. He personally interviewed two publishers, from whom he received most cordial encouragement and with one of whom he left the manuscript. Then he returned to St. Louis only to find the manuscript awaiting him with a curt letter of rejection. He sent it to the other with whom he had had an agreeable visit. Within three days it came back again.

Disheartened by this evidence that his book had not even been read, and rather desperate in the face of joblessness, he attributes his next inspiration to an instance of occultism. While in New York a sign he had seen, "Charles Scribner's Sons," had unaccountably impressed itself upon his memory. On his way downtown to cast about for old professional ties or new ones, he closed his eyes and saw again the photograph of that sign. Thus he was moved to send "Bonnie May" to Scribner's.

Very promptly came a most cordial letter warmly praising the conception of the fantastic and lovable little girl, asking for the right to introduce her serially in Scribner's Magazine and offering a good sum for each installment. Seven installments were suggested as a proper division, but Mr. Dodge, with characteristic disregard of the material, decided the book would divide more gracefully into six installments, thereby depriving himself of the price of one installment.

The interesting, and to the author a decisive, sequel to this incident was that no sooner had the first chapter of "Bonnie May" appeared, less than six months later, than the publisher who had so curtly returned the manuscript wrote a most flattering effusion, declaring "Bonnie May" to be the most delightful, the most delicious child character he ever had encountered in fiction. He hoped the book rights had not been disposed of and he would like to make an offer for the same.

"This experience convinced me," said Mr. Dodge as he related the episode, "that personal contact is not necessary to the marketing of a book, at least, not in my case. It further has furnished me with a direct answer to aspiring young writers who consult me on the system of placing a manuscript. It all depends, I say to them, on the chance of finding the right reader at the right time; that is, in the right mood, provided you have the right book."

With "Bonnie May" running serially and a welcome assured to his next effort, Mr. Dodge set to work systematically in the environment which was not only his choice but which seemed pointed out as the most practical, with the purpose, which he has fulfilled, of writing one or more books each year.

In spite of his seeming preference for association with the old writers, one of Louis Dodge's enthusiasms is the work of his contemporaries. Two of his books he has dedicated to two popular fiction writers, one of whom he never has met. In this connection he was asked:

"Don't you ever feel the need of association with men of your own craft for the exchange of ideas, technical experiences or theories—for the literary atmosphere?"

"I even fear the temptation of such association," he responded, "as it would separate me from my inspiration, which is right here among real humanity and growing things in nature. Every plant in my garden has personality to me, and I live in a world with them. Watching the growth of things from the soil has developed the philosophy of life for me, has taught me the meaning of life. I could talk to you for hours and not tell you all I have learned from the plants in my garden. Then you've got to do your work in your old clothes, mentally, figuratively, if you want your work to be without self-consciousness. Work in the so-called literary atmosphere, and talk books and the systems of making them, and you become self-conscious, mechanical, farther removed from art."

It should be explained that Mr. Dodge had the advantage of considerable experience in writing and observing life before he sought his present retreat, and before his first book gained not only popular success, but immediate recognition from literary authorities as a work of superior artistic merit and originality. He had been a chief editorial writer and dramatic and literary critic on St. Louis newspapers for 15 years. Before that he had traveled, living on the Mexican border, in West Texas and elsewhere in the Southwest, and in Manila, where he served in the Spanish-American War. The Mexican experience furnished him with a background for "Children of the Desert," and a period lived in Arkansas with the scene of "Rosy." His next book is laid in a South Sea Island which he has visited.

at La Rochelle. In this he was informed that the Kalouneks had left Belle Ile; Per Kalounek giving it out that he had secured a position as douannier on the quays at Nantes.

"A gabelou, that animal!" growled Berdou. "They would not trust him to watch a paralyzed boche prisoner. He is up to some mischief, and I would bet a year's pay to a lead five-franc piece that he is somewhere on the coast flashing signals to a boche submarine. It was he, without doubt, who signaled to the viper that sunk my brother Anatole. Some day we shall meet, mon ami, and then"—— He licked his lips and his hand went to the knife in the red sash twisted around his narrow hips.

Durfee nodded. He also knew something about Kalounek, though Berdou was not aware of it. When there was mention of enemy submarines, Berdou reminded Durfee of a mongoose at sight of a snake. The wiry little pilot's eyes reddened and his muscles drew taut.

"You must be careful, pilot," said Durfee. "You know we have not the right to arrest. We can only report anything interesting which we may discover."

"Report?" snapped Berdou. "Parfaitement! I have reported several times, and what came of it? I was told to mind my own business and keep my trap closed unless I wanted to be disrated; that I was a naval pilot, not an intelligence officer. Let me tell you between ourselves, monsieur, that if I should happen to catch Per Kalounek red-handed there will be nobody to arrest and nothing to report." He rolled another cigarette, then rose and stuck his head out of the hatch. "The tide is about the last of the ebb," said he. "We might as well get under way. With this breeze we should fetch Les Sables d'Olonne before dark. Then we can look around a little and sail for Ile d'Yeu, which we should make before morning. There is a little rift in the cliffs behind the Pointe des Corbeaux where we can slip in and lie unobserved. I have had my suspicions about Ile d'Yeu for some time. It would be a perfect place from which to signal for the laying of mines on the course to La Pallice."

So they made sail on the little ketch and stood out with a light northeasterly breeze which made a broad reach of it for the short run to Les Sables. Here they went ashore, and while Durfee sat in front of a cafe and watched the summer folk and the picturesque women of the place in their neat coifs, snug bodies, knee skirts and tight black stockings with buckled shoes, the pilot went about certain quiet investigations of his own.

He returned in about an hour, hot and thirsty and ordered a glass of Bordeaux blanc.

"Nothing to be learned in this hole," he growled, "but then I did not expect it. We might as well get out. This is a poor place to lie, and if the breeze does not die out entirely we should reach Ile d'Yeu before dawn. It is rather a nasty place to get into where we are going, but I know the passage between the reefs and the shore, and the holding is good if we should have to anchor."

And so a few hours later, as the dawn was beginning to lighten, a small, ketch-rigged fishing boat slipped in under shelter of the outlying reefs, and losing the breeze under the precipitous cliffs, was propelled by a long sweep into a sheltered niche where she came to anchor practically hidden from view by land or sea.

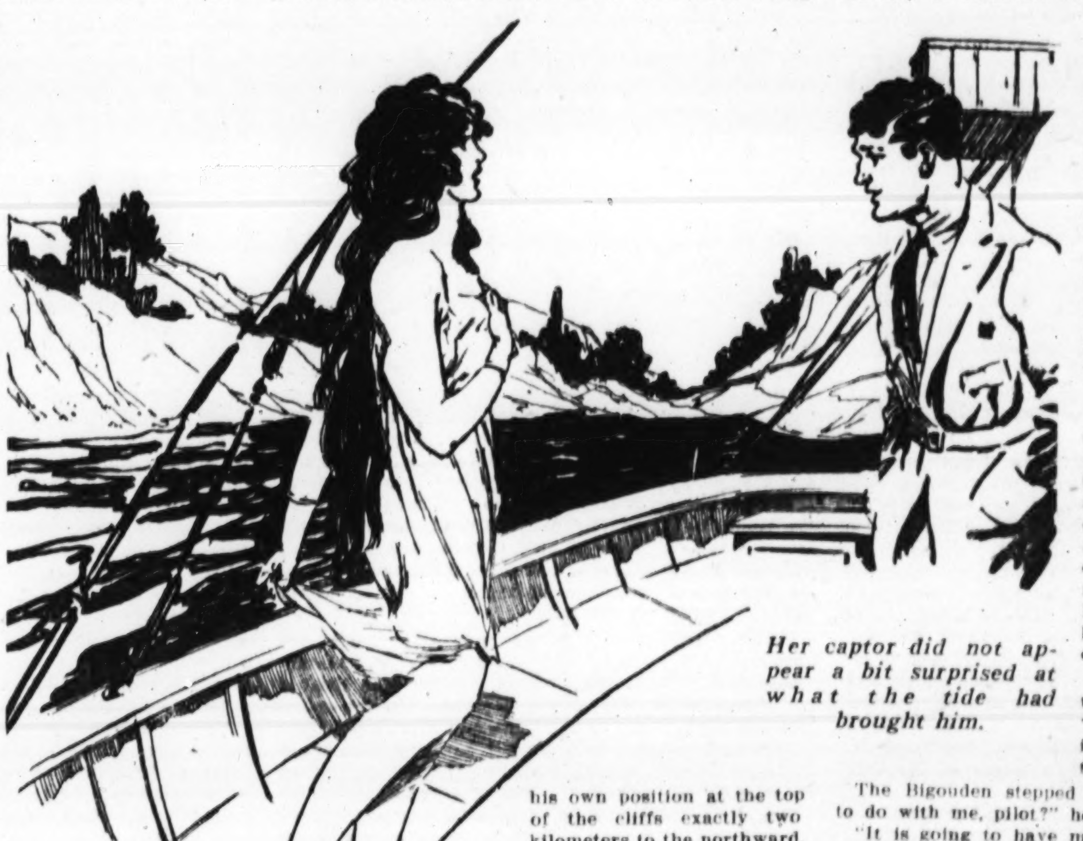
Bella Zarina was much enjoying her sojourn on Ile d'Yeu. Her little cottage was bright and comfortable, and she was under no restrictions. Having sung at various times in all the towns along the coast, her name was well known, and what more natural than that the charming artiste should desire a season of quiet and repose?

The sullen Kalounek was also satisfied. His peasant instinct had begun to feel a certain covert aloofness on the part of his copains on Belle Ile and he was glad to leave for a while. Here he was unknown, had practically no work to do throughout the day, while the wine and eau-de-vie were better and cost two sous less the glass than at Le Palais. Moreover, there was the prospect of big pay. Kalounek had at one time owned a small cargo boat with which he carried oil and wine and pine logs up the coast, but two years before the war he had lost her on the Glennans in a southwesterly gale. This had impoverished and embittered him, for, like most Bretons, a mistaken suspicion and thrift had kept him from being insured. He had therefore proved an easy object for the approach of the same German agent who had corrupted Zarina and who was even at that moment in command of a submarine operating in those waters.

Personally, Kalounek had not the slightest sentiment of loyalty to France. Not a drop of Gallic blood flowed in his veins and, as a matter of fact, the Bigouden Breton is of Hun consanguinity. Kalounek, however, had not the slightest regard for anything or anybody but a 5-franc piece, and when his slight efforts began to bring a shower of these, he was more than pleased with the arrangement. Having considerable primitive intelligence, he realized that his work had its dangers, but so had fishing and cargo carrying and a man must expect to die some time or other. Kalounek had been reformed, or exempted from war service, because of his 51 years and a valvular disease of the heart.

Kalounek assigned to Zarina her station on a small promontory at the southern end of the island, taking his own position at the top of the cliffs exactly two kilometers to the northward, their flashes thus furnishing Fritz a triangle of which the length of the base and angle of the apex were known. And it was from his own point that a tiny spark of light was caught and registered by a pair of keen eyes watching intently from a small fishing boat which had put off from the shore after dark, and the breeze failing, had come to anchor halfway between the shore and the reef.



Her captor did not appear a bit surprised at what the tide had brought him.

"Le voila!" hissed the pilot Berdou. "There it is. He must be at the top of the cliffs almost opposite the ruin of the old fortress. Quick, monsieur—the boat!"

"You are going to land?" Durfee asked.

"Yes. If you will set me ashore in the bight just above, I will take a walk along the cliffs and see what I can find."

Durfee quickly hauled the boat alongside and getting into her, picked up the oars. Berdou stepped down into the stern and glued his eyes on the vague, black rampart ahead. Durfee pulled strongly, and before long the boat's stem ground into the shingle.

"Are you armed?" Durfee asked as the pilot sprang out.

"I have my knife. That is quite enough for such slinking beasts."

"Well," Durfee cautioned, "don't forget that we have no authority to arrest, and that to do so might only get us into a lot of trouble."

"No, monsieur," answered Berdou softly, "I shall not forget."

Berdou had fixed in his mind the approximate position of the spark which he had seen and judged it to be nearly two kilometers above the point where he had landed. He took his time, for it was not late, and he thought it probable that the signaling would continue throughout the night. He had no definite plan in his mind beyond that of stalking the signaler and stretching him out for inspection, but it is probable that, if the actuary of an insurance company could have seen the expression of his face at that moment, he would have considered the German agent a poor risk.

Berdou had his own ideas on the way in which contre-espionage should be conducted, and this was to select such persons as himself for the business and give them carte blanche.

From time to time he stopped to listen and peer about, and when he judged himself to be getting in the proximity of his quarry these halts grew longer and his senses more acute. And then in one of these pauses, as he stood with every faculty on the alert, he caught the faint but acrid odor of pungent Algerian tobacco smoke.

Several minutes passed. The odor of tobacco smoke was no longer perceptible. Then, in a lull of the growling below, the pilot's ears caught a slithering sound and the rattle of a loose stone. He was about 20 paces from the brink, and as he strained his eyes in the direction of the noise a man's bulky figure hove itself upward and the dim light struck on the heavy features of Berdou's most hated enemy.

"A la bonne heure," muttered the pilot, and raised himself erect. He knew that Kalounek could not escape him now. The awkward, thickset Bigouden in his heavy sabots, or without them for that matter, could no more hope to outstrip the wiry man of Morbihan than a badger could hope to scramble away from a terrier. Berdou walked slowly toward his prey, who had discovered him and stood motionless as a menhir. Then, as Berdou did not move, he demanded huskily in Breton: "Who is that?"

"Me eo, Fanch Berdou," growled the pilot, in the same tongue. It had occurred to him, of course, that Kalounek might have a pistol, but he did not think it probable. Firearms are no part of the equipment of a Breton fisherman, even though he is a spy. Berdou strode forward and halted almost within striking distance of Kalounek.

"We have an account to settle, Per Kalounek," said he. "It has to do with the sinking of my brother Anatole's thonnir, the Jean-Marie."

The Bigouden stepped backward. "What has that to do with me, pilot?" he growled.

"It is going to have much to do with you, pardi!" snapped Berdou. "I am going to send you to make your excuses to Anatole." And he reached for his knife.

"What are you going to do, pilot?" whined Kalounek. "What do you want of me?"

"Your life, traitor!" Berdou snarled, and the pale light glinted on the keen weapon in his hand. "You have a forfeit to pay to me and to the State." He took a step forward.

The Bigouden flung out his great arms. He was twice the stature of the wiry little pilot.

"I swear on the cross, Fanch Berdou, that I had nothing to do with the shelling of the Jean-Marie," he croaked.

"You may tell that to Anatole, assassin," Berdou retorted. "That is, if you meet him, which I doubt."

Kalounek stared at him with a curiously impassive face. At that moment his heavy features were Mongolian in their blankness. He looked like one of his early Hun forbears; the Northern branch of which the Bigouden is the direct descendant. Then in a heavy, stolid manner, he drew from his pocket a heavy clasp knife and tugged open the blade.

"Go away, little man," he growled, "or I shall slice you like bait and throw the pieces to the fishes."

"That shall be as it turns out, servant of boche murderers!" snarled the pilot, and springing forward struck at Kalounek's left shoulder. It was scarcely more than a feint. He wished to try the mettle and activity of his bulky enemy.

And then began a singular duel. There is not much fear in a Breton except for the supernatural. One might call it courage, though more probably it is relict of Oriental fatalism. But Kalounek, as if realizing the greater agility of his adversary, fought purely on the defensive. Berdou, on the contrary, wished to finish

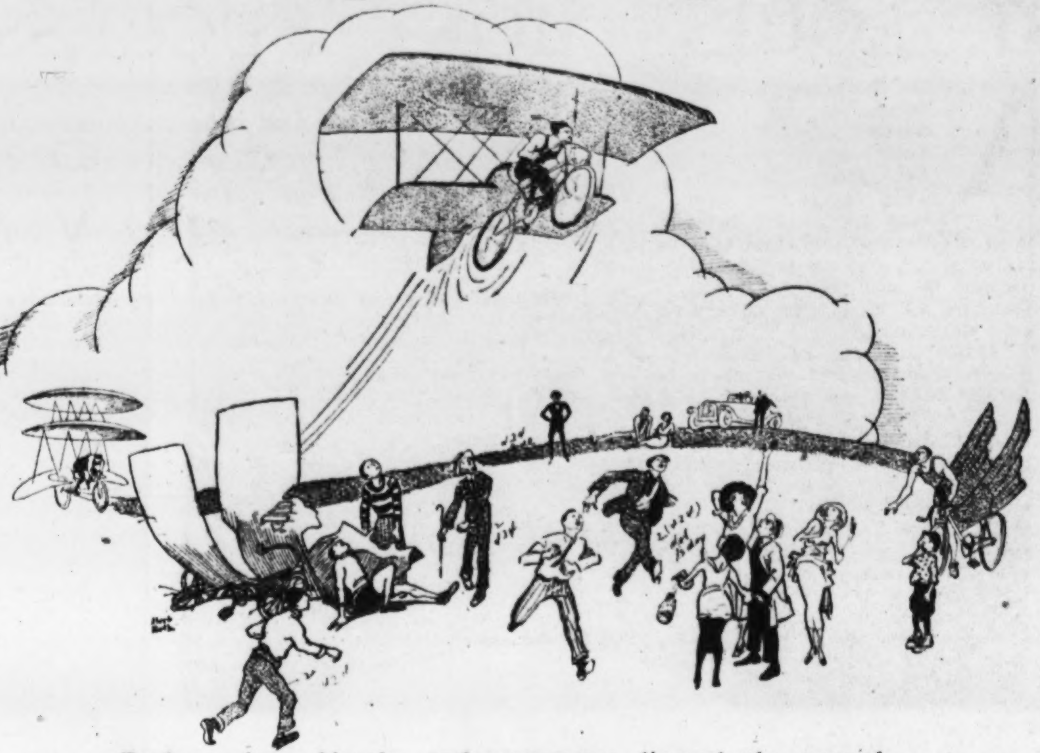
Bicycles Are Now Sprouting Wings



Broken wings, bicycles and contestants littered the ground.

Aerial League of America establishes $1000 prize for annual contests in "avietting," and there are similar prizes in France and Italy—Latest sport device may realize old dream of flight powered entirely by muscular energy—Bicycle flying began in France with most ludicrous competition in history—World's record held by French cyclist, who soared 40 feet at height of four feet ::

PICTURES of the latest sport device, the aviette or flying bicycle, have been published in the Rotogravure Section of the Post-Dispatch. If anyone was inclined to scoff at the winged velocipede as a mere fad, let him know that the Aerial League of America has now established a thousand-dollar trophy for bicycle flying, to be competed for annually, the first event to be held some time this summer.

"We have a hundred entrants already," said Henry Woodhouse, vice president of the Aerial League, "and expect twice as many more. All sorts of people have come forth, for instance a New York bicycle policeman The flying bicycle is going to be the cycle sport of the future. Just as the motor cycle surpassed the bicycle, so will the flying bicycle surpass the motor cycle."

In addition, the Aerial League of Italy has announced a prize of 100,000 lire for a competition in bicycle flying, while the Peugot Motor Co. of France has re-established a prize of 10,000 francs, which was announced prior to the war.

So that avietting has arrived as a new sport. Here is an affair that is scientific and serious, and at the same time droll. You can fancy that when bicycles begin flying over the summer meadows the very birds will laugh, for the mishaps will make the foolery of clowns seem like solemn Sunday sermons.

In the times before the war the Peugot company offered a prize of 10,000 francs for the first person who should make a flight of 32 feet entirely by muscular energy. When the competition was held it was found that 200 or so entrants were present, with every sort of cycle equipped with every sort of wing. There were large bicycles, small bicycles, biplanes. They were pedalled by young men, old men, large men, small men.

When the officials looked over the astonishing array they were assailed by strong doubts. They might have made the distance 32 miles or 32 feet. It wouldn't much matter. The competition was changed into an affair of a thousand dollars for the one that would fly 40 inches at a height of four inches.

The attempts of the flying bicycle made a weird show. A madly peddling entrant with a cycle monoplane would speed down in front of the grand stand, and would lurch his body frantically as he came to the modest string over which he must hurdle. And down he would go with a crash. The tendency of the winged cycle was to rear when the moment to fly came, and go over backward. Soon the field was littered with broken wings, broken bicycles and contestants trying to mend their inventions and return to the contest. Shouting, gesticulating spectators leaped from the grand stand to rescue a contesting friend who had fallen meshed in wreckage. And more of the winged bicycles came charging toward the string. The competition was one of the funniest in the history of sport, and not one of the contraptions succeeded in getting an inch off the ground.

With this inauspicious beginning, the art of avietting progressed rapidly. Professional bicycle racers succeeded in devising aviettes and getting off the ground. In 1912 Laveladoi managed to skim for a distance of 40 inches at a height of eight inches. And, finally, in 1914, the champion cyclist Poulain soared for a distance of 40 feet at a height of about four feet.

It is thus, with levity and jest, that the great dreams of mankind come to fruition. The marvelous airplane of today is a very imperfect realization of the human longing to fly—it is motored. The visionaries of aeronautics a score of years back saw their ideal in a man's flying by his own bodily power. The Wrights, Langley, Lillienthal, all willed a flying machine powered by no mechanical power plant.

Thus the winged bicycle is today's continuation of the magnificent accomplishment of the Wrights when Orville Wright's glider rose in 1911, mastering a 50-mile gale, and remaining in the air for 9 minutes and 48 seconds. One trend of aeronautical thought, that of powered flight, has become the airplane. The other has led to the absurd first competition of avietters, then to the fine record flight of Poulain, and will lead to the hurlyhurly of this year's American competition, and to the hosts of aerial bicycles that will ride air, as we are assured they will, when the subtle and extremely difficult problems involved are at length solved.

During the airplane's days of development a considerable part of progress lay with the host of enthusiastic model fliers. Ingenious boys and men built models by the thousand, half in sport, half in serious investigation. This was one of the minor phenomena of our times. The model building fad persisted in full career until half a dozen years ago. Since then it has waned. The airplane became too obviously an accomplished thing to permit much of the fine juvenile spirit of experiment.

"The aviette will take the place of the model airplane," Woodhouse assures us. "Youths and adults will find in the aviette a new and very superior mode of gratifying their mechanical likings and at the same time their instinct for sport. It will not be a matter of building models, but of life size planes, and with little more labor than was required for model building. The opportunities for experiments and aeronautical study will be limitless. The subtlest aeronautical problems will stand to be solved. Everyone owning a bicycle will have full opportunity to work at them. And when the hum of activity all over the country is done,the problems of human-powered flight will be solved. This means a tremendous human importance for the light summer sport of avietting."

This hum of activity was a pleasant thing to anticipate. Every other lawn or so will hold an inventive youth trying out his winged cycle, and executing hilarious tumbles. Little danger of breaking necks, but much of bumps and bruises. The prospect becomes more colorful when the full meaning of the newly coined word, aviette, is visualized.

An aviette may be either a flying bicycle, with a propeller or more usually merely a soarer, or a motor cycle. The flying motor cycle does not, of course, have the ideal aspect of human-powered flight, but it is of more practical importance, as it seems to be one of the roads to the aerial jitney. The winged motor cycle would, of course, be driven while in the air by a propeller.

In the flying bicycle with which Poulain made his record, the method of rising is to tilt the bicycle backward a trifle, giving the wings a lifting angle. It is a biplane with the lower wing considerably to the rear of the upper one. This wing distribution is not necessarily the best one, since other flying bicycles that have performed creditably have been quite different in this—some of them monoplanes. The ludicrous danger to be overcome is the tendency of the contraption to go over backward. The flying bike speeds along. The front wheel lifts, and the wings are given an angle. There is air resistance and pressure, which tends to push the wings back, and as they go back the pressure against them becomes greater, with a re[illegible] turnover.

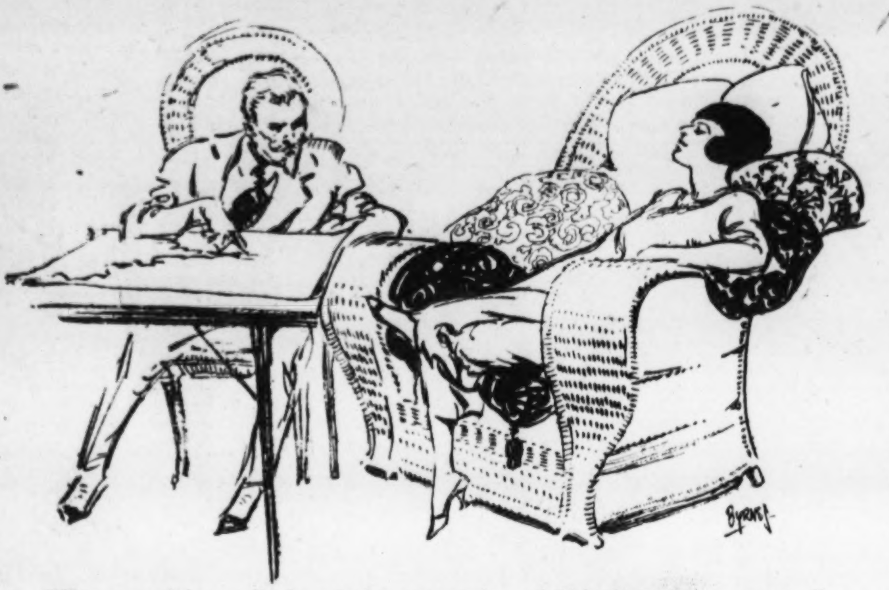
CROSS-BEARINGS

By HENRY C. ROWLAND



"Your position will be at the extremity of this long promontory."

THE French naval pilot Berdou, while he had not missed his vocation, because he was the best pilot of the coast between Spain and Belgium, might easily have qualified for a much higher official appointment.

Picture to yourself a man of 45, rather below the medium height, but deep of chest and strong of shoulder, with a wiry, active frame, thick, grizzled hair, a broad forehead over a pair of clear hazel eyes which looked straight out with a sort of seagull intentness, lean cheeks, thin mustache, square jaw and a pointed chin. Such was Berdou, detailed at this moment to the service of mine sweeping.

If there was anything which Berdou hated more than aught else it was mine sweeping. The actual danger of the job was all in the day's work, but he detested the fine precision which was its prime requisite; the endless plotting and recording of course and position as fast as one could work the azimuth. He preferred to go aboard a vessel and take her in and out of the port or along the coast to some definite place and then have done with her. He liked to go ashore in ports which he had not visited for some lapse of time and look up old friends and acquaintances and pass the gossip of the coast. But this everlasting turning and twisting and the cutting of precise swaths over some suspected sea pasture, only to have it mined again a little later, filled him with weariness and disgust.

The result was that Berdou nourished a steadily growing rancor against the pest which made all of this nuisance necessary—the German submarine. So when "Penmarch Pete," the big sea snake which at first frequented the waters about the Pointe de Penmarch, retired to a nest on the bottom off the northwest end of Belle Isle and sallied thence one early morning to shell and sink a fleet of fishing boats which included the fine thonnier owned and captained by Berdou's brother, killing the skipper and three of her crew, the pilot's hatred became so virulent that he could not mention a submarine without a reddening and protrusion of his hazel eyes.

Upon a certain day in early summer, Berdou was in conference with his chief, Monsieur le Commandant Lemoire.

"But what is the use, mon commandant?" protested Berdou, spreading his expressive hands. "We drag and drag and cut loose these accursed mines, never knowing from one moment to the next when we may burst one off with our keel or depth plate; and then the next moonlight night a boche submarine slips down and sows the place full of them again. We give a tract a clean bill of health and perhaps the very next night it is infected again and we have the work to do over. How do they know where we have swept? And how do they get their ranges at night to lay their devilish eggs, when it is all we can do to pick our landmarks in the daytime?"

The commandant shrugged. It was not for him to admit that there was an active and efficient enemy espionage at work along the coast.

"Since the Americans have come to lend us a hand," continued the pilot, "the work has been more extensive, but so have the submarines. The pigs appear to have abandoned torpillage for mine laying, and they can only lay their mines effectively when they have ranges, and they can only get their ranges by signals from the shore. I myself have seen fusee flashes from Belle Ile and Houat and Haedic and Quiberon. Comrades of mine have seen them also from Ileron and Ile d'Yeu. Until that dirty work is suppressed we must continue to drag, and occasionally lose a transport or have a dragueur with all of her crew blown into splinters. The latter is, of course, no great loss to the Admiralty," he concluded bitterly.

The commandant sat in his chair and stared at the pilot with a frown. "Eh, bien, mon ami," said he, "and what do you want to do about it?"

The pilot's swarthy face darkened. "I wish to ask for six weeks' permission, M'sieu le Commandant," said he.

The superior officer raised his eyebrows. He and Berdou were old chums, and before the war had raised a wall of discipline between them, had often played chess or dominoes together in the Grande Cafe at St. Nazaire.

"And why do you want this permission?" he demanded.

"Eh, bien, m'sieu," said Berdou, "it is very evident that as long as this espionage continues we shall have to keep on sweeping mines, and there are a great many nicer jobs than sweeping mines. It is equally evident that our own information does not propose to bother itself. But, on the contrary, the Americans are not going to put up with it at all. They justly claim that it is their ships and their men and munitions and material which are endangered, and they do not propose to bring them all the way across the Atlantic and have them run the submarine gauntlet, merely to be destroyed by mines between Brest and Bordeaux. They insist upon the authority to protect their own ships, and they are right. But they are strangers here and naturally do not know how to go about it as, for instance, I do."

"Then you desire to work with them?" asked the commandant.

"I wish to work with an American gentleman whom I met in La Rochelle, m'sieu, and who tells me that he is correspondent for a leading weekly review of New York. He speaks good French and appears to know the coast, and his plan is to charter a small fishing boat and cruise along the shore ostensibly as an artist-painter of marines. He can paint sufficiently to pose as such. I am to be his boatman."

"You?" cried the commandant, with a laugh. "But your old beak is known in every port in France, mon vieux—also your love for boche submarines and spies!"

"I am not obliged to go ashore in the daytime, mon commandant," said the pilot dryly, "and this journalist will take up anything which we may discover with the proper American authorities."

The commandant reflected for a moment. "Eh, bein," said he, "it might be a good thing. At least, it would perhaps save us embarrassment. Let me think it over a little and we shall see what can be done."

* * * * * * * * *

Mademoiselle Belle Zarina, that beautiful and accomplished girl, sat on the upper balcony of Monsieur de Roncal's villa at Quiberon discussing ways, and means with that conscienceless avatar of conquistadores who with "Butcher Weyler" had been run out of Cuba some 20 years before.

The singer was curled up in a big wicker chair, and, nestling among the silken cushions, rather suggested a Persian cat in splendid fur. She was sitting on one foot, the other swinging nervously, and there was revealed to the experienced eyes of the old Cuban planter an ankle which threatened his close attention to the subject of successful mine laying. When he raised his eyes from this to look at the girl's tempting face, with its Andalusian features and Castilian blue eyes, it did not help matters greatly.

But his hatred of the Yankees who had dispossessed him of his rich estates and the avarice nourished by his German employers—whom he also hated heartily enough—brought his mind back to the matter in hand, so with a sigh he consigned his appreciation of Zarina's charms to a merely vicarious pleasure and said:

"Belle Ile is too closely watched. We failed there before, and it seems useless and dangerous to make any further attempt from there. Our instructions are now to work from Ile d'Yeu. As there is nobody there in whom we can place implicit confidence, it seems to me that you had better go yourself and take a little villa, with the Kalouneks as servants. I have shown Kalounek on the chart the two points from which the flashes should be displayed three times a week at a certain hour. Your position will be at the extremity of this long promontory." He indicated the position with a bony finger on the chart spread across a card table. "And Kalounek's on the cliffs at this point, about two kilometers to the northward. There should be no particular danger, as there is only one douannier on that beat, and he is an old man who likes his bottle. Here is a little colony"—he touched a spot with a pointed nail—"where a number of cottagers go for the summer. You will be known as an artiste on a vacation."

Zarina nodded. She was glad that her official duties did not require her to return to Belle Ile. She felt that she lacked the courage to be so near a certain little grave. "I say that there is nothing to fear, but with a reservation," said De Roncal. "The Yankees are beginning to establish their contre-espionage along the coast, and although they are stupid animals, they have a way of blundering into one's finesse, so you must be on your guard. Look out for any American, no matter what he may profess to be. But the most dangerous man for us is the French naval pilot, Berdou. I learn that he is absent en permission, and this makes me a little uneasy. He is no fool, and he has sworn to avenge his brother, whose fishing boat was sunk by a submarine last winter. It may be possible that he is working with the Americans, in which case we might find against us a dangerous combination. Keep a sharp lookout for Berdou. Kalounek knows him. If you learn of his being on Ile d'Yeu, suspend all operations until you may be sure that he has left."

The detail appealed strongly to Zarina. She was sick of the sight of uniforms and weary of frequenting gay restaurants and cafes, answering the same everlasting questions and listening to the same pleasantries from newly landed American officers, who seemed to take France and its people and institutions and herself as a huge joke. And she, for her part, had never met but one American who impressed her as being a fullfledged homme du monde, and this man had tricked and befooled her. Although this had occurred three months before, it still made her face burn to think of Durfee, or d'Urfee, as Zarina correctly pronounced the name of the journalist. And she had thought of him a good many times since then.

So Zarina departed for Ile d'Yeu, taking the Kalouneks with her, and found no difficulty in renting a pretty little chalet on the outskirts of St. Sauveur.

The pilot Berdou rolled another cigarette and inhaled the acrid smoke deeply. His companion was studying a chart spread out on a locker in the cabin of the little fishing boat. Berdou himself did not require any chart.

His American shipmate, also, was not without his qualifications for the work in hand. Of about the same age as Berdou, he had in his time been soldier and sailor, explorer, naturalist and writer. He spoke colloquial French and owing to his stature and features often passed for Belgian or possibly Scandinavian. At this moment he was supposedly a painter of marines who had obtained permission to pursue his art along the coast with his Breton boatman, a camouflage which a smattering of talent and technique enabled him to sustain.

Their boat was lying in St. Martin on the Ile de Re, and the question on the table was where to go next. It had been the pilot's idea to work by easy stages up the coast, quietly investigating such points as seemed suitable to the laying of mines by enemy submarines, and trying to pick up any gossip of flash lights being sighted by local fishermen or others.

Berdou had cousins at Le Palais with whom he kept in communication, and only the day before he had found a letter from one of these in the poste restante

NESTLE'S MILK FOOD
Charles Franklin Smith, Jr.

New York, N. Y.

Nestle's Food Company
130 William Street, N. Y. C.

Gentlemen:

Having lost a boy and twin girls, I am more than pleased to send a picture of my Nestle's Baby taken on his first birthday.

A Nestle Baby since birth, he has never had a sick day, never needed the service of a doctor, never awake one night, never had a drop of milk—unbelievable, but true.

I am always glad to exhibit him to anyone doubting what Nestlé's can do, if properly administered.

My new baby, who is expected daily, will be a Nestlé Baby, too.

Mrs. Charles F. Smith
162 East 114th St., N. Y.

Free to Mothers:
A trial package—enough for 12 feedings—and a valuable book for mothers.

When Mrs. Smith writes that her baby "never had a drop of milk," she means extra milk, in addition to the food. Nestle's Milk Food is pure cow's milk in the form of a dry powder—already modified. It does not require additional milk.

IMPERIAL GRANUM

Food for the BABY

Baby Myers of Greenwich, Ohio, 6 Months Old, Weight 30 Lbs.

AN IMPERIAL GRANUM BOY

Whose grateful mother writes—"When our baby came to us we thought he would not live any time, but you can see by his picture what a healthy boy he is, and we give all the credit to Imperial Granum."

"Praise is the Reflection of Virtue," and Baby Myers is a living example of the wholesome nourishment, safety and digestibility of Imperial Granum.

This careful mother realized that it is dangerous to experiment with a baby's digestion and having used such a time tested and reliable food as Imperial Granum with great success, was anxious to let other mothers see the sturdy product of a well-balanced, nutritious diet.

Imperial Granum is a pure, unsweetened food, made from wheat alone. Babies thrive on it.

When used with cows' milk, it prevents the formation in baby's stomach of the hard curds that occur when the milk is used alone. It completes the nourishment and ensures the digestibility of any form of milk.

Little Babies' Birthdays come Every Month. We want to give yours a little rag doll for the next birthday.

L'ODEUR

Chantilly

Parfum Chantilly—truly a liquid bouquet distilled from a second blooming of Old Chantilly's Gardens. In appeal, whimsical as those charms and graces of France's fairest women; in fragrance, reminiscent of a labyrinth of flowers under the witchery of the moon's glow and mingled with the cool spray of plashing fountains. Like all things that marked the period, it is exquisite, aristocratic, luxurious.
